Russians Cut Rail Linking Moscow And Rostov

Enemy Forces Declared Routed In Caucasus as Red Army Rolls On

By Henry C. Cassidy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow (Saturday), Jan. 16.—A Red army surging across the Kalitva River cut the Rostov-Moscow railway yesterday at Glubokaya and reached a point 90 miles northeast of Rostov, Nazi communications center serving southern Russia, it was announced officially early today.

This fresh spurt by Col. Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's middle Don forces came simultaneously with sweeping Russian gains in the Caucasus, where the Germans failed to halt the Red tide, and the communique said the enemy there was "in complete rout."

Approximately 30 towns and railway points were reported seized by the Russians during the day.

Little had been heard from General Vatutin's forces lately. The break-through in the middle Don bend sector gave Russia's big winter offensive greater momentum and increased the threat to Rostov whose capture would be a severe blow to Germany. Rostov is the communications peg for all the Nazi armies operating in southern Russia.

Fighting in Donets Area

The communique mentioned for the first time the fighting in the Donets River area which covers the northern approaches to Rostov.

The Red army apparently had not yet crossed the Donets, but it occupied the region above it between the Kalitva River and the Moscow-Rostov railway.

Diadin, the southernmost point captured in this push, lies about 90 miles northeast of Rostov, and covers the right flank of Lieut. Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky's forces operating to the south. General Rokossovsky's troops already have driven still farther toward Rostov to the Sal River.

16 More Towns Taken

Rokossovsky's troops are making only slow headway along the lower Don River because of heavy Nazi counterattacks. But General Yeremenko's forces operating below that river in the Caucasus gave additional support to those Red Army units yesterday by capturing 16 towns and railway points in the area between the river and the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway.

Striking down the railway the Russians reached the station of Kufenny, 38 miles southwest of Zimovniki. This is 20 miles beyond Kuberle, the last station taken.

The Russians operating in this area are taking towns as close as 80 miles to Rostov.

The biggest place seized in the northwestward push from the Caucasian foothills was Blagodarnoye, the railhead for a line that winds westward to Kropotkin on the main Mineralnye Vody-Rostov railway.

The communique said that a total of 1500 Germans fell to Russian guns yesterday in the Caucasus and 400 surrendered. Trainloads of cattle, motor trucks, munitions and other German equipment were

152 Japs Killed In Allied Blow At Sanananda

Allied Headquarters in Australia (Saturday), Jan. 16 (AP).—An Allied break-through at Sanananda, New Guinea, in which as least 152 Japanese were killed in one day's fighting Thursday was reported in today's noon communique by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Sanananda, immediately northwest of Buna on the northeast New Guinea Coast, is the only spot in all the Papuan Peninsula still held by a fragment of a Jap Army which once totalled 15,000.

Far up the coast at Mubo, which is south and inland from Salamaua, another Allied force concluded a three-day assault in which "heavy" casualties were inflicted and the Japanese area headquarters was destroyed. Yesterday's communique listed Jap dead there as totaling at least 116.

Bombers, meanwhile, blasted targets in the Tanimbar Islands, in the Arafura Sea, harbor installations at Rabaul, New Britain, and supply dumps at Lae, New Guinea.

5 Killed as Bomber Crashes in Kansas

Salina, Kans., Jan. 15 (AP).—Five members of a crew of 10 Army flyers were killed tonight in a crash of a 4-motored bomber plane during a take-off at the Smoky Hill air base.

The names of the men killed were not disclosed pending notification of their next of kin.

Lieut. H. E. Smith listed five survivors, including Lieut. Col. Harvey Regan, Bolling Field, Washington, D. C.

11 U. S. Planes Forced Down In Portugal, Crews Interned

British Subs Sink 4 Axis Ships

Early Release Believed Likely

By International News Service

London, Jan. 15.—Eleven United States warplanes were reported tonight to have been forced down at the Lisbon airport in a heavy storm and the fliers interned by Portuguese authorities.

The 11 planes forced down, the London Daily Express stated, were from a formation of more than 50 planes which presumably were part of large-scale aerial reinforcements flying south to North Africa.

Shortly after the first report of the forced landings the Berlin radio claimed in a broadcast that the 33 American fliers had been interned by Portuguese authorities.

An American bomber escorted the machines to the ground, then quickly flew off after noting the position of the airdrome, Reuter's news agency said. The agency recorded a German radio broadcast that claimed the planes came from an American aircraft carrier "which was probably sunk."

[The Associated Press reported that the planes were Airacobra (P-39) fighters, which normally carry only one man each. It was pointed out in Washington last night that fighters could hardly fly from England, even with extra tanks—a conclusion that further heightened the mystery of whence the planes came.

[This fact and the Berlin figure on the number of men interned led to the belief that the planes might be of another type.—Editor's note.]

(Due to a curious situation existing in Portugal, it may be expected that any United States fliers interned there will win early release, International News Service learned.

(Normally crews of warplanes landing on neutral territory are interned for the duration of the war, but in Portugal this has not been the case, as the result of vigorous representations made to the Portuguese government by Germany

Inland British Areas Bombed By Luftwaffe

Considerable Damage, Casualties Admitted; R.A.F. Hits Sub Bases

By the Associated Press

London, Jan. 15.—Germans bombed three inland areas of eastern England tonight, causing a number of casualties and considerable damage, in an apparent retaliation for heavy pounding by the Royal Air Force of the Nazi submarine bases of Lorient and Cherbourg. One of the bombers was shot down.

Lorient was raided last night by heavy bombers, while Cherbourg was hit by daylight with lighter craft.

Boston bombers escorted by many squadrons of Spitfires attacked Cherbourg, meeting no fighter opposition. Ground fire was heavy.

Two bombers were lost over Lorient, the former French naval base now devoted almost exclusively to Hitler's estimated 400 submarines preying on supply lines to England, Russia and North Africa. It was Lorient's fifty-eighth raid, three of which had been made by daylight precision bombers of the United States forces.

Scores of 500-pound bombs were dropped on the Cherbourg docks in crisp bright weather in the seventy-seventh raid on that great French port. Cherbourg is used as a refueling and light repair point for German submarines and surface craft. One pilot said he saw several hits in the dock area.

While the Bostons bombed Cherbourg, other planes shot up railways and canal shipping in France and the Low Countries, an Air Ministry communique said. Three fighters were lost.

The bombers were over Lorient for an hour in bright moonlight and encountered heavy antiaircraft fire, the air ministry said. Big fires were set, pilots reported. Heavy clouds were pierced on the trip to the Bay of Biscay port and temperatures dropped so low that some gun turrets froze, ice formed inside the bombers and icicles hung from oxygen masks.

The captain of one Halifax counted ten large fires, one particularly big one near a drydock.

Four German planes bombed and machine-gunned a south coast British town this afternoon, inflicting casualties and damage. A school at a southeast coast town was machine-guned by low-flying Nazi planes and three children and a woman were injured.

Dealers Meet Delays Getting Oil Supplies

Quotas for Month, Reported Running Out, May Be Expanded

Warmer weather and an improvement in the present fuel oil supplies of consumers somewhat relieved the fuel situation yesterday, but a new problem of primary suppliers exhausting their January allotments rose to further complicate the general situation.

The Shell Oil Co., asserted yesterday that unless given additional allotments for the remainder of the month it would be unable to deliver another gallon of fuel oil.

A secondary dealer who has been getting his oil from two large suppliers in Baltimore said he had been informed these two companies had either used up their allotment or were on the verge of doing so.

Order Misinterpreted

Meanwhile OPA was preparing a release for today which will elaborate on last Friday's "antidiscrimination order" to dealers and primary suppliers, which a spokesman for the OPA said would erase any misinterpretation which dealers might have placed on the order.

A second large local primary supplier said that although his January allotment was entirely used up, he felt customers were sufficiently stocked until the situation could be remedied.

These allotments to the primary supplier, it was pointed out, are made by the supply and distribution subcommittee of the Petroleum Committee.

It was understood that provisions were included in the regulations which would permit expansion of these quotas in the event such a situation arose as apparently it has in Washington.

The question remained, however, of whether or not there were sufficient supplies on hand to ap-

Won't Fit Hydrants

Fire Auxiliaries Saddled With Useless Pumps and Hose

One thousand District auxiliary firemen stand ready to use their 22,000 feet of hose that will not fit any hydrant in the District nor can it be attached to any of the fire engines now in service in the city, it was revealed yesterday.

The hose could be attached to the 65 skidder pumps also owned by the auxiliary—if the pumps could be moved to the scene of a fire and—if there was some way of connecting the pumps to a hydrant.

Six hundred "turn-out" coats—costing $5600—are ready for use by the firefighting auxiliary—if the wearers are careful not to get them wet, and—if the wearers are careful not to wear them in cold weather.

All of this was discovered by a check of auxiliary firemen's equipment in Washington yesterday.

Fire Chief Stephen T. Porter said last night that the material had been furnished to the District through the National Office of Civilian Defense and had been supplied, he believed, by the War Department. He emphasized that the local OCD had nothing to do with the purchase.

About the couplings and skidder pumps, he said "I am unable to say what is to blame for our failure to have this equipment fully fitted for service. But I can tell you that Commissioner John Russell Young and Col. Lemuel Bolles, director of civilian defense, have done all in their power to get this material for us. I believe that it is purely a matter of distribution and priorities."

Referring to the coats, he said they were regular issue, sent through the National OCD and presumably bought under War Department supervision or orders, after a survey of fire needs.

The 22,000 feet of 1½-inch hose, now stored in high stacks in a former firehouse at Wisconsin Avenue and M Street Northwest, could be used to considerable advantage

Flynn Probe Scheduled Next Week

State Department Official to Start Testimony Before Senate Committee

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

An official of the State Department will lead off—probably next Wednesday—the Senate Foreign Relation Committee's public investigation of the fitness of Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, to be Minister to Australia.

Decision to start the inquiry with a State Department verdict on what Senator Brewster (Republican) of Maine has called the "affirmative qualifications" of Flynn to discharge vital diplomatic responsibilities in the Far Pacific area was reached, it was learned last night, following the committee's unanimous decision yesterday publicly to investigate capacities of the Bronx (N. Y.) political boss.

It was Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Administration stalwart, who proposed to the committee that it "ought to have hearings" on the question of Senate confirmation of Flynn's nomination by President Roosevelt. Barkley also proposed that the hearings be open.

Proposal Unopposed

His proposal was accepted without objection, after Democratic committeemen had rejected a proposal from the Republican side that the committee recommend withdrawal of the nomination.

The committee acted yesterday after receiving from Senator Bridges (Republican) of New Hampshire, who has spearheaded the Republican drive to block the nomination, four "damn serious" charges against Flynn, submitted to the Senate Thursday.

The New Hampshire Senator said he would file with the committee today a list of 36 persons whom he wants to be called as witnesses in the case, together with a summary of evidence he believes will be developed in support of his charges.

The list will constitute his formal request that the committee summon Secretary Cordell Hull and Assistant Secretary Adolf A. Berle, jr., from the State Department, and

U. S. to Buy Dairy Cows to Prevent Their Slaughter

In an effort to hold milk production to the highest possible level, the Agriculture Department announced yesterday it would buy and resell dairy cows to prevent their being sold for slaughter.

The department said that in some areas dairy cows were being sold for slaughter because of labor shortages and other difficulties.

Cows bought by the department will be sold on easy terms to farmers having feed, labor and other facilities for caring for additonal cows.

Before buying cows, the department will attempt first to meet the labor shortage so that the cows may be kept on farms where they are now.

Coal Strike Leaders to Urge Miners End Tieup Monday; U.S. Orders Them to Negotiate

Food Agency Chief Quits in Plan Dispute

Parisius Resigns, Declares Shortages Are Not Inevitable Under Proper Setup

Food Production Director Herbert W. Parisius resigned his job yesterday with a blast at the Department of Agriculture for "indecision" and "defeatism" in accepting food shortages as "inevitable."

In a formal statement, Parisius urged his promptly appointed successor, Clifford M. Townsend, former Governor of Indiana and more recently Triple-A administrator, to boost food production goals an estimated 20 per cent by "converting American agriculture to an all-out war basis."

It was understood that the complaint against indecision was a blast at Agriculture Secretary Claude R. Wickard for failing to act on Parisius' program to reorganize the department's food production agencies.

Second Recent Resignation

It was the second time in recent weeks that a simmering feud within the Department of Agriculture has come to public attention by the resignation of a key official. Earlier, Consumer Counsel Donald Montgomery resigned his post with the comment that the department was failing to protect adequately the interest of the consumer.

Both Parisius and Montgomery have been ardent supporters of policies followed by the Farm Security Administration in rehabilitating the small family-type farmer and have come into conflict with officials of the Triple-A and the Farm Credit Administration.

Parisius' resignation was interpreted as a victory for the anti-Farm Security forces in the department. Parisius proposed reorganization gave key roles to FSA personnel.

Goals Deemed Too Low

FSA people have generally believed that agriculture food production goals for 1943 have been set too low as a result of fear of possible postwar surplus, and that as a result the consumer has been forced to suffer shortages.

In announcing acceptance of Parisius' resignation and the appointment of Townsend, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard also disclosed the following additions to Townsend's staff:

J. B. Hutson, on leave of absence as president of the Commodity Credit Corp., and A. G. Black, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, to be associate directors of the Food Production Administration.

A GRIM JOHN L.—Unsmiling John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, sits with his hand to cheek in the manner of Rodin's sculpture, "The Thinker," and listens to Pennsylvania anthracite miners before the War Labor Board yesterday. The miners declared that a wildcat strike involving 17,000 men was due to a rank-and-file revolt against increased dues and demands for a $2-a-day raise.

Union Leaders Agree to Call Meetings Asking Work Be Resumed

By Ben W. Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

United Mine Workers headquarters here announced at 11 p. m. last night that leaders of the 17,000 striking "anthracite coal miners had agreed unanimously to urge their men to return to work Monday, after a stormy session with Mine Union President John L. Lewis at which Lewis renewed his pledge to seek and get a "wholesome" wage increase for the miners regardless of the War Labor Board's wage control policy.

The strike leaders—more than 30 of them came to Washington to appear at a WLB hearing yesterday afternoon—agreed to return to Pennsylvania and call meetings of their local unions today and tomorrow to urge the end of the strike.

Dramatic Hearing

The War Labor Board wound up a dramatic four-hour hearing on the strike by ordering the miners back to work after Lewis disavowed the strike and disclosed that he had sent telegrams to more than 300 U. M. W. locals in the Pennsylvania anthracite region terming the strike "a mad enterprise," ordering the men back to work, and announcing plans to hold the strike leaders accountable "under the laws of their own union."

A spokesman for Lewis said he told the miners last night to "end all this foolishness" and return to work, thus building a better case for substantial wage increases when their contract with coal operators expires in April.

Lewis' spokesman said that Leo Filip of Plymouth, Pa., submitted the following unanimously adopted resolution:

"I move that it is the sense of this meeting that we all return and tell our membership to put the mines back to work next Monday."

U. S. Right Challenged

At the hearing, Lewis defiantly challenged the Government's right to question the dues levied on the membership of the U. M. W. or to upset the present contract between the operators and the U. M. W.

The board ruling directed the strikers to present their grievances to the grievance machinery provided under the contract—a victory for Lewis in the sense that he contended this was the only thing the board had power to do.

However, Lewis made it clear

Pay-as-You-Go Talk Worries Tax Officials

Returns Must Be Filed On Time, Regardless, Public Is Warned

By Felix Cotten
International News Service Staff Writer

Pay-as-you-go income tax proposals have instilled a false belief among the army of 27 million income taxpayers that many would escape the tax collector on March 15 and worried Government officials yesterday acted to prevent a possible "tax strike."

To guard against any such development, Representative Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Senator George (Democrat) of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, issued a joint statement warning taxpayers that they must file their returns and pay "at least" the first installment of their 1942 taxes.

The joint statement, it was disclosed, was issued at the request of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, whose task it is to collect taxes levied by Congress. Bureau officials were said to be "concerned" over publicity which the Ruml pay-as-you-go plan has received.

"The committees having to do with tax legislation," Doughton and George declared, "have been advised that reports are coming from all over the country to the effect that a change will be made in the tax law which would preclude the necessity of filing 1942 returns due on March 15, 1943.

Cabinet Probes Canada Steel Strike Today

13,500 Employes Idle in Two of Three Basic Plants

By the Associated Press

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 15.—Company and union representatives will confer with the cabinet at Ottawa tomorrow afternoon in an attempt to settle the strike which has left 13,500 Canadian steelworkers idle, halting two of Canada's three basic steel-producing plants.

Labor Department officials at Ottawa said both the Algoma Steel Corporation at Saulte Ste. Marie, Ont., and the Dominion Steel & Coal Corporation at Sydney, N. S., would be represented at the meeting. There are 5000 workers idle at the Algoma plant, 5000 at Sydney and 3500 at the Dosco subsidiary plants at Trenton, N. S.

The union, the United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O.), called the strike to demand a basic minimum wage rate of 55 cents an hour, compared to the present 45½ cents at the Sault and 43½ cents in Nova Scotia.

International headquarters of the union at Washington appointed a three-man committee to confer with the government and the companies, including Pat Conroy of Ottawa and John Doherty and Elmer Maloy of the steel union's executive board.

Announcing appointment of the union committee in Washington, President Philip Murray of the international union said the committee would have full authority to deal with the matter. C. H. Millard, Canadian regional director of the union, attended the meeting of the international executive board which appointed the committee

Mother of Triplets Leaps to Death After Second Dies

Oakland, Calif., Jan. 15 (AP).—Triplets—two girls and a boy—were born last September to pretty Mrs. Lorraine Aldinger, 28.

Last month one of the girls suffocated in her crib.

Yesterday Mrs. Aldinger, with the other girl in her arms, tripped on a stairway and fell. The youngster died from a skull fracture.

Today Mrs. Aldinger plunged to her death from the eleventh floor of the downtown Federal building.

Police Sergt. C. D. Jorgensen said he found this note in her purse:

Jap Woman Pilot Hit Hornet; German Girl Gunner Downed

U. S. Aviator Reports Female Combatant in North African Action

By the Associated Press

Seattle, Jan. 15.—Downing of a German bomber over North Africa with a woman at the tail gun was reported by a Seattle flier who also gave a graphic account of the deadly effectiveness of two-plane team play between fighter pilots.

Lieut. Joe Klaas, former University of Washington journalism student, did not elaborate, in a letter received today by his parents, upon the report of a feminine German gunner, except to explain that the plane was shot down and "she was quite dead."

Lieutenant Klaas identified his pilot partner in a two-Spitfire team as Kurt (Ace) Langberg, from the University of Florida.

"Our job is to see that the Focke-Wulfs don't get through to shoot up the carriers flying down below us. The carrier pilots are tightening their formations and praying.

"'Here they come!' calls ace. 'Break starboard . . . now!'

"And those are the boys who deserve the credit. Those boys down below who sweat it out in transports with nothing between them and the Luftwaffe but a couple of fighter escorts. We Spitfire boys have guns; all the transport lads have is guts."

Dead Flier Identified As Feminine After Crashing Carrier

By the United Press

Asbury Park, N. J., Jan. 15.—At least one woman was among the Japanese pilots who crashed their planes into the aircraft carrier Hornet in suicide attacks when the carrier was sunk last October 26, Coxswain James S. Prince said today.

Prince, visiting at the home of his parents on furlough, said doctors on the Hornet examined the remains of the pilot and determined that they were those of a woman.

"The plane piloted by the woman crashed into the Hornet's elevator," he said. "There wasn't much left of it or the pilot, but the reports that the doctors had confirmed that the pilot was a woman was the subject of much conversation among us survivors."

Prince said it was not the Jap suicide pilots but instead high explosive bombs released from horizontal bombers that damaged the carrier so badly that other units of the American Navy finally had to sink her.

He also said that he was positive that he saw the Nazi swastika on the wings of some of the enemy horizontal bombers.

Prince is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Prince of 526 Prospect Avenue, Asbury Park.

They're Ladies First

Navy Solves Knotty Points Of Etiquette for WAVES

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 15.—A man is a gentleman before he is a commissioned officer, the Navy has decided, and a woman is a lady before she is a WAVE.

Therefore when the senior officer (male) indicates he wishes the junior officer (female) to precede him "then she is supposed to go without any fuss or feathers," in spite of normal military etiquette based on rank, it was stated in a Navy publicity release reprinted from the Bureau of Personnel information bulletin.

The announcement today cleared up the confusion attendant upon a member of the feminine arm of the service meeting a Navy officer of the opposite sex. Military procedure is in order unless the senior officer waives it in favor of the WAVE—and that is because "military courtesy includes deference to women and because a senior's wish is an implied command," the release said.

In general, however, regulations and customs of the Navy apply to men and women alike. Juniors salute first, whether it is a male saluting a WAVE or vice versa.

In the matter of WAVE hats—the women did not know whether they were to follow the usual Navy custom of removing them in church, theaters or at mess—it has been decided that they are to be worn "in conformance to civilian rather than military custom."

Still another knotty problem has been solved—addressing a senior WAVE. They have been addressed as "Sir," "Ma'am," and "Miss."

"If the officer is being addressed by name, it should be Miss (or Mrs.) Jones, following the naval usage of addressing all officers of rank of lieutenant commander and under by that form," it was decided.

"If the officer is not being addressed by name, simply use the rank, 'Aye, aye, Lieutenant,' or 'Good morning, Lieutenant.' The usage thus follows the Marine Corps or Army custom.

Mistrial Asked In Flynn Case

Los Angeles, Jan. 15 (AP).—Deputy District Attorney Thomas Cochran today moved a mistrial in the Errol Flynn case, charging that two women members of the jury had obtained their seats "by deceit and perjury."

Cochran said three affidavits were being prepared and would be presented to the court by women acquaintances of the two. He moved an adjournment until Monday, a motion in which Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler concurred.

New York, Jan. 15 (AP).—The Berlin radio broadcast today a Tokyo report that the Japanese have begun the construction of rafts made of bamboo, with a surface area of 10,000 square meters, to transport army materials.

The broadcast said the construction was ordered after successful tests had been completed under the supervision of Japanese military authorities.

The building of such devices more than strongly hints of the shipping losses that the Japanese have suffered at the hands of the Allies and the seriousness of their transportation problem.

Southern Shore Of Italy Undergoes Shelling From Sea

By Edward D. Ball
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 15.—Strong and effective attacks along the Mediterranean Sea front by British submarines which sank four Axis ships, and probably three more, and shelled the southern shore of the nervous Italian mainland highlighted the North African campaign today.

Attacks by Allied planes on both the Tunisian and Libyan ends of the line were announced. Aground, no action of consequence was reported from General Eisenhower's Allied headquarters.

The new successes in the unending Allied war of attrition against Axis shipping were disclosed by the Admiralty.

3 Supply Ships Sunk

Three small supply and ammunition ships went down under British torpedoes. Three other cargo ships, one of them a large vessel, whose forward part was blown off, were hard hit and believed sunk.

A submarine under the command of Commander B. (Bearded Ben) Bryant, D. S. C., crippled an Axis mine sweeper with gunfire, took off her people as prisoners and then torpedoed and sank her.

Another submarine surfaced and shelled a railway bridge on the southern Italian coast.

In the air war, Allied North African headquarters announced that American Flying Fortresses attacking the eastern Tunisian supply ports of Sousse and Sfax had left the harbor areas aflame, while marauders attacked railroad lines and highways along the coastal road at Mahares, southwest of Sfax. Two Axis planes were shot down, four Allied craft were lost.

Enemy Bases Bombed

In Libya, it was announced, American and South African R. A. F. bombers assaulted enemy camps, airfields and transport. Particularly hard hit were two enemy airdromes west of the Wadi Zem Zem on the Tripolitanian coast. Eight Axis fighter planes were shot down and 12 others damaged, but the enemy's defenses were strong and 13 Allied pilots were said to be missing.

There was again no report of activity by the British Eighth Army which has been pursuing Marshal Rommel's Africa corp.

Despite its mounting losses, the Axis was said by military observers here still to be getting strong forces into North Africa. The impression prevailed in some quarters that the next big developments would be in Tripolitania rather than Tunisia, where the opposing land forces have been long weatherbound.

The French in Tunisia reported brisk patrol activity in the region southwest of Pont du Fahs, where both Berlin and Rome claimed the repulse of strong Allied thrusts.

The text of the War Department communique, issued in Washington, follows:

"North Africa:

"1. There is no change in the ground situation.

"2. Flying Fortresses (B-17's) attacked the enemy supply ports of Sousse and Sfax. At both places targets on the quays were hit and fires were left burning. Escorting Lightnings (P-38's) shot down one ME-109.

"3. Objectives at Mahares, 20 miles southwest of Sfax, were attacked by Marauders (B-26's).

"4. Sweeps and patrols were carried out by our fighters in forward areas. Spitfires destroyed one enemy fighter.

"5. In these operations four of our aircraft were lost, but one pilot is safe.

"6. Additional reports show that on January 13 two enemy bombers were shot down by Warhawks (P-40's) and that another enemy fighter was destroyed by Spitfires."

Argentina Sidesteps Allied Issue

By the Associated Press

Buenos Aires, Jan. 15.—The Argentine Foreign Office sidestepped the issue today in a reply to a United Nations notification that the Allies will refuse to recognize Nazi-enforced transfers of the property of the nations of occupied countries.

The notification, in effect an invitation to Argentina to declare her solidarity with the United Nations, drew the response from Roberto Gache, foreign undersecretary, that Argentina supports the "principles of order and respect for individual rights invariably sustained by this country."

The answer was delivered to R. H. Hadow, British charge d'affaires.

Similar notifications were made in a number of other capitals in South America and resulted in several unequivocal declarations supporting the United Nations. In effect these declarations implied that the nations making them were willing to share responsibility of seeing that Nazi-seized property is returned to its rightful owners.

It is understood, however, that Argentina, in her role of a rigid neutral, felt she could not thus commit herself against the Axis belligerents.

Partridge Lost

London, Jan. 15 (AP).—The destroyer Partridge has been lost, the Admiralty announced tonight. The Partridge was a new warship, not listed in Janes. Her commander was Lieut. Comdr. W. A. F. Hawkins.

abandoned by the Germans whose every attempt at resistance did not last long under Soviet charges.

The Russians said they were using the same tactics so long practiced by the Germans in the days of their gains—sending mobile units to the German flanks and rears and then hitting the enemy from all sides.

A 600-yard gain inside Stalingrad also was announced by the Russians while German counterattacks on the central front were repulsed southwest and northwest of Velikie Luki.

(The German communique, though somewhat reticent, declared "heavy defensive fighting is continuing with unabated fierceness" on all the southern front. The Nazis admitted that the garrison at Velikie Luki is "encompassed".)

Stopped to the northwest of Velikie Luki, the Germans counterattacked vigorously to the southwest on the Central Front, but the Russians said the enemy was driven back over the bodies of 200 of their dead and the wreckage of eight disabled tanks. Booty and 250 prisoners were claimed.

Campaign to Recruit Nurses Is Indorsed by Roosevelt

An intensive three months' campaign to recruit war nurses, nurse's aides and home nursing students for American Red Cross work was indorsed yesterday by President Roosevelt in a letter to Chairman Norman H. Davis.

The President declared: "We all agree that in this war the health of the fighting men must come first. However, we also are aware that our great civilian army, our defense workers, our children and our home workers must remain healthy if this war is to be prosecuted to its fullest."

Similar indorsement of the campaign's objectives has been given by Surgeons General James C. Magee of the U. S. Army, Ross T. McIntire of the U. S. Navy and Thomas Parran of the U. S. Public Health Service.

Specific aim of the campaign is recruiting of 36,000 graduate registered nurses for the Army and Navy Nurse Corps, 100,000 Red Cross nurse's aides and one million students in home nursing classes.

In conjunction with the drive, a series of dramatic programs, to be broadcast for 13 weeks through National Broadcasting Co. facilites, will begin Sunday. Appearing on the initial program will be Howard Lindsay and Dorothy Stickney, "Life With Father" stars, and Miss Mary Beard, director of the Red Cross Nursing Service. Quotas for local communities will be announced.

Nursing Courses Cut to Aid Supply

Nursing courses for District student nurses planning to enter the armed forces will be shortened six months under a program announced yesterday by the Nurses Examining Board.

The accelerating action, which will affect approximately 300 student nurses, the first of whom will be graduated in 1944, was taken in order to alleviate the nurse shortage in war areas, Miss M. Cordelia Cowan, executive secretary of the board, explained yesterday.

Students entering the armed forces will receive the regular training course, but six months' clinical experience will be eliminated. It is expected that experience accumulated with the armed forces will be an adequate substitution.

For young women preparing for nursing service with the armed forces the course is to be shortened to 24 months for candidates with sufficient college preparation and to 30 months for specially selected applicants who are graduates of accredited high schools.

Students being graduated from high schools or colleges at the midyear should make arrangements to enter the spring classes of nursing schools, and those graduating in June the summer or fall classes.

All nursing schools in the District are cooperating with this plan. They are those at Gallinger, Freedmen's, Garfield, Georgetown, Sibley, Providence and St. Elizabeths Hospitals.

IRA Leader, 3 Others Flee Belfast Jail

By the Associated Press

Belfast, Jan. 15.—A $12,000 reward was posted tonight for information leading to the recapture of Hugh M'Ateer, 25-year-old chief of staff of the illegal Irish Republican Army, who with three companions escaped at breakfast time from Belfast Prison.

Presumably the fugitives had outside aid. They broke the glass roof of the prison laundry and made their way into the yard where they used a rope ladder to scale the wall during the breakfast assembly. Patrols were posted immediately on all roads out of Belfast. A watch was set on the Eire border.

M'Ateer was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment November 26 for treason after a trial in which it was alleged he had plotted to set up an Irish republic in northern Ireland. The offense was punishable by death.

He was arrested October 12 in a house near Londonderry, a United States naval base, where explosives and I. R. A. literature were found.

The arrest was made after a long series of bombings, near Belfast police stations following an I. R. A. proclamation August 1 declaring the presence of United States troops in northern Ireland was an act of aggression.

5 New Guinea Heroes Cited

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Jan. 15 (AP).—United States soldiers who refused to leave their posts, though wounded, in recent New Guinea fighting were named among five officers and enlisted men who received the Distinguished Service Cross today from Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Staff Sergt. John F. Rehak, jr., was cited posthumously, the decoration going to his father at Manitowac, Wis.

The other four were Lieut. Col. Melvin L. McGreary, Youngstown, Ohio, of the field artillery; First Lieuts. James I. Hunt, Lima, Ohio, and Erwin J. Nummer, Lowell, Mass., and Private John E. Combs, Chattanooga, Tenn. The latter three are infantrymen.

Flying Fortress 'Lost' in Battle Returns

By Gladwin Hill
Associated Press Staff Writer

At a United States Bomber Station in England, Jan. 15.—The acting pilot was killed, three of its crew were wounded and the Flying Fortress, "Dry Martini" was given up for lost by its formation, but a gallant young second lieutenant brought the bomber back from the Wednesday raid on Lille, France.

The dead pilot was a substitute sitting in for Capt. Allan V. Martini of San Francisco, who was too ill to go on the mission.

"Dry Martini's" target was a Lille steel factory building. Just after dropping their bombs, the Americans were attacked by Focke-Wulfs.

"At least five of them took a pass at us before we got hit," the second lieutenant copilot said.

Shells crashed through the cockpit into the pilot's chest, killing him. The back of his chair was shattered and the explosion showered glass splinters that stunned and blinded the copilot temporarily.

The plane dived out of control for 2500 feet. The officer leading the flight thought "Dry Martini" was finished when it suddenly came out of the dive.

The copilot was wounded in the leg by a splinter of plastic but he managed to level off.

"I couldn't see the formation and called tail gunner, Sergt. R. F. Willis, (of Brockton, Mass.) on the interphone and he gave me a very good direction from where he could see. All the cockpits were caved in and the plane looked like an abandoned house."

The co-pilot picked out a place for the plane in another formation.

A former cowboy and radio man, Staff Sergt. Oscar E. Ballew of Enola, Pa., left his post as top turret gunner to carry the pilot's body into the nose of the compartment and attempted to revive him.

"There were so many fighters coming at us that it was absolutely futile to call them out to the gunners on the inter-phone," the copilot said.

One of the gunners was shot in the side and was suffering great pain but he kept on firing until he was helped out of the turret by Technical Sergt. H. L. Mabry of Dallas, Tex., the right waist gunner. The left waist gunner was William D. Hise of Pittsburgh.

"Dry Martini" by now was getting cannon shots in the fuselage, tail and nose, one of which knocked the oxygen masks off the bombardier, Second Lieut. R. Nye of Bellevue, Wash., but they found spares and stayed on the job.

One gunner returned to his post, although wounded and without an oxygen mask, and kept firing at attacking planes for 45 minutes until Ballen and Mabry helped him down and gave him first aid.

Mabry then went forward to the pilot's seat and helped the copilot manage the plane.

Back in the tail bullets were whizzing at Willis. They clipped away both shoulders of his jacket and his parachute pack was riddled with shrapnel.

Nevertheless, "Dry Martini" rode out the attack. The crew was getting so used to German planes by the time they reached the Channel that the copilot said:

"We were feeling pretty pessimistic because we couldn't think the planes we saw coming were anything but Focke-Wulfs. Actually they were protecting squadrons of Spitfires.

The copilot, who may not be identified by name, landed the plane safely. He is recovering in a hospital from wounds not considered serious.

11 U. S. Warplanes Down in Portugal

when some Nazi fliers were interned there early in the war.

(The German government put such pressure on Portugal for release of the fliers that the Portuguese government complied, but only on the condition that the precedent should apply equally to airmen of all belligerent nations who might land in Portugal. Subsequently, British fliers landing in Portugal have been freed, after investigation, under this German-forced policy.)

(It seems likely, therefore, that any Americans held in Portugal will be released after brief official investigation.)

The American planes, the Express said, were believed to have been forced down by lack of fuel. It was pointed out that extremely bad weather has prevailed over much of Portugal and Spain during the past few days, which may have accounted for the United States planes running out of fuel.

(A Madrid dispatch, quoted by the Associated Press, said that a British plane had crashed at La Linea, Spain, and that two members of the crew were interned.)

Japanese Suffer Bloody Losses in Drive From Burma

By the Associated Press

Chungking, Jan. 15.—The Japanese again are attacking from the northern Shan States of Burma along the southern Yunnan frontier area but have been checked after suffering bloody losses, the Chinese high command said today.

In one encounter north of the Namlwi (Lot) River, the Japanese were turned back after advancing from Mongma, the communique said.

In fighting in the Tapieh Mountains northeast of Hankow, the Chinese asserted they were making big strides in pursuit of retreating Japanese forces which launched a drive nearly four weeks ago to wipe out potential Chinese bases for the counteroffensive.

Japs Raid Calcutta

London, Jan. 15 (INS).—Three Japanese planes of a force that raided Calcutta tonight were shot down by Allied night fighters, Reuters reported in a dispatch from Calcutta, India's largest city.

The Royal Air Force fighters that rose to intercept the small Japanese bomber formation forced the raiders to jettison their bombs outside the target area, it was announced.

Calcutta is the main supply port for British troops of Field Marshal Sir Archibald Wavell in Burma.

Wavell Visits Troops

London, Jan. 15 (AP).—Reuters reported today that Field Marshal Sir Archibald Wavell, commander in chief in India, had recently visited British troops in western Burma, arriving by plane at an advance airdrome in a district recently wrested from the Japanese.

Jap Village Attacked

New Delhi, Jan. 15 (AP).—R. A. F. bombers attacked four Japanese-occupied villages in the Akyab area of western Burma yesterday and followed up these raids with a night assault on Akyab Island, a British communique announced today.

Yanks Strafe Jap Posts

With the United States Army Air Force in China, Jan. 14 (delayed) (AP).—A flight of United States fighter planes strafed Japanese supply and transport installations at Bhamo, northern Burma, today, setting fire to a big warehouse filled with gasoline drums.

Another fighter reconnaissance sweep over Lashio, former terminus of the Burma Road, failed to call out any Japanese opposition. Capt. Grant Mahony of Vallejo, Calif., leader of this mission, destroyed a Japanese truck on the Burma Road, leaving several bodies beside it.

Threat of Hatch

Sub Dodged Jap Bombs, Sank 3 Ships

By the Associated Press

Bombed by Japanese airplanes, hunted by enemy warships and once endangered by a hatch which was difficult to close, Lieut. Frank Lawson, jr., of the American submarine Service, reported yesterday that his undersea raider had accounted for at least three Nipponese ships sunk and two or more damaged on a series of extensive operations in the Pacific.

Lawson, whose home address is 117 Southway, Baltimore, Md., is home on leave. His story was told by the Navy Department in a press release.

He was at Manila Bay in the Philippines when the war started and his sub with others took refuge from the first Japanese bombings of Cavite and Manila by lying on the bottom of the shallow bay. Their periscopes protruded above the surface, however, and Lawson said he was able to watch the air attack on the city and harbor.

Revenge for the destruction wrought by the Japanese attack was not long in coming. Lawson's sub, which was commanded by Comdr. Kenneth C. Hurd of Flint, Mich., was quickly sent to sea and one night shortly after leaving Manila picked up an enemy ship.

Two torpedoes sent that vessel down in just a few minutes.

After two months of cruising, the submarine put in at a base for reconditioning, and soon afterward the Japs dropped a 500-pound bomb on the pier only a few hundred yards from the ship. The sub immediately submerged, but the decks remained awash and gun crews manned the machine guns. They succeeded in driving off an enemy dive-bomber before it could inflict any damage.

The first night out from that base the submarine surfaced and found itself in the midst of a large number of enemy ships.

"Fortunately," Lawson said, "we were well protected by foggy weather. The Japs didn't see us, but we could distinctly see the silhouettes of their vessels. So we picked out the two largest, unleashed our torpedoes and dove.

"As we were going down we heard two large explosions and probably a third. We had some difficulty closing our hatch during the emergency dive and took on quite a bit of water. But we got is closed all right, and straightened out our rather speedy and steep dive. Our sub was credited with two enemy ships."

In the next few days several Japanese cruisers chased the submarine but finally gave up their attempts to destroy it.

Some months later, after another trip to the base for reconditioning, the submarine made contact with a large enemy ship.

"We fired two tin fish," Lawson said, "both of which missed. So we made a new approach and fired two more, one of which hit the target, a big merchant ship. She went up in a terrific explosion, and flames shot a mile high in the air. We had a good look at her because we surfaced and patrolled around in circles.

"In order to put her away for keeps, we returned to make a new approach. But as we were getting ready to finish her off, we heard another explosion and heard her sing. It turned out later that the second explosion might have been caused by a torpedo from one of our sister subs which was operating in the same area at that time."

Driving Ban Hearings Set Tuesday

Violators of the "no pleasure driving" ban will be given a hearing before a number of local ration boards beginning Tuesday night, OPA officials announced yesterday.

Total alleged violations reported to date number 340, which includes 20 reported by OPA inspectors yesterday. These officials said they had no report up to a late hour yesterday from the Metropolitan Police.

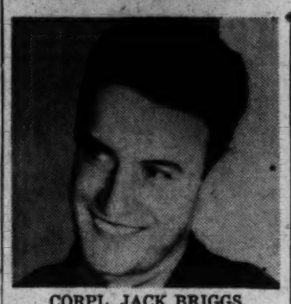
Queried on the length of time it has taken the ration boards to begin their hearings, District OPA Director Whitney Leary said the procedure to be followed in these cases necessitated considerable time to start functioning.

He said the procedure would be as follows: When the OPA inspector makes his daily report to headquarters the individual cases are checked against the driver's name, address and occupation. When it is discovered that an error has been made in reporting a driver, the case is immediately eliminated. Those cases which remain in doubt are then mailed to the individual's local rationing board for further scrutiny.

A similar investigation is made by the local rationing board and the same procedure followed. The remaining cases are then set for hearing and a notice is mailed to the individual at least three days in advance of the scheduled hearing.

OPA officials pointed out that this does not necessarily mean that in case a person is found guilty his entire gasoline ration allotment will be taken away. These officials said that the number of coupons deducted from the driver's ration book would depend entirely on the severity of the case. In extreme cases, the entire allotment may be revoked, they said.

Ginger Rogers Will Be Wed To Actor Now in Marines



CORPL. JACK BRIGGS

GINGER ROGERS

By the Associated Press

Hollywood, Jan. 15.—Ginger Rogers of the movies and Jack Briggs of the Marines and Schenectady, N. Y., are going to be married.

A happy Ginger walked onto a movie set today, to the strains of "Here Comes the Bride," and proudly displayed a gold engagement ring.

The actress, born Virginia Katherine McMath, is 31. Briggs, an actor who worked at her studio but never met her until after he entered the service, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Katz. He attended De Witt Clinton High School in New York.

Of him, the titfan-haired Ginger says:

"He's everything I've ever dreamed about—companionable, intelligent, a grand sense of humor, and a 6-foot, 2-inch, brown haired, brown-eyed American."

They met last September 30, when Ginger was in San Diego on a bond-selling tour. She indicated that if Briggs can get leave, they may tie the knot any time.

Senators Move To Return Jap Camps to Army

By Milton Magruder
United Press Staff Writer

The Senate Military Affairs Committee yesterday opened a drive to return Japanese relocation centers—scenes of sporadic anti-American demonstrations—from civilian to military control to halt "reported pampering of these enemy aliens within our shores."

Chairman Robert R. Reynolds (Democrat) of North Carolina announced that next week Senator Wallgren (Democrat) of Washington will introduce a bill to transfer the camps from the War Relocation Authority, headed by Dillon Myers, to the War Department, which carried out the original evacuation of Japanese from the West Coast.

Reynolds also appointed a three-man subcommittee to investigate conditions in the Japanese centers in California, Colorado and Oregon. The group includes Senators A. B. Chandler (Democrat) of Kentucky, chairman; Edwin Johnson (Democrat) of Colorado, and Wallgren.

Chandler said the committee will begin work early next week by questioning Myers. The group will then tour the various camps.

Chandler said the inquiry was motivated by the anti-American demonstration staged by the Japanese at the Manzanar (Calif.) camp on December 7, anniversary of the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor. One internee was killed and nine were injured.

Johnson protested that schools and other buildings are being erected for internees in Colorado while city and county governments are unable to get priorities for similar projects.

Near-riots, unrest and labor difficulties have been reported from other Jap centers, but the Manzanar disturbance is the most serious yet brought to light. Martial law was invoked after pro-Axis Japanese made two separate attacks on the camp's police station and leaders of the pro-American faction.

Ralph P. Merritt, Manzanar director, said American-born Japs made a loyal effort to avert the outbreak. The camp houses 10,000 internees, 4,500 of whom are either aliens or pro-Japanese and the rest pro-American.

Army Pilot Drowned

New York, Jan. 15 (INS).—An Army pilot was drowned this afternoon when he was carried into the ocean as he bailed out of his fighter plane before it crashed on the sands of Jones Beach, Long Island, the Army announced tonight. Name of the pilot is being withheld until next of kin have been notified.

Underground War on Nazis Rife in Europe

By International News Service

London, Jan. 15.—Opposition to Nazi rule from the southern Balkans to northern Scandinavia reached the boiling point tonight with the announcement of new mass arrests in Poland.

At the same time, it was revealed that recent mass internments in Norway were ordered because the Gestapo had unearthed a secret military organization which drilled regularly with weapons dropped by parachute from Allied planes. Oslo claimed the underground army had been smashed.

Thousands were arrested today in Warsaw, the battered capital, as the Gestapo combed every district of the city.

More mass arrests were reported from France, where 100 persons were seized in Lyons for "illegal activities," the Nazi-controlled Vichy radio said. Two of those arrested were said to be leaders of the underground.

Five hundred underground workers who maintained a large stock of weapons and an intricate network of tunnels under the streets of Paris also were arrested recently, Reuter's reported from Zurich today. German authorities rooted out the underground members — living underground—after a plot against French collaborationists was uncovered.

(In Yugoslavia, where 150,000 Axis troops have to be maintained to fight organized opposition to the German puppet rule, another instance of guerilla sabotage was reported. The Dakar radio, in a broadcast heard in New York by C. B. S., said that Chetnik soldiers of Gen. Draja Mikhailovic derailed a German troop train on the Zagreb-Karlovac line and killed many of the train's human cargo.

(C. B. S. also recorded a British radio broadcast that said the leader and 73 members of the illegal Hungarian "Arrow Cross" organization had been arrested. The broadcast quoted the Lisbon correspondent of the London Times as saying that in Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria, executions were taking place "on a greater scale than ever before during the war.")

House May Probe Civil Service

The House Rules Committee will meet Monday morning to consider the resolution of Representative Ramspeck (Democrat) of Georgia calling for a Civil Service Committee probe of Federal personnel practices.

The resolution asks for $35,000 to be used for expenses of the investigation, including the hiring of a special investigator. The inquiry was first ordered by the last Congress, but only preliminary work was done before the session expired.

Childless Men Face Draft Call Next Month

Local Selective Service Boards will begin calling married men without children for induction the latter part of February, it was announced yesterday by William E. Leahy, State Director for the District.

The necessity of calling these married men, Leahy said, was twofold: First, most of Washington's 25 local boards have exhausted their supply of available single men, and all boards will have exhausted their supply by March; secondly, Washington's quota for February is more than double that of January.

Married men with children will not be called for induction before July 1 at the earliest, under current quotas.

Selective Service headquarters was unable to ascertain how many married men would be called as the monthly quotas are subject to change on orders from the War Department.

Only married men between 18 and 38 years old will be affected by the change in policy, since the Army is not accepting for induction any man over 38.

Under Selective Service regulations, the marital status is considered as a basis for deferment only if the registrant is presently maintaining a bona fide family relationship with a wife and child or children, provided such a relationship was entered into prior to December 8, 1941, and at a time when his induction was not imminent. Some men, married since Pearl Harbor, already have been called here.

Calling childless men will have no effect upon the present policy concerning men with collateral dependents. Men with partially dependent mothers, fathers or relatives have already been called when the man's induction didn't work a financial hardship on the dependents.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Christen Yorktown 2d

Newport News, Va., Jan. 15 (AP).—Some seven years after she christened the first aircraft carrier to bear the name Yorktown, Mrs. Roosevelt will return here Thursday to sponsor a namesake for the gallant ship sunk in the Battle of Midway.

The keel of the new carrier was laid on December 1, 1941. She was slated to carry the name Bon Homme Richard, but after the loss of the Yorktown, Secretary of Navy Knox yielded to public sentiment and gave her the same name.

Liberalization of Deferments For Farm Workers Planned

A liberalization of draft deferments for essential farm workers was agreed upon late yesterday at a conference of administrative officials with farm State Senators.

Senator Bankhead (Democrat) of Alabama, spokesman for the group, announced that selective service officials would issue a new directive to local draft boards immediately. It will make the "16-unit" formula an objective, rather than a requirement, and the boards will be granted broad power to deviate from this objective, even to the extent of deferring a producer of only eight units.

The 16-unit formula sets a standard for determining whether a farm worker should be deferred. It stipulates that an essential worker is one who tends 16 milk cows or does a comparable amount of work toward the production of livestock, poultry, grain and other products deemed essential.

The conference, in Bankhead's office, was attended by Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower Commission, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, Sam B. Bledsoe, assistant to Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard, and Dr. Sherman E. Johnson of the War Food Administration. The Senators, in addition to Bankhead, were Tydings (Democrat) of Maryland, Wheeler (Democrat) of Montana, Russell (Democrat) of Georgia, Gillette (Democrat) of Iowa, McNary (Republican) of Oregon, Thomas (Democrat) of Oklahoma and Aiken (Republican) of Vermont.

"The regulation should be helpful in halting the continuous drain on farm labor that is imperilling our food and fiber production," Bankhead told reporters. "How much it will help depends altogether upon its administration."

Under the revised regulations, local boards will be directed to classify in class 2-C or class 3-C all registrants who are considered essential on the farm under the new standards. In 2-C will be included essential farm workers without dependents and in 3-C those with dependents.

Jurors' Talk Causes Upset In Flynn Trial

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Jan. 15.—Two women jurors were accused today of having expressed opinions as to Errol Flynn's guilt or innocence, and a deputy district attorney moved for a mistrial of three counts of statutory rape against the actor.

Deputy District Attorney John Hopkins said an affidavit of Mrs. Harriet R. Ponder, a member of the Superior Court jury panel, named the women as Mrs. Lorene Boehm, wife of an industrial engineer, and Miss Elaine Forbes, secretary to a radio network executive.

Other affidavits, he declared, were submitted by two jurors who were excused from duty in the Flynn case, Mrs. Emily S. Blue and Mrs. Gussie Rowe. Mrs. Ponder, he explained, was not called in the case.

"Would Convict Him"

Mrs. Ponder's affidavit, made in the district attorney's office this morning, asserted that two weeks before Christmas Miss Forbes told her she "had to get on the Flynn jury and that she would convict him and 'we would fix him.'"

Mrs. Ponder said that before Flynn was brought to trial, Mrs. Boehm had expressed interest in seeing the actor in court and on one occasion declared:

"I am for Errol Flynn in a big way."

Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. Blue said they heard Miss Forbes express the opinion, however, that she would acquit Flynn, instead of convict him, as Mrs. Ponder declared in her affidavit.

Mrs. Blue stated that Miss Forbes had given illness as an excuse for a period of three weeks so as to avoid jury duty previous to the Flynn trial, and that she was available when Flynn's case was called.

From Master Panel

Jurors for the Flynn case were selected from a master panel, created several months ago to handle all Superior Court cases. All five women are members of that panel.

The mistrial motion went over until Monday when Judge Leslie still granted a continuance agreed to both by Deputy District Attorney Thomas Cochran and Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler.

The motion created a sensation, coming in the midst of testimony-taking. On the stand was a Hollywood entertainer—who came to court with a black wig hiding beautiful blond tresses—testifying that she heard voices behind a locked door on the night 17-year-old Betty Hansen charges the actor was intimate with her.

The witness, Lynne Boyer, was one of eight guests at the Bel-Air home of Fred McEvoy on the night of September 27.

She took the stand after a day of testimony from Miss Hansen, one of the two complaining witnesses to three statutory rape counts against Flynn.

Miss Boyer—she doffs her wig when she enters the court—made a somewhat glamorous, if nervous, picture. She was stockingless, attired in a canary yellow dress, with a yellow and white angora sweater.

Witness Annoyed

Once, during a recess, she evidently became annoyed at the approach of two spectators. Bursting into tears she muttered, "I'll jump, I'll jump," and walked toward a nearby open window in the eighth floor courtroom. She stood there, however, looking out, and a bailiff closed it as the recess ended.

Miss Boyer described the dinner at the McEvoy home, related how Miss Hansen complained of feeling ill and left the table. (It was then, Miss Hansen had testified earlier, that Flynn took her upstairs, disrobed her without objections on her part, and indulged in intimacies in a bedroom.)

After dinner, Miss Boyer continued, she went upstairs to use a telephone.

"I tried one door," she said, "but the room was dark. I tried another, but it was locked. 'May I come in', I called.

"A voice said 'You can come in if you want to, we are taking a shower.' Then I heard a laugh or a giggle."

"Did the sound of the voice bring to your mind a certain individual?"

"Yes, she replied.

"Who was it?"

"Mr. Flynn."

Earlier, Miss Hansen had reiterated under re-direct examination that she made no objections to Flynn's actions.

"Did you resist Flynn's attempt to be intimate with you in any way? Did you push him, or shove him, or ask him not to do it?" she was asked.

Her answers to both questions were negative.

Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler questioned her closely as to whether she had been promised immunity from prosecution in return for testifying against Flynn.

He read from a transcript of her testimony before a grand jury, then asked if she had told the jury that she twice had indulged in acts of perversion with other male acquaintances.

She replied that she did, added that she hoped she would not be prosecuted, but said no immunity had been promised.

The crowd outside the courtroom was the largest of the trial, which began Monday. Officers had to clear a path for witnesses to leave the courtroom and Flynn was besieged on all sides for autographs from girls and grandmothers.

Sanity Test Sought for Miss Farmer

By the Associated Press

Santa Monica, Calif., Jan. 15.—Movie Actress Frances Farmer was taken from the county jail to the psychopathic ward of the General Hospital today and a petition was filed in Superior Court asking that she be given a sanity hearing.

The petition was filed by Dr. Thomas Leonard, Alhambra (Calif.) psychiatrist, who said she told him: "I hear voices day and night and they bother me." Dr. Leonard also stated that the blonde actress feared people were "putting things in her food and drink" and this caused her to be ill and distracted.

Miss Farmer had started serving a six months' sentence for violation of probation, imposed in a drunk-driving case.

At Seattle, the actress' mother, Mrs. Lillian V. Farmer, told interviewers she was selling her West Seattle home and would go to Hollywood to help her daughter.

Mrs. Farmer said she hoped to help the former University of Washington coed "return to normal."

"Frances is suffering from her past year's experience of frustration in her career," her mother said. "She has never been happy or satisfied since she was separated from her husband (Leif Erickson) and divorced."

Mrs. Farmer said Frances had helped support her mother until October, but now the actress is "broke."

Berlin Exhorts Troops in Russia To Obey Blindly

New York, Jan. 15 (AP).—In a special broadcast intended for German troops on the Stalingrad front, the Berlin radio preached a death-and-duty sermon to Hitler's soldiers, it was disclosed today in a report to the Office of War Information.

Reference was made at least twice to soldiers "who see no sense in holding on."

"Personal wishes are of no account, the soldiers were told," OWI said. "It is up to the soldier to carry out orders in a spirit of blind and unquestioning confidence.

". . . There is a saying which has now become almost second nature to use: 'The Fuehrer knows the position and he will cope with it. It is our job to obey.'"

The objects of the Berlin broadcaster's remarks were the remnants of the 22 divisions the Russians reported they have penned in front of Stalingrad. The Germans have attempted to take in supplies to the forces by transport plane, the only avenue of communication they now have.

Birthday Balls To Be Informal

Because of the pleasure driving ban, dress for the $10 a plate banquet at the Hotel Mayflower on January 29 will be informal, the Washington committee for the celebration of the President's Birthday announced yesterday.

This decision was made by District Commissioner John Russell Young after many guests who had already purchased tickets complained that they were reluctant to ride streetcars and buses in formal attire.

It will be the first time in the history of the 11-year celebration that informal dress will be permitted.

Al Jolson will be master of ceremonies. Other notables who will appear will be Marjorie Lawrence of the Metropolitan Opera; Conrad Thibault, radio star; Roy Rogers, cowboy actor of Republic Studios; Lynn Bari and Roddy McDowell of Twentieth Century Fox Studios.

Tickets for the command performance, "The Eve of St. Mark" at the National Theater on January 24, will go on sale at the box office Tuesday.

As to how the guest movie stars who will appear at the various celebrations will be transported around the city, the OPA said yesterday no decision has been reached.

Rationing Aides

Housewives To Help Run Food Setup

By the Associated Press

Five to ten thousand American housewives will be enlisted in a couple of weeks to help the Government run food rationing according to the facts of actual housekeeping.

They will be selected, on a voluntary basis, by regular census-takers so that they will represent a cross-section of American housewives, according to regions, races, income levels, urban or rural status.

Their job will be to tell the Office of Price Administration—through the Census Bureau—what kinds of food—especially canned, dried or frozen—the people are eating.

To Be Valued by Points

Kenneth E. Stauffer, chief of OPA's processed foods section, explained in an interview that when rationing comes, some time in the next two months, the Government will have to evaluate each kind of canned, dried or frozen fruit or canned vegetable by "points"—say 8 points for a certain size can of peas. These values really will be similar to money prices.

Just as a housewife might buy a certain can of peas liberally when priced at 15 cents each, and less liberally at 18 cents, so she is expected to select her foods, to some extent, according to whether they are "cheap" or expensive" in ration points. She will have only a flat number of ration points to spend each month, according to the size of her family, and will have to budget accordingly. The actual values of items or total rations have not been determined yet.

Already Tested in 3 Cities

OPA wondered for a long time how to find out whether, for instance, 8 points is too much or too little for a can of peas. The answer, Stauffer said, was to ask the housewife, and that's what's going to be done.

The housewives who agree to do it will fill out a simple form each day itemizing their food purchases, turn in the sheets every month to a census-taker, and OPA will thus learn what family preferences of each food are at prevailing "point values." If the reports show that an unusually large quantity of peas is being bought, the point value of peas will be increased to keep housewives from stripping grocery shelves of that item. If the reports show no one is buying peas, the point value will be reduced to encourage normal buying.

The forms already have been tested on housewives in Baltimore, Md., Providence, R. I., and Greenville, S. C.

March 15 Returns Must Be Filed

be required to file his 1942 return on March 15, 1943, is erroneous.

"In all cases, that return will have to be filed and at least the first quarter payment will have to be made.

"Those filing early returns will be in no danger of being penalized. Whatever decision may be made as to future tax legislation will not affect the taxpayer's obligation to file his 1942 return as usual and pay his tax.

It was felt that a pronouncement by the heads of the two committees of Congress handling tax legislation would have maximum value.

Some 7,300,000 new taxpayers to whom income taxes are an innovation, officials felt, may have been especially misled by the publicity concerning the Ruml pay-as-you-go plan.

This plan is advocated by Beardsley Ruml, treasure of R. H. Macy Co., Inc., and chairman of the board of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. Essentially, it would provide that 1943 income tax payments should apply against 1943 incomes. Taxes payable on 1942 incomes, therefore, would be skipped.

What Master Mind Made South America Shipment, He Asks

By the Associated Press

Senator Wheeler (Democrat) of Montana made an unsuccessful attempt to learn from a Government witness yesterday the identity of what he called "the master mind" behind shipment of tires to South America from dwindling United States stocks.

The witness, Bruce Brown, assistant deputy petroleum administrator, replied the question would have to be referred to the War Production Board or some other agency.

Acting chairman of an Agriculture Subcommittee inquiring into the synetheic rubber program, Wheeler told the witness that "all we know in the Senate about what you bureaucrats are doing is what we read in the newspapers."

"I can't understand why we are shipping tires to five South American countries in view of our desperate shortage of rubber," the Montanan declared. "I don't know who in the name of God the master mind behind that strategy was."

Wheeler later told reporters the Board of Economic Welfare had approved the shipment, apparently as an advance payment on hopes for obtaining natural rubber from South America.

At one point during the hearing Senator Willis (Republican) of Indiana complained of cancellation of a projected butadiene plant at Gary, Ind., after the expenditure of $3,500,000, and added that he had been told that "a total of 60 million dollars has been spent in the Chicago area for war plants subsequently canceled."

AFL Broke Pledge In Shipyard Pacts, CIO Leader Says

Portland, Oreg., Jan. 15 (AP).—A C. I. O. leader charged today the American Federation of Labor violated pledges when it negotiated shipbuilding agreements on the West Coast.

John Green of Camden, N. J., international vice president of the C. I. O. Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, testified at the NLRB Kaiser hearing.

The C. I. O. has accused three Henry J. Kaiser shipyards in this region with unfair labor practices.

Green's testimony was frequently interrupted by heated protests by Kaiser and A. F. of L. attorneys, all of which were overruled by examiner Robert N. Denham.

Green testified the old Office of Production Management's shipbuilding stabilization committee decided in December 1940, over the C. I. O. protest, to have the A. F. of L. represent labor at meetings in which working standards were set up for Pacific Coast yards.

Both unions, Green continued, agreed to enter into no negotiations directly with shipyard workers until these standards were established. Green charged that the A. F. of L. used the standardization meeting to negotiate a coast-wide agreement with shipworkers direct.

Senate Body Debates Jurney Job Four Hours

A special committee named by Senate Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky, yesterday debated for more than four hours the question of whether Chesley W. Jurney should be continued as Senate sergeant at arms.

No agreement was reached, and members of the committee, sworn to secrecy, declined to discuss the tenor of their deliberations in even the most general terms. Senator Thomas (Democrat) of Utah, the committee chairman, emerged in an apparently angry mood, as did other committee members.

Jurney was called into the meeting on two occasions and spent a total of 2 hours and 5 minutes with the committee. Former Senator Doxey (Democrat) of Mississippi, is his most likely successor, if one is named.

Coal Strike End Urged for Monday

that he thought the men should get more money when the present contract expires in April. He said he would stand for that demand, regardless of any "Little Steel" formula on the part of the board or any other consideration that stands in their way of securing proper consideration for the service that they render or fails to take into consideration their problem of having to live.

Near the close of the hearing, he clashed with WLB labor members Van A. Bittner of the C. I. O. and Robert Watt of the A. F. L., and Public Member Wayne L. Morse, on the question of the board's jurisdiction.

At this point Public Member Frank P. Graham interrupted to state that the question "is not one of increased dues but of decreased coal to a Nation at war."

"The anthracite miners who are now on strike are directed to return to work," Board Chairman William H. Davis said, announcing the decision.

Davis pointed out that board procedure calls for the men to refrain from going out on strike, and to take up grievances through normal grievance machinery.

"I want to make that perfectly clear, gentlemen," he said. "We have a war on our hands. I am quite sure that every member of the board has been impressed by the sincerity and the patriotism and the good faith of the local officers who have appeared here and spoken to us today. We think that it is a mistake and a tragic mistake for these men to be out. We expect you to get the men back to work."

In effect, the board thus refused to consider the merits of the dispute which has kept the hard-coal miners idle for 17 days.

Three Grievances Indicated

Lewis spoke, making his first public utterance of the 17-day-old strike after leaders of striking locals in the anthracite region presented their case, outlining the following grievances:

1. A demand for a $2 increase in wages to compensate for increases in the cost of living. Lewis and Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the U. M. W., joined the strikers in branding present wages as too low.

2. A demand that a 50 cents a month increase in union dues be rescinded. The strikers made it clear that they regarded the dues increase ordered by the U. M. W.'s constitutional convention last October as the factor which blew the lid off the wage question. A number of the strike leaders told the board that they would have paid the dues willingly had they received more money.

3. Protests over overtime provisions calling for six-day operation of the mines. The strikers did not object to working six days a week, but protested having the overtime paid only for the sixth day of work, rather than for work on Saturday as such in accordance with the President's overtime order. Lewis indicated that he would seek to change the overtime provisions when the contract comes up for renewal.

Union's Strength Cited

Walter Gordon Merritt, as attorney for the operators, told the board that the anthracite industry has had a "more advanced form of industrial organization" for more than 40 years due to "political forcess and to what one of the most powerful unions in the country has been able to obtain.

Pointing out that the bargaining contract provides "ample grievance machinery," Merritt queried, "Why is it that this advanced form of industrial government has not worked?"

Lewis in his telegram to the mine locals branded the strike committee—the Tri-District General Mine Committee—as "an unauthorized, self-constituted, constitutionally illegal group."

"Each local union is hereby officially notified that this socalled committee is illegally constituted under the laws of the United Mine Workers of America and has no authority to direct any local union or any member with respect to wage matters or any policy of the United Mine Workers of America," the telegram said.

"All local unions and all members are directed to ignore orders issued by this group and are directed to remain at work in conformity with provisions of the joint wage agreement in the anthracite industry and in harmony with the laws of their union and the wartime policy of their Government.

"Local unions and members now engaged in illegal stoppage in District 1 are directed to immediately return to work. Yevchak and Shirkness (leaders of the strike) and their outlaw associates on this alleged tri-district committee, who are now engaged in this mad enterprise will be held to accountability under the laws of their own union."

Observers saw trouble ahead for the War Labor Board in Lewis' public support of wage demands by the miners since application of WLB's "Little Steel" 15 per cent formula would work to grant the miners only a 5 per cent increase. Lewis' defiance of WLB's predecessor—the National Defense Mediation Board—in the captive mine case resulted in the downfall of that board and its reconstitution as WLB.

Lewis asserted that the basic trouble in the anthracite industry has been low wages and part-time employment."

"Our mine workers in the anthracite industry cannot make enough in a week to buy Harry Hopkins an evening dinner at the Carlton Hotel on the basis to which he is accustomed, and they resent it. They resent it, and they resent the fact that this Government has been lackadaisical with respect to any progressive consideration of the problems of the anthracite industry.

The leaders of the anthracite locals who had been summoned to the hearing along with Lewis, Kennedy and representatives of the coal operators represented all shades of opinion from those who pleaded that they did their best to halt the walkout, but became engulfed in the tide to those who were bitter against Lewis for having secured the dues increase. The dues are deducted from the men's pay under a checkoff arrangement.

Others placed emphasis on the wage demands and cited figures to demonstrate the current high cost of living in mining towns.

Fred Schrader, chairman of the grievance committee of the Wilkes Barre local, stated that members of his local borrowed $100 from a storekeeper to answer the board's summons, and that the local has $1 in its treasury while "the international has over six million dollars."

Predicted Trouble

"I said at the convention that they were asking for trouble by raising the dues," he stated. "Well, it happened."

"We beg the War Labor Board to send somebody into the coal regions to get the men back to work and make a survey of the payroll records," he said. "I had $32 pay last week. The boys were just fed up and could not stand it any more. We were better off when we were working only two or three days a week instead of five."

James Curran, committeeman of the Eddy Crick (Pa.) local, stated: "We'll be damned if we will pay any more dues for all the consideration we get out of the union. I admire John L. because he doesn't back down. If we had more like him up there (in Pennsylvania) we would get more grievances settled."

Andrew Yevchak, chairman of the Langford, Pa., local and head of the Tri-District strike committee, tangled with Morse after Yevchek said that the men would not go back to work unless the board took immediate steps to grant the wage increase demand.

Morse brusquely demanded, "Does your local feel bound by the no-strike pledge for the duration of the war?"

"They do, but when their bellies start hollering, it is time for them to begin hollering," Yevchak answered.

Morse accused Yevchak of "placing a strike gun at head of the Government during war," and added, "I cannot escape the conclusion that there is imbedded in your remarks the treat that if the final decision of this board isn't satisfactory to those men, they will strike."

Yevchak agreed, saying "that is their opinion and I am giving it to you as I get it."

Later, John Buchinsky of Shenandoah, Pa., vice chairman of the strike committee, said that Yevchak had asked him to correct the impression given by his remarks, and that he wanted to assure the board of their "utmost confidence in board actions."

Flynn Inquiry Due to Start Next Week

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia from New York.

Bridges has said that Hull and Berle may find it difficult to "work up much enthusiasm" for President Roosevelt's selection of Flynn as "roving ambassador" in the Southwest Pacific. The New Hampshire Senator last night was preparing for LaGuardia's appearance by searching newspaper files for two of the mayor's public statements in which, Bridges understands, LaGuardia made invidious comparisons between Boss Flynn and notorious political overlords of the past.

Likely to Start Wednesday

Senator Connally (Democrat) of Texas, Foreign Relations Committee chairman, said last night that hearings would start "probably" Wednesday morning, the day after Flynn is due to return to Washington from Chicago, where Monday he is scheduled to resign as Democratic National Committee chairman and to witness the selection of Postmaster General Frank C. Walker as his successor.

Following yesterday's meeting of the committee, closed to reporters at the suggestion of Senator Green (Democrat) of Rhode Island, Senator Connally said that the "general matter" of Flynn's qualifications and "any related matter that touches upon his qualifications" would be investigated.

The Texan emphasized that the committee would not listen to hearsay or indirect evidence.

Would Summon Workmen

Bridges would have the committee summon as witnesses two foremen and 10 workmen who presumably attended to the laying of the Belgian courtyard at Flynn's Lake Mahopac (N. Y.) estate, allegedly at New York City expense and with blocks belonging to the city.

His list of witnesses also included the Bronx County clerk who would be asked to furnish a certified copy of Flynn's appointment of Arthur Flegenheimer, the notorious Dutch Schultz, as deputy sheriff of the Bronx; Serge Rubinstein and his brother, Andre, the former named by Bridges as having been a client of Flynn's law firm, holder of large Japanese interests and close associate of a former Jap agent.

Bridges also would have the committee summon representatives of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in connection with the Rubinstein phase of his projected inquiry, and call on Menroe Goldwater, Flynn's law partner, to testify "as to the relationship of Goldwater and Flynn to Serge Rubinstein and particularly as to the legal action involving one Guija Kassai, a member of the Japanese Diet who was in this country until a few weeks before Pearl Harbor." Bridges would like the committee to take testimony of Harry Zuker, New York lawyer, in the charge involving Rubinstein, as well as Jean Guilbert, a former employe of Rubinstein.

Others in High Places on List

LaGuardia and Berle would be asked to appear as witnesses in Bridges' charge that Flynn caused city funds to be invested in the State Title and Mortgage Co. The Senator's witness list also included former executives of the company, a former employe of the New York chamberlain's office, the Secretary of State of New York, a post held by Flynn when President Roosevelt was Governor, and the former counsel and a former member of a State investigating commission.

Others on the witness list were Herman A. Gray, chairman of the committee to reopen the Flynn (paving block) case; Sydney Baron, executive secretary to the committee; Paul J. Kern, former president of the New York Civil Service Commission; Robert Moran, former Bronx public works commissioner; Samuel J. Foley, Bronx district attorney that handled the grand jury investigations of the paving block scandal; Daniel Daly, grand jury foreman, and George H. Coburn, grand juror.

Fertilizer Assured For Victory Gardens

To encourage victory gardens, the War Production Board and the Agriculture Department assure adequate supply of fertilizer.

"Victory garden fertilizer," an announcement said yesterday, "will be available throughout the country. It will contain 3 per cent nitrogen, about 85 per cent of which is organic, together with 8 per cent of phosphoric acid and 7 per cent potash.

This fertilizer will be available for victory gardens but the agencies warned that it must not be used on the lawn, flower beds, trees or shrubs.

10 in Small Boat Missing After Ship Is Torpedoed

Miami, Fla., Jan 15.—Ten persons aboard a lifeboat were missing today as the result of an Axis U-boat attack on a small British merchant ship off the northern coast of South America, survivors reported.

The twilight attack occurred early in December. Three men were killed when a torpedo smashed into the engine room. Fifty-seven crewmen and passengers, including the 10 unaccounted for, escaped in three lifeboats before a second torpedo sent the ship to the bottom.

Two of the lifeboats were picked up later, but survivors said they had not heard word of the third boat since the day of the attack.

FCC Evidence Hit as Prelude To Cox Trial

By the Associated Press

An attorney for an Albany, Ga., radio station said yesterday that introduction of three documents into a hearing before the Federal Communications Commission constituted "an attempt to get evidence into the record at this time on which it would be hoped to base criminal prosecution" of Representative Cox (Democrat), Georgia.

The documents, two letters and a telegram from Cox to Andrew D. Ring, a former FCC engineer, were admitted by Examiner Don Harris over objections of De Lacey Allen, attorney for the Albany Herald Publishing Co. and the Albany Herald Broadcasting Co.

Allen said also the documents were an attempt to "prejudice the commission which at this time is under the likelihood, if that is the correct word, of being investigated" under a resolution introduced in Congress by Cox.

The hearing is on application of the publishing company to transfer its license for radio station WALB, at Albany, to the Herald Broadcasting Co., several of whose stockholders are identical.

Photostatic copies of the brief communications, received by Ring in the latter part of 1940, represented the Georgia Congressman as interested in an application of the Herald Publishing Co. and requesting Ring's assistance in obtaining a speedy hearing.

Previously, testimony had been received that Cox, named by commission counsel Marcus Cohn as a stockholder of the Herald Broadcasting Co., had received $2500 for legal services in connection with applications before the commission.

Allen has told the commission Cox's services were legal and ethical. Under Federal statute, a member of Congress is not permitted to practice before an agency of the Federal Government.

Cohn, in asking that Allen's objections be overruled, denied the Georgia attorney's contentions and said the commission could not legally institute criminal proceedings.

He said copies of the documents were in the commission's confidential folder on the Albany station, WALB, and there was little difference in inserting them in the record of the proceedings.

In overruling Allen's objections, Examiner Harris said he could not agree they were irrelevant or immaterial and could not see how they could have "any effect whatsoever on any possible prosecution of Congressman Cox."

Ring, now a consulting radio engineer in Washington, said the communications from Cox were "not out of line" with some others he had received from Senators and Representatives while assistant chief engineer of the commission's broadcast division.

"I would not say they were out of line with other requests by me," the engineer testified, "but I do say that they did ask of me things I could not deliver."

Ring said he had received similar communications from members of Congress while he was with the commission, "frequently, too frequently."

District Police Official Pines For Lost Setter

Lost: One medium red Irish setter by the name of Jimmy belonging to Metropolitan Police Inspector Clarence Talley, who lives in nearby Virginia.

Jimmy, 15 months old, has been missing since last Friday. Inspector Talley received him as a gift when he was only four weeks old and weighed but 7 pounds.

Describing Jimmy as "very affectionate," Inspector Talley said, "he probably followed someone home."

The name and telephone number are on the dog's collar so if you've seen Jimmy, call Inspector Talley at WOodley 5563 because he misses his pal "very much."

McNutt Stresses Need for Nurses

The need for nurses has become so urgent that 65,000 young women must enter schools of nursing between June 30, 1943, and July 1, 1944, if even minimum civilian and military demands are to be met, Paul V. McNutt, director of defense health and welfare services, announced yesterday. This exceeds the 1942-1943 quota by 10,000.

Federal and private scholarships for nursing education are available, and details may be obtained from the National Committee on recruitment of Student Nurses, 1790 Broadway, New York City.

preciably expand the allocations.

Officials of several of the oil companies were understod to be in New York yesterday appearing before the distribution and supply committee in their effort to have their allotments adjusted.

Coal merchants here are making every possible effort to supply their customers with fuel and customers should refrain from ordering until coal is actually needed and not duplicate orders with more than one firm, Edward D. Shaw, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, declared meanwhile at a meeting in the Willard Hotel.

Shaw urged that customers arrange with neighborhood boys to stow away the coal so as to relieve somewhat the strain on the manpower here. He asked that customers not make telephone calls unnecessarily.

Victory Sidelights

Bombers, Explosions to Make Next Air-Raid Test Realistic

Washington's next air-raid test may be accompanied by circling Army bombers and ground explosions of carefully placed incendiary bombs—if planes and ammunition are available from the Army stores, Defense Coordinator John Russell Young announced last night.

These imaginative touches to the now familiar blackout are to be added by instruction of the Army, which feels that air-raid tests should be as realistic as possible short of actual demolition. The orders were relayed to Young by the Washington military command, which had received them from Lieut. Gen. Hugh Drum, commanding officer of the Eastern Defense Command.

Because of the demoralizing shock such a test coming without warning might have upon the public, the local defense organization stated that if the necessary stage props were to be had, the next test would be announced two or three days in advance.

Roosevelt to Get War Poster Proofs

The first proofs of the four prize-winning posters from the National War Poster Competition will be presented to President Roosevelt, through his Military Aide Maj. Gen. Edwin Watson, today at 11 a. m. in the White House, it was announced yesterday.

J. Scott Williams and Irwin Homan, representing Artists for Victory, will present the posters, the themes for which were selected from President Roosevelt's message on the State of the Union of January 6, 1942.

Some 300 posters out of more than 2000 received in the competition will go on exhibition tomorrow for a month at the National Gallery of Art.

Mount Pleasant Salvage Drive

The Mount Pleasant area will conduct a salvage drive with cooperation of the District of Columbia Salvage Committee tomorrow, it was announced last night by Mrs. Doris D. Rafler, civilian mobilization chairman for that area. This one day drive is for the Mount Pleasant area only and all scrap should be deposited along the side. Center was announced by J. Clifford Folger, chapter chairman, yesterday. Recently appointed exwalk in front of each donor's home. Trucks will cover this area between 10:30 a. m. and 4 p. m. on that day. For additional information call Mrs. Rafler at HObart 4113.

Miss Russell, Blood Donor Chief, Resigns

Resignation of Miss Marjorie Gibbs Russell from chairmanship of the District Red Cross Blood Donor ecutive secretary of the management and labor policy committee of the War Manpower Commission, Miss Russell has found it necessary to devote most of her time to her new position.

A pioneer leader in blood donor work here, Miss Russell assisted in founding of the local center and was named chairman when it opened two years ago. She was among the first to donate blood to the plasma bank.

Friendship Area Blood Donor Drive

Plans have been made by the Friendship Area Civilian Mobilization Committee for a blood donor campaign throughout Friendship Heights with Mrs. James Blythe and Mrs. Fred Nelson acting as cochairmen of the campaign.

The committee met at the home of Leonard Tucker, president of the Civilian Defense Council of the District.

'Block Leaders' OCD Workers Name

Official name for the Victory Volunteers will be "Block Leaders" and their organization will be known as the "Block Leader Corps," Conrad Van Hyning of the civilian mobilization division, OCD, announced yesterday. The change has been made for closer conformance with the block plan as devised by the Federal OCD.

Seven thousand more women are needed to complete the block organization here, it was announced.

5 Darlan Killing Suspects Released

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 15 (AP).—Five of the original 12 arrested in connection with the assassination of Admiral Jean Darlan were reported reliably today to have been released. One was rearrested immediately.

Those released were described variously as De Gaullists, Royalists, Darlanists and some who professed loyalty to all simultaneously.

Woman, 3 Men Die in Chair in South Carolina

By the Associated Press

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 15.—A chunky, grim-faced woman, the first of her sex to be electrocuted by this State, went calmly to her death today in a triple execution climaxing a three-year-old feud that grew out of an argument over a $20 yearling calf. Two somber-visaged men died with her at the State penitentiary.

All were convicted of the murder of an Edgefield County farmer, Davis W. Timmerman, in the feud that led to eight violent deaths, including the three inflicted by the State.

Mrs. Sue Logue, 43-year-old former county school teacher; her farmer brother-in-law, George Logue, 55, and Clarence Bagwell, 34, Spartanburg and Brevard (N. C.) road house operator, died without show of emotion in the electric chair shortly after 6 a. m.

Ready to Die

The brunette Mrs. Logue displayed stoic indifference as she padded slowly into the death chamber in stockinged feet. A turbaned towel covered her shaven head and she carried a Bible.

A lace-edged handkerchief—a gesture to femininity—protruded from the pocket of an open-necked white blouse. She wore gray slacks, purchased yesterday at her direction for the occasion. Her ring glittered in the house of death.

"No, sir; I'm ready to die," she said in clipped tones when she was asked if she had anything to say. She handed the Bible to Prison Physician W. M. Cheatham as attendants strapped her to the chair.

A moment later 2300 volts of electricity ended the life of the woman whom the prosecution termed the "brain" behind the "planned" hired killing.

Mrs. Logue, her brother-in-law and Bagwell spent last night in the death house singing and playing electric recordings of hymns. Bagwell "slept a little; Mrs. Logue seemed to be facing it calmly," Chaplain W. M. Smith, who spent the night in the death house said.

Their electrcutions stemmed from a neighbors' feud that went back to the time Mrs. Logue was a teacher in a rural school of which Timmerman was a trustee.

The prosecution charged Bagwell with agreeing to do the killing of Timmerman in September, 1941, for $500, after Timmerman had been acquitted of the death of Wallace Logue, husband of Sue Logue. Logue and Timmerman had had an altercation over a calf.

Shortly after Timmerman's death, Sheriff Ward Day Allen and his deputy W. L. (Doc) Clark, both of Edgefield County, and Fred Dorn, sharecropper, lost their lives in a burst of gunfire at the Logue farm, where the officers had attempted to serve warrants on the Logues.

NOT LIKE A DUCK'S BACK—George M. Dixon (left) wears one of the 600 "turn out" coats purchased with $5600 of OCD funds for auxiliary firemen. The new coats fail to turn any more water than an overall jumper, according to auxiliaries who wore them in the snowstorm Sunday at the bombing demonstration at Catholic University Stadium. J. W. Mealis wears the tried-and-true type of firemen's coat on the mobile pumps of the District department, if suitable couplings could be obtained.

The skidder pumps that also stand idly and uselessly in the Wisconsin Avenue and M Street firehouse, are all equipped with shiny new 6-cylinder Chrysler motors, complete with batteries and self-starters.

Each pump is capable of pumping 500 gallons of water a minute and is the same type as issued to the Army.

Each of the heavy pumps is mounted on runners, or skids, like a sled, but would require considerable power to move one through the streets. Should it be decided to mount one on a truck, from which it could operate easily—if suction sleeves to connect with District hydrants were available—it would require a crane to lift it to the truck body.

The 600 coats bought with OCD funds for the auxiliary are made of material apparently identical with that used for overalls and overall jumpers. They were bought under specifications which required that they be water repellant. But auxiliary firemen who wore them in the snowstorm Sunday at the bombing demonstration at Catholic University stadium, all reported they failed to turn water.

The Federation of Citizens Associations will have before it tonight a resolution asking that this equipment be made capable of use, according to a resolution the Police and Fire Protection Committee has prepared.

Food Agency Chief Quits in Dispute

tor of the Office of Agricultural War Relations, to be deputy director.

(In accordance with the executive order of December 6 naming Wickard as food administrator, all food production agencies in the Department of Agriculture were to be merged in the food production division. Parisius was appointed to the job of food production director shortly after December 6. He formerly was associate director of the Office of Agricultural War Relations.)

Parisius issued the following statement after submitting his resignation:

Held Vital to Victory

"I hope Governor Townsend can find a way to convert American agriculture to an all-out war basis and do the food production job. Each day makes it more vital to victory and a decent peace.

"To do so, he will have to set up an all-purpose agency of credit, procurement, and supervision. It must be an ammunition dump from which the farmers of America can be quickly supplied with money for machinery, feed, seed, fertilizer, and manpower necessary to get not only the announced 1943 food production goals, but at least 20 per cent more.

"To accept announced 1943 food shortages as inevitable is to aid the defeatists and those who would welcome a negotiated peace. Irreplaceable and priceless weeks have been wasted in indecision. Only a few weeks are left. Governor Townsend can pass this miracle of a 20 per cent increase this crop year, weather permitting, if he will exclude from his organization those money lenders who look with two glass eyes at the working farmers needing help to do his full share in the war.

"One billion dollars are available to do the food production job. Food is ammunition. It is more precious than dollars. The farmers of America are waiting. They have been waiting for weeks. The fast-dwindling margin of days is still on the side of Governor Townsend and Food Administrator Wickard if they act quickly."

Row Holds Up Dies Report On Axis Front

By William F. Arbogast

Associated Press Staff Writer

Publication of a voluminous report on Axis-front activities in the United States, it was learned authoritatively yesterday, is being held up by the Dies Committee because of inability of members to agree on inclusion of a complimentary reference to the Roosevelt Administration.

Representative Voorhis (Democrat) of California, a member, criticized the committee on the House floor this week for not having released the report, which he said would have been of great aid in putting the public on guard against subversive activities.

The Administration reference, a committee member disclosed, was written for insertion in the foreword of the report but was objected to by other members.

"See No Reason"

"We could see no reason why our committee, which certainly isn't loved any too much by the Administration, should go out of its way to write a New Deal eulogy in a report of this nature," said the member, who asked to remain anonymous.

He predicted, however, that the differences within the committee would be straightened out shortly and the report released, minus the suggested complimentary paragraph.

Chairman Dies (Democrat), Texas, disclosed, meanwhile, that the House would be asked to continue the life of the committee for another year and to appropriate $60,000 for its operation.

Officially the committee, set up in 1938 to investigate un-American activities, ceased to exist last January 3, when its latest authorization and appropriation expired, but there was little doubt that it would be given a new lease.

50 Per Cent Decrease

The decision to seek only $60,000, a decrease of approximately 50 per cent from last year's appropriation, is in line with Dies' announced determination to demand 50 per cent cuts in all Government expenditures not directly connected with the war.

The reduced fund, Dies said, would enable the committee to retain about three top-flight investigators to keep up to date the committee's voluminous files which Dies said would continue to be made available to Federal law-enforcement agencies.

For the duration, he explained, the committee will conduct no public hearings because they might result in disclosures which would interfere with the operations of other Government agencies.

W.C.T.U. Official Sees Return of Prohibition

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 15 (AP).—The National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which will observe the twenty-third anniversary of the effective date of prohibition tomorrow, professes to be confident that its return "is just a matter of time."

"Public demand is increasing that the waste of the liquor traffic be stopped," said Lilly Grace Matheson, national secretary.

Sourwine Made McCarran Aide

The appointment of Julien G. Sourwine, 34-year-old local attorney and former newspaper correspondent, as new municipal counsel for the Senate District Committee was announced yesterday by Chairman McCarran.

Sourwine will take the place formerly held by Renah F. Camalier, who resigned on October 15 to enter private practice. The job has been temporarily filled in the interim by Calvin M. Cory of McCarran's staff.

A resident of Washington for 15 years, Sourwine is a graduate of National University Law School and has been a member of the District bar since 1936 with the firm of Heiney & Sourwine.

He was born in Reno, Nev., and is the son of Maj. James A. Sourwine, United States Army, retired. He is the grandson of the late Thomas V. Julien, former justice of the Nevada Supreme Court, and the son-in-law of former Representative C. C. Gillen of Indiana.

Five Die in Bomber Crash

Shreveport, La., Jan. 15 (AP).—Five men were burned to death early tonight when a medium bomber crashed on the take-off at Barksdale Field near here. Two enlisted men, both believed to have been in the tail positions on the bomber, escaped unhurt.

Housing Center Aids Lawgivers

Just like newly arrived war workers, more than 20 Congressmen and members of their staffs have turned to the War Housing Center to find them places to live, Marvin M. Wire, housing director, said yesterday.

"Among those placed," Wire said, "were Representative Harris Ellsworth (Republican) of Oregon, Representative J. Glenn Beall (Republican) of Maryland and Representative Charles E. McKenzie (Democrat) of Louisiana."

Wire pointed out that the job of his office was to find a place for warworkers and others to live.

"Use of these facilities by Congressmen and their staffs is, of course, quite appropriate," he pointed out, "for they are indispensable warworkers." In short, both Congressmen and their staffs measure up practically 100 per cent to the in-migrancy and indispensability tests of warworker status for housing purposes."

However, a distinction is made, he said, between Congressmen and their staffs. Staff members are eligible for public as well as private war housing in Washington, provided only that their incomes are below the ceilings set for such housing. Congressmen are eligible only for private housing, including both war housing projects under FHA insured mortgages, and accommodations made available through regular private channels.

Crowds Irk Congressmen

Capital officialdom is about to squelch a hitherto unrevealed invasion by the bureaucrats of one of the House Representatives' most fundamental prerogatives.

The departmental boys, it was learned yesterday, have been currently crowdin the Congressmen right out of their own dining room.

Diners in the House restaurant—supposedly restricted to legislators and their guests, staff members and Capitol employes, and the press—had noticed recently that the place was becoming uncommonly crowded during the lunch hour. Often it was impossible for even irate Congressmen to get a table.

Yesterday Capitol Architech David Lynn, matre d'hotel of the Capitol refectories, disclosed the over-crowding was being caused by an influx of Federal jobholders from neighboring offices.

Attracted by comparatively low prices and good meals—at which free rolls and butter are thrown in even with a bowl of soup—they had been brazenly helping themselves to the Congressmen's lunch tables.

From now on, Lynn said, the following steps will be taken:

(1) Big signs will be significantly posted calling attention to the restricted clientele which is entitled to use the dining rooms.

(2) Guards will be posted to keep out the "riff-raff" without proper credentials.

Suicide Verdict Draws Protest

A post-mortem examination of Murray B. Stroud, 18, Wilson High School senior, was performed at the Morgue yesterday afternoon, six hours after the body was released to an undertaker and a certificate of death by suicide issued.

Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy ordered the body removed from the Hines Funeral Home to the Morgue following a protest by William E. Stroud, the youth's father, chief of the Reconstruction Finance Corp., examining division.

Results of chemical analysis were not available last night. Dr. Murphy, however, said the suicide certificate, which he signed shortly after 8 a. m., was still in effect.

The boy, described as a brilliant student and skilled in mechanics, was found unconscious in his bed about 7:30 a. m. by his father. An empty bottle of cleaning fluid was by his side.

Stroud summoned Dr. Emmett G. Coiner, 2700 Connecticut Avenue Northwest. He pronounced the boy dead at 8 a. m.

Detective Sergt. Walter Perry of the homicide squad said he was told by Murray's family that the boy had been depressed following a physical examination which disclosed a weak heart, preventing him from joining the air force of one of the military services.

Smithsonian Helps Win War

Every branch of activity in the Smithsonian Institution that could possibly be used for war work has been converted and considerable valuable information constantly is being supplied the various Government agencies, Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary, reported to the board of regents yesterday at the annual meeting.

Dr. Abbot disclosed that the Institution's laboratories and instrument shops were working nearly full time on war projects; its anthropologists are devoting practically all their time to supplying war important data and its geologists, engineers and biologists are doing the same.

Also, he reported, the institution is engaged in several large scientific projects in the field of Latin-American cooperation.

Visitors to the museum for the last fiscal year numbered a little over two million, while accessions to the museum totaled 284,582 specimens. Irreplaceable material and type specimens of animals and plants have been removed to safe places, he revealed.

The first full year's record for the National Gallery of Art showed a total of 2,005,000 visitors.

Members of the board attending the meeting were:

Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone, chancellor of the institution; Vice President Henry A. Wallace, Representative Clarence Cannon, Representative Foster Stearns, and Representative Edward E. Cox, and citizens regents Frederic A. Delano of Washington, Dr. Roland S. Morris of Pennsylvania, Dr. Harvey N. Davis of New Jersey, Dr. Arthur H. Compton of Illinois, and Dr. Vannevar Bush of Washington, D. C.

District Committee

Everyone concerned with District legislative problems this year will be delighted to learn that Representative Randolph will remain chairman of the House District Committee, with Representative Dirksen as its ranking minority member. Both of these legislators have been associated with the committee for many years. They are among the few men in the House who take a deep interest in Washington's affairs. Both assume a nonpartisan attitude toward local problems. It is a piece of good fortune for the city that they will again be carrying the chief burden of getting District legislation through the House.

This continuity of leadership, however, should create no illusions as to the plight of the committee as a whole. It is certain to be composed chiefly of new members. Indications are that when the new committee assignments are made no more than four of the Democratic members who have had experience with local legislation will remain on the District Committee. We are delighted to learn that a special effort is being made to assign to the committee new members of the House who are experienced in municipal affairs. That is a gain of incalculable importance. The fact remains nonetheless that these new members will be unfamiliar with Washington and its problems. At least a year or two will be required for them to get acquainted with the hodgepodge District government and its institutions. And by that time most of them will be moving on to other committees more directly associated with the interests of their constituents.

We think that the committee leaders are wise in suggesting a reduction in its membership to 15. Certainly its chairman would not then be so frequently frustrated by his inability to obtain a quorum. What the committee needs most of all, of course, is a representative from the District of Columbia. Even a voteless delegate elected by the local community as its spokesman would be of invaluable aid in keeping a committee of new members informed and in doing the routine work of representing the District. If there is any one group which should be enthusiastic about the District delegate bill soon to be introduced, it is the members of the District Committee.

Transatlantic 'Sniping'

When Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower arrived in French North Africa at the head of a combined American and British expeditionary force, he had carte blanche from both President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to take what action he saw fit to advance the Allied cause. There is no evidence that the British government has ever regretted or shown any inclination to withdraw this grant of authority. This point was emphasized by Brendan Bracken, the British Minister of Information, this week when he said: "The British government has given General Eisenhower the power of attorney and will support him unquestioningly whatever he does."

This does not mean, and Mr. Bracken did not say, that no differences of opinion exist between Britain and America regarding North Africa. It would be surprising if there was complete agreement. Differences do exist, and they point up the fact that there is still a deplorable lack of coordination among the Allies regarding many aspects having to do with the conduct of the war, particularly in the nonmilitary sphere. But this lack of coordination in the international sphere is only a counterpart of a similar lack of coordination which exists within the United States as within Britain. Without a doubt, departments right here in Washington, even groups within particular departments, are at loggerheads over North African policy. Certainly the War Department cannot be very happy over Mr. Murphy's management of civilian affairs in North Africa. Murphy had six weeks in which to "use" a pliable Darlan in getting rid of Vichy influence in North African administration. He didn't act, and now Eisenhower is plagued by problems which might not have arisen if there had been more vigor and less appeasement in Murphy's policy.

Moreover, neither American nor British public opinion as expressed in the newspaper is entirely satisfied with our handling of the North African situation. To be sure, criticism in the British press has been sharper and more persistent. This has given rise to the charge that Britain is "sniping" at the United States. It is a foolish charge. Since Britain is still a democracy, public opinion continues to express itself, even when such expressions embarrass the authorities, and seem to create some friction between the two countries. Actually Americans should be the last to complain of such free speech, since we have never been loath to indulge in it, whether the subject was India or Britain's military efforts or the Beveridge plan.

Behind The Strike

There can be only one outcome to the unauthorized strike of anthracite miners. In compliance with the WLB order of last night, the men must go back to work. Idle mines while the Nation is at war and people are shivering because of fuel shortages simply cannot be tolerated. So the Government must break the strike in one way or another and bring about a full resumption of mining operations without further delay. That much is clear beyond any rational challenge.

But this revolt against the United Mine Workers of America should also be recognized for what it is—a distress signal. The strike involving upward of 18,000 men began as a result of a boost in union dues from $1 to $1.50 a month. Wage increases have since been added to the revolting miners' demands. But the real issue appears to be dictatorship within the U. M. W. In reply to the War Labor Board's demand for an explanation of this wartime strike, one union leader declared that the miners are fighting dictatorship at home while their sons fight dictatorship abroad. That explanation in no way justifies the strike. It does, however, sound a warning against abuses within the labor movement which now seem to have the stamp of Government approval.

The ugly fact underlying this situation is that the miners have lost their power of reforming their union from within. Once they could have resigned if dues were raised too high or if they couldn't tolerate the policies of the union leadership. Now the check-off deducts dues from their salaries whether they like it or not, and they can't resign without losing their jobs. Disgruntled miners can make their influence felt only by the spectacular gesture of a wartime strike.

What is true in the mines, of course, is true in most other industries. In effect the Government has forced thousands of warworkers into unions, without regard for their wishes in the matter, and then has utterly failed to require operation of the unions in the interests of their members. Why did John L. Lewis raise miners' dues? Is he preparing to make another $500,000 political campaign contribution, as he did in 1936? It is a gross encroachment upon the rights of workmen to force them to pay dues into a treasury which is at the disposal of union leaders, dictators, or racketeers, who are not required to make an accounting for their stewardship.

Some of the keenest students of the labor movement are deeply concerned over the outcome of governmental policies that herd men into unions and assume no responsibility for democratic control or even honest management of those unions. William M. Leiserson of the NLRB recently decried the tendency of unions to look to the Government for achievement of those aims that should come through collective bargaining. The fact that unions have abandoned the right to strike gives the Government a great obligation to uphold their rights in wartime. But that does not dispose of Dr. Leiserson's incisive warning. "Organized labor," he says, "now moves in a vicious circle; as it resorts more and more to political action to achieve its objectives, it tends to divide its members and to disrupt its organization; then it must appeal to Government to use its coercive powers to force workers into the unions or to prevent members from resigning." Any labor movement that comes to lean heavily on Government favor and coercive devices is indeed built on quicksand.

Congress rather than the WLB ought to be delving to the bottom of this larger problem as a means of preventing widespread unrest among warworkers. It is not enough to stop outlaw strikes. So far as practicable, legitimate grievances ought to be eliminated. This is one of the biggest jobs looming up ahead of the Seventy-eighth Congress.

Petrillo's Progress

Some time ago we suggested that about all that was necessary in the case of Mr. Jimmy Petrillo was to let him have all the rope he wanted—which, of course, was a good deal more than a wiser man would have thought of asking for. It appears that we were right. Mr. Petrillo's enemies are still as numerous, but still as timorous, as ever. Nobody yet has actually and openly challenged his right to suppress anything that he feels like suppressing. But in the course of his recent testimony before the Senate subcommittee, Mr. Petrillo made several damaging admissions. He admitted, for one thing, that his motives were neither so pure nor so lofty as they have been made out. All this business, for instance, about "technological unemployment," union musicians being driven to breadlines and poorhouses by soulless mechanical contrivances like jukeboxes, and all that, was so much mullarkey.

Of course, Mr. Petrillo is down on jukeboxes and phonograph records, as such. All he wanted was simply a larger cut in the profits for the musicians employed in the bands which make these records. The point here is not so much that the boys who are not enough to play with these bands rarely lack employment, but that they comprise a decided minority of the membership of Mr. Petrillo's union. How that will go down with the smaller dues-paying fry who have been fondly looking forward to regular evening engagements at Nick the Greek's and regular lunchtime engagements at Ye Olde Eat Shoppe, we don't know, but we have a vague idea it won't go down so well.

Possibly, Mr. Petrillo may brazen himself out of that one when he is next called upon to face the A. F. of M. convention. But, in his testimony on Wednesday, he made an admission far more serious. Speaking about a contract in Chicago under which a union musician was paid $90 a week for turning over records on a phonograph Mr. Petrillo said, "In that case I made a mistake." Mr. Petrillo must have felt like biting off his tongue after such an admission. It is bad enough when a dictator admits, as Mr. Petrillo did, that he is not an angel, but when he confesses a mistake—that is well nigh fatal. No wonder he is now ready and even eager to negotiate with almost anybody about anything.

Flynn Case

Either Mr. Ernest Lindley had to hold his nose or he was ignorant of the facts when he paid his tender little tribute to Eddie Flynn in our columns yesterday. We prefer to think that in his anxiety to whitewash an old associate of early New Deal days he forgot to look up the record. This, however, will be available to the Senate: the naming of the notorious Dutch Schultz as deputy sheriff when Mr. Flynn himself was Bronx County sheriff, Mr. Flynn's juggling with trust funds when he was city chamberlain, the paving of his country estate with city blocks when he was Democratic leader. These matters account for the "hue and cry" which causes so much distress to Mr. Lindley.

Take, for instance, Mr. Flynn's spell as the city chamberlain for New York. The retiring chairman of the Democratic National Committee held this office from 1926 until January 1, 1929. Among other things, the city chamberlain is the trustee for wards of the court, and from time to time is given moneys to invest for them. Sometimes the investment is specified, sometimes not. But the practice of the city chamberlain till Mr. Flynn got the job was to keep the money either in cash or in the things nearest to cash, namely, city stock, State stock and Government bonds.

Mr. Flynn changed this practice. According to evidence of employes in the city chamberlain's office before the Moreland Commissioner in 1935, Mr. Flynn, after he took up the office, wanted to know why so much money was left uninvested in cash. It was explained to him that the interest earned by the moneys in the bank amounted to just as much as the interest on the usual gilt-edged investments. Mr. Flynn then instructed that the cash be invested in the guaranteed mortgages issued by the State Title & Mortgage Co. The justification was the high interest rate.

This was highly irregular practice. But what was much worse was the flagrant neglect to examine the stuff bought from State Title. Evidence introduced before the Moreland Commissioner in 1935 showed that $176,500 of the guaranteed mortgages sold to the city chamberlain by State Title was actually in default when sold, and that of the guaranteed mortgage certificates purchased by the city chamberlain $473,000 was against mortgages actually in default at the time of sale. Adolf A. Berle, when he took over the office, was so appalled by the conditions left with him from the Flynn regime that he felt compelled to report the matter at once to Mayor LaGuardia. He stated that the city chamberlain held guaranteed mortgages purchased from the State Title & Mortgage Co. to the amount of $1,235,545, of which $1,169,845 was then in default, and guaranteed mortgage certificates purchased from State Title to the amount of $890,100, all of which was then in default. Of course, such a situation could not be disguised from the courts when payments had to be made to the wards. But Mr. Flynn avoided disclosure by a neat device. Whenever cash had to be paid on a fund invested in defaulted securities, another fund which had cash was raided. In other words, Mr. Flynn shifted the insolvency down the line.

How many innocent people suffered from Mr. Flynn's flagrant betrayal of trust, we do not know. Nor do we know much about Mr. Flynn's relations with State Title except as a good customer with trust funds. Evidently he had had visits from the president of State Title some time before these purchases, and in 1929 Mr. Flynn's law firm became attorneys for that company. These facts certainly don't take any smudge off Mr. Flynn's record. Mr. Lindley excuses Mr. Flynn in the paving of his estate with city blocks on the grounds that somebody was trying to do something nice for "the boss." It would seem, however, that Mr. Flynn is in the habit himself of doing kindnesses with somebody else's property. If his record of trust fund juggling introduces "no vital question of policy," in Mr. Lindley's language, that is simply dismissing the dignity of this country and the reputation of candidates for public office as of no account. The American people will not agree, nor, we hope, will the Senate.

A FATHER'S ADVICE BEFORE BATTLE

Go swiftly, son. There is no time for grief
Or soft and futile words. Let your breast quicken
With savage pride; go storm the bloody fight
Though anguish follow and the soul be stricken.
Stand strong with courage even though your heart
Be slowly twisted and your spirit shaken.
Fight till the last barbaric chain is loosed.
Fight till the last long stolen mile is taken.

Air Travel Costs Cut

By Virginia Prewett

Part Of A Big Story

BEHIND the announcement this week that the Pan American Airways System will cut the cost of international air travel in the New World by 10 per cent is one of the most significant air stories of the war. It is the story of the way American commercial aviation has met the emergency that has become acute in the Western Hemisphere since war has taken all but a very minimum of ships to other shipping lanes.

This story is in reality chapter 2 in one of the biggest stories of the air era—the history of commercial aviation in Latin America.

The first chapter, the story of the struggle between American and European, chiefly German, air interests for hemisphere skyways, goes back to the early days of commercial aviation. The Germans were first on the ground in Latin America, with Scadta, started in Colombia in 1920. In 1925, they formed a company in Bolivia and went into Brazil the next year. In 1928 the company that was to become Pan American Airways was pushing a line down to Caribbean capitals. By 1930, this line had been extended around the hump of South America and down to Buenos Aires. At that early date a difference in the approach of the American and the German air companies was discernible. The Americans were creating an internation air main line. The Germans were building separate systems within Latin-American countries.

Nazis Played Politics

Through the 1930's the Germans spread wider and deeper within Mexico, Brazil, Bolivia, Colombia and Ecuador, and the Nazis began to use their air position as a weapon in their politico-economic attack. When war broke out in Europe in 1939, the Pan American Airways System, composed of Pan American Airways on the East Coast of South America and Pan American-Grace Airways on the West, had completed the international air main line linking the American republics, but approximately two-thirds of the commercial airlines in all Latin America were in other hands, mostly German. After war broke, it became obvious that the Germans were using their airlines for military purposes. Colombia discovered that Scadta pilots were photographing her coasts, dangerously near the Panama Canal. Brazil found that Germans pilots were watching Allied shipping and naval movements off her coasts. German, Italian and Spanish organizers, spies and propagandists were being funneled throughout all Latin America over German-controlled lines.

When this threat was clearly established, the American republics began to act together to counter it. In doing so, heavy calls were made on the resources of aviation experience within the American international system. Latin-American national interests and these American companies began to set up airlines to replace or compete with German systems. American equipment was used and American personnel was employed until Latin-American personnel could be trained. This plan had worked successfully in Mexico before the start of the war in Europe and has been put into operation since 1939 in Colombia, Brazil, Bolivia and Ecuador. This has constituted, in effect, a cooperative drive by the American republics to recapture control of an important economic activity that had got into unfriendly hands.

Since December 7, 1941, three factors have thrown a tremendous load on commercial aviation in Latin America. The remaining enemy-controlled airlines have been forced out and the American international system, with associated Latin-American national systems, have had to fill their place. Second, the shipping shortage combined with a much greater interdependence for supplies has tremendously increased air traffic. Third, war demands for fighter and cargo planes are strictly limiting the new equipment that the airlines can get.

Services Increased

In spite of this, both the services and the system in Latin America have been greatly increased within the past year. Passenger planes have been converted into cargo carriers, and freight traffic for both the West and the East Coasts of South America has increased 1000 per cent. Trips between key points have been increased. For instance, Panagra has increased trips down the West Coast from four to seven weekly and Panair now has 10 trips to Rio a week as compared with seven formerly. Trips to San Juan de Puerto Rico, where a special emergency situation exists, have been increased from 11 to 17 weekly. Flying time between important cities has been reduced and there are new services. For example, formerly there was one transcontinental hop across South America from Buenos Aires to Santiago de Chile. Today there are three more—a line from Buenos Aires to Antofagasta, Chile, one from Buenos Aires to Lima via Bolivia and another from Lima across Bolivia and across Brazil to the city of Sao Paulo. All this increased efficiency in operation is making it possible to reduce fares 10 per cent.

The pattern that is forming is clear. American commercial aviation, operating internationally, is shrinking the vast distances that divide the American republics. In partnership with Latin-American interests, they are shrinking distances within countries and opening up new regions. It is easy enough to understand the value of this service in the war emergency. But at the same time a long-term purpose is being served. Control of hemisphere skyways is being consolidated in American and Latin-American hands. The lessons of the German penetration are enough to show that this is desirable not only for commercial but also for security reasons in the future.

North African Mess

By Barnet Nover

Time For A House Cleaning

THE STATEMENTS regarding the North African situation made by Brendan Bracken, the British Minister of Information, and by Harold MacMillan, the British Minister for North and West Africa, this week should help clear the air of long accumulated and poisonous misunderstandings regarding recent developments in that area.

NOVEL

Mr. Bracken declared categorically that "the British government gave power of attorney to General Eisenhower (Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied Commander in Chief in North Africa), has the greatest possible confidence in him and is backing him to the utmost."

He further stated that "neither the British nor the American Government is backing any particular candidate for leadership of the French. The British Foreign Office is not backing De Gaulle and the Washington State Department is not backing General Giraud."

FOR HIS PART Mr. MacMillan expressed the earnest hope that a meeting between General de Gaulle and General Giraud will soon take place. In such a meeting he saw the solution of the present tangled political situation in North Africa.

But Mr. MacMillan also made it clear that one result of any arrangement made between the Fighting French leader and the high commissioner must be a house cleaning of pro-Fascist elements in North Africa and the abolition of Vichy laws and the elimination of Vichy practices which made North Africa, in the years following the Franco-German armistice, the ideological extension of the Third Reich.

MR. MACMILLAN put his finger on the reason why there has been so much dissatisfaction in Britain, America and North Africa itself with the present state of affairs when he declared that the British and American people would not accept a continuance of present abuses under the French "provisional government."

The trouble has been that while the Anglo-American forces arrived in Morocco and Algeria as an army of liberation the first effect of our arrival was to freeze the status quo. This meant, in effect, the continuation of the Vichy regime, Vichy laws and Vichy practices in North Africa except insofar as all these could be modified through the exercise of suasion on the French bureaucrats who were left in control of the regime.

THAT THE DEAL made with Admiral Darlan had full military justification is incontestable. General Eisenhower did the right thing in using what instruments were available to stop the fighting and not bothering to examine the uses to which these instruments had been put in the past. Speed was of the essence and General Eisenhower acted with dispatch.

General Eisenhower's primary task was to get on with the war. But war, modern war, is a political as well as a military activity. The political situation in North Africa could not be ignored without hampering military efforts. Moreover, North Africa came to be regarded, and with reason, as a laboratory test of our statesmanship, no less than of our military prowess. In that political test we have, unfortunately, not come off any too well.

DURING THE SIX weeks that intervened between the time he assumed the post of high commissioner until the time of his death at the hands of an assassin Admiral Darlan gave evidence of being completely amenable to American desires. It does not appear, however, that this attitude on his part was fully exploited.

Some political prisoners were released, but not all. Some Vichy practices were abandoned, but not all. Some pro-Axis officials were removed. But others stayed on. Since Darlan's death further progress has been made in cleaning up the mess left by Vichy. But all that could have been done much sooner had we acted more promptly and with greater determination.

Apparently our officials in North Africa were so anxious not to interfere in the internal affairs of that region that we only acted by indirection when direct action was called for, indecisively when decision was in order. In pursuing such a course we offended our real friends—the republican elements—and left an impression of weakness.

The reactionary bureaucrats, on the other hand, seeing that we were ready to appease them, saw no reason why they should hurry to appease us. Certainly it was an astonishing circumstance, but far from untypical, that weeks after our forces had landed, Radio Morocco continued to send out anti-democratic and pro-Axis broadcasts.

WHEN DARLAN disappeared from the scene and General Giraud came to the fore, what looked like a golden opportunity to unite all Frenchmen behind the common effort presented itself.

The Fighting French had never objected to Giraud as they had objected to Darlan and as they do object, and with perfectly sound reasons, to such men as Nogues and Chatel. And the Fighting French had shown where they stood when Darlan and Nogues and Chatel and the others of their ilk were still eating the bread of Vichy flavored with the salt of Hitler.

It is not at all clear whether during these weeks since Darlan's assassination we have done everything possible to further a meeting between Giraud and De Gaulle. Yet it is to our interests to do so as it is to Britain's interest and France's.

The suspicion that our political direction in North Africa has been mismanaged will not down. Robert D. Murphy, our Minister there, is an amiable chap. But judging by what has happened during the past three months he lacks both the stature and the ability for the tough task that has had to be done and still remains to be done.

Dislikes Tone Of Story

In reply to the article of Lee Carson in The Washington Post, I should like to say this:

The salute should be a snappy one, to be sure; the posture and bearing correct, the uniform practical and well tailored for the performance of this superb service to be rendered by the marinette. But do we not visualize the hesitance of the serious-minded applicant at entrance into a "powder-puff battalion" when she wishes to give her best effort?

The dignity of the method of publicity followed by the WAVES offers an example to be emulated in telling about the marinettes

Dollar Passes

Tens of thousands of streetcar and bus passes are used for convenience only. Holders would actually save money using tokens. Many are used not at all on Sundays. Certain abuses would disappear with a $1 rate. Besides, many more would be sold, with consequent reduced token use, cash fares and transfers, which now slow up the service.

Visit To The Cathedral

Like many others, I had not attended church for many months, in fact not since leaving my home town of Cleveland last May until this past Sunday morning. We drove (it is allowed) to the Washington Cathedral at the junction of Wisconsin and Massachusetts Avenue, arriving in good time for the 11 o'clock service.

Leaving there some two hours later, my wife and I, yes, and the boy too found that we had certain definite impressions associated with such words as beauty, dignity, might, humility, nobleness and godliness.

The great edifice will be the fifth largest House of God in the world when complete, but few of us now living will see that day. Although under construction for 37 years the cathedral is only two-fifths built and it is estimated that an additional 50 to 75 years will roll by before "finis" is written. The rushed and harried warworkers inhabiting this community would benefit from a visit to this place where a year is but as a day and "tempus fugit" loses its meaning.

Trade Agreements

So Mr. Gearhart puts the cards on the table and announces the Republicans are out to do away with trade agreements. This remarkable announcement must have made Goering, Hitler et al. go into delirium tremens of joy and celebrate the new year with a war dance. Even "Il' Duce could be taken in or this one.

No more important news has hit the Wilhemstrasse in months. Dissension—that's what they want. Divide and conquer is their slogan.

Anyone with any sense knows wars are caused by lust for markets. Trade agreements are the great buffers against this world peril.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Horse Meat

"Horse Meat Market. United States Inspected Horse Meat for Human Consumption." This sign is now appearing over meat markets and the old crack, "I'm so hungry I could eat a horse," is being put to a test of sincerity.

* * * *

Government agents, butchers and others insist that a gee-gee steak is not bad; in fact, quite good. Elmer Twitchell, gourmet and man-about-town, has been making tests. "Horse meat is very nice," he reported, "under certain restrictions, the foremost of which is that you do not know the horse.

* * * *

"Nothing hampers the popularity of a filet of horse," he continued, "except sentiment. Once this is overcome a tenderloin of skate will be as popular as any other kind. When you eat meat from a cow you are not bothered by any personal friendship for the cow. On the other hand, every man feels that some of his best friends are horses.

* * * *

"Now a cow hates to be killed just as much as a horse does. In fact, more so, since a cow leads a fairly untroubled and comfortable life, while many horses are worked to their bones and tired of living, anyhow. But just the same, the average man has never developed a beautiful friendship with a bovine.

* * * *

"You can point to a cow and say, 'Lovely cow, isn't it?' and he will hardly reply, but say the same about any horse and he will show enthusiastic agreement. The impulse to stop and feed sugar to any old horse is common. But did you ever see a man stop to see if a cow had a sweet tooth?

* * * *

"And there you have the whole horse meat versus cow meat situation in a nutshell. Nevertheless, horse meat is not unpalatable. I have eaten plenty of it when I knew it and much more when I didn't know it. Of course, it has to be a reasonably young horse.

* * * *

"A steak from a 3-year-old is to be preferred over a mignon from a 9-year-old draft animal. I have only one urgent suggestion to make to anybody about to sample horse meat, however.

"And this is it: never try to enjoy a horse-meat dinner and read the racing sheets at the same time."

Gas Rationing Pathetic Cases

The owner of two rural bars!

Oh, shed a tear for Casper Mix:
He bought a home out in the sticks;
He said, "This place is far away."
They said, "A car solves all today! !"

There's this to be said for the last World War: it merely closed the saloons, not the gas stations.

Taste In War Words

With all this loud shouting about the freedom of the press when gentlemen of the fourth estate are supposedly being pushed around, I wonder if it ever occurs to blue-pencil press freemen that there is such a thing as good taste even in war dispatches? I refer specifically to the "damns" and "hells" of on-the-record brass hats and others; the very obvious and wholly unnecessary attempt to report realistically this bloody war. Instances: A commissioned officer tells us colorfully that when his Marines met a group of 500 Japs, it was an economical and comparatively easy task—the enemy had few weapons, were already weak, and so only the bayonet was needed. Another of democracy's defenders writes gleefully of shooting Japs "on the fly" as they are shaken out of trees. The sea washes enemy dead ashore and the headliner calls it "scum." A high-ranking officer speaks of them as apes. And so on, daily.

Is such build-up necessary? "Let the ape and tiger in me die!" cries the poet. "Hath not (mine enemy) eyes, ears, etc?" says the dramatist. Human nature is depraved, but there is no question the average man is improving. Name-calling, vascular, he-man, fighting warrior words do not help any. Copy readers please copy.

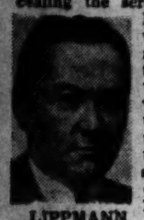
Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Nobody's Business



LIPPMANN

WHILE the Axis is exaggerating our losses in the submarine war, our own reports are concealing the seriousness of our losses. If the whole picture, stripped of statistical finagling, were disclosed, we should wake up with a start to a realization that the German submarine is now our most deadly opponent.

THE FACTS cannot be printed. But it may be said that we have lost and are continuing to lose so many cargo ships, tankers, and transports that everywhere—in North Africa, in New Guinea and the Solomons, on the vitally important Burmese front—we are like a man fighting with one hand tied behind his back. Eventually we shall win the war anyway. But eventually is not soon enough. It is quite possible that the German submarines can soften our blows enough to prolong the war in Europe for an extra year: if they do, it may well mean that the Japanese will gain the time to exploit their conquests while our indispensable Chinese, Russian, and British Allies will be suffering from the cumulative strain of an additional year of war.

It may be said that in 1942 the submarines sank more ships than our shipyards, with all their miraculous achievement, were able to launch. Moreover, the German submarine navy is today larger than it has ever been. New submarines are being built very much faster than we are destroying them. The newer submarines are increasingly formidable. Strategically and tactically the Germans are always several jumps ahead of us. There is no prospect now of our having enough escorts to deal with them until the end of this year. Even this prospect is at present dubious.

If these general statements could be supported with the actual figures and with maps showing where the sinkings occur, everyone would appreciate the extreme gravity of the situation.

YET the problem is soluble. We know it is soluble because whenever we decide that a convoy must go through, we can organize its protection and push it through. The solution depends upon two things: one, upon enough escorts, planes, and other material equipment manned by trained personnel, and, two, upon setting up the command and an adequate general staff to wage a sustained, coordinated campaign from North and South America, from the British Isles and from Africa.

Our shortage of equipment was due initially to lack of foresight in the Navy Department. After that had been remedied, as it was about a year ago, and after the Navy had adopted a good program, the production of the necessary ships and equipment has been set back at least twice and perhaps oftener because other things got a higher priority. We have lost perhaps as much as nine months time. On the basis of recent sinkings of inadequately escorted convoys, this means something near the destruction of the equivalent of our current output of cargo ships, and yet the Navy is still not assured of the backing of the rest of the Government. In the present controversy over synthetic rubber, there is grave danger that the escort ships will once again be set back. If they are set back, it will be because Mr. Nelson and Mr. Jeffers are more impressed with the civilian demand for rubber tires than with the paramount importance of fighting the submarine.

THE NAVY is set back in this controversy because the Navy has yet to make the Administration and the country aware of the seriousness of this business. That is at bottom the Navy's own fault: if the Navy would organize an adequate command and staff to conduct this complicated war of all arms as a combined operation with our Allies, it would at the same time possess the organization capable of making its case effectively with Mr. Nelson, Mr. Jeffers, the Congress and the country.

Although the Atlantic is one ocean, and the German submarines are under one strategical command, there is nothing on our side which corresponds to the situation. Theoretically, of course, the American effort is all headed up in Admiral King. In fact, the antisubmarine war is carried on by a loose conglomeration of several naval services and of the Army Air Force, partially but not firmly coordinated with several Canadian and British services. But as the Atlantic is one ocean, as ships have to cross it, the case for unity of command and a combined operating staff would seem to be compelling.

IT IS most probable that no radical improvement can be expected if we rely upon negotiations between our admirals and our generals and upon their negotiations with the admirals and air marshals of our Allies. In this respect the situation today has many resemblances to 1917 when the war might have been lost if Mr. Lloyd George and the war cabinet had not intervened at the Admiralty.

It would be well if the President would reread today Lloyd George's War Memoirs, Volume III, beginning page 1129, and also "Victory at Sea" by Admiral Sims. These will remind him, for he himself played a distinguished part in the matter, that without any reflection upon the admirals, a situation of this kind needs the strong hand of a powerful civilian to set it in order. There is no civilian today who has the authority to make it his one and only business to get the campaign organized and commanded. A civilian is needed because the hierarchy of rank, the jealousy of the services, and the stand-offishness of the professionals on both sides of the Atlantic have to be tactfully but firmly mastered.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE tells us in his Memoirs how it became necessary for him to transfer Sir Edward Carson from the post of First Lord of the Admiralty in order to put through the necessary reform. "Someone was needed at the head of the Admiralty," he says, "with a greater reserve of vitality, more resource and greater mastery of detail." Carson, he tells us, never got the views of the younger naval officers because he felt that this would "imply distrust of his colleagues and therefore a professional disloyalty. He therefore availed himself of the advice of the acknowledged Admiralty chiefs." The Prime Minister, on the other hand, felt the need of a man who felt that no "rule of honor or etiquette" prevented him "from sending for any person either inside or outside his office, whatever his rank, to seek enlightenment on any subject affecting his administration."

There is now needed in the Administration, a strong civilian with vitality, resource, and mastery of detail to see that this campaign is pulled together and stepped up. Secretary Knox cannot do it, and has plenty of other useful things to do. But until there is somebody who makes this campaign his business, it will falter because what is everybody's business is nobody's business.

Off The Record

War Council Needed Now

Hoover Cites Delays

By Herbert Hoover

(One of a series by the former President.)

The first principle in organization of the home front distilled by all nations from the last war is that civilian activities must be directed by single-headed responsible administrators. The second principle is that all functions and authority in respect to a particular activity must be concentrated into the hands of one administrator.

We can no more administer civilian activities in war with committees, boards or commissions than we can direct a battle with a committee. And we can no more have divided authority over one function than we can have independent generals in command of a battle.

Yet it was 19 months after we started large preparedness, before munitions was given a single head; it was more than two years before oil, food, rubber and manpower were given single responsible administrators. There are still important executive functions under committee control. And of the administrators appointed, none of them has full control in their field.

To Sit With President

The third principle is that the head administrators of such major groups should comprise a war council sitting directly with the President. Here alone the general economic and civilian policies should be determined, the conflicts and overlaps planed out with the President present as the final umpire.

There was a war council or a war cabinet in every principal nation in the last war. There is one in every principal nation in this war except in the United States.

There are other principles as to cooperation with the public and the trades, the methods of price-fixing, removal of labor, restraints on production, allocation of supplies, etc., in which hard-won experience has been ignored. That there is delay and confusion and enormous bureaucratic interference needs no proof. It lies all around the landscape.

There are some policies that should be determined at once by a national war council. We have two bottlenecks; one is manpower and the other is ships. In view of these bottlenecks, certain home front policies suggest themselves for immediate determination. And they need be related to global strategy itself.

For instance, to carry on a war of aggressive attrition we need give full emphasis to fighting planes. They can mostly transport themselves. We will be short of ships for another year. To transport American armies overseas requires three times the tonnage that is required to arm and supply the manpower of our Allies. We are endangering the food supply to ourselves and our Allies by excessive drafts of manpower from agriculture.

Revaluation Urged

It is entirely possible that a realistic revaluation of our manpower, our bottlenecks and priorities in need would result in temporary release of soldiers already trained into producing food, ships and planes, or alternatively, in the import of Mexican labor for our farms and the lengthening of the work week in our shops.

A realistic revaluation of our whole economic home front would reinforce some conclusions as to military strategy which I suggest in my next article.

We must admit that so far our spiritual front in this war is not as united as it was in the last war. The weakness today is not complacency or apathy. There is a great deal of bewilderment and confusion of purposes.

This is contributed to by the confusion in administration: by criticism of the divergent ideological purposes of our Allies; by the lack of confidence in the news of the war; by tiresome repetition of radio propaganda; by exceeding powers granted by the Congress and by the widespread conviction that the purposes of our administration are not alone to win the war, but to use the war to change fundamentals of American life without submission to the people o their representatives.

Americans United

Despite all this, the American people are united upon the defense of America from attack and are grimly determined to defeat the Germans and Japanese. I believe they are united upon securing lasting peace this time even if they have to use airplanes to garrison it. No enemy need believe because we exercise our blessed right to debate, discuss and differ between ourselves, that we are not united upon his defeat.

On the military front we have magnificently courageous sons. We can have every confidence in our generals and admirals. Men and officers alike are performing stupendous deeds. They merit everything we have got.

We have the blessing of huge industrial equipment and managerial initiative created in the mills of private enterprise. It is equipped with skilled workmen and farmers. Failures in administration interpret themselves in delay of the war; in unnecessary hardship on civilians and increased problems after the war. But we will win the war.

The Gallup Poll

Churchill's Popularity Soars to New High; 75% of Britons Satisfied With War Conduct

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 15.—So far as public popularity is concerned, the position of the Churchill government in England is apparently more solid today than at almost any time since it took office.

A survey by the British Institute of Public Opinion finds that public confidence in Churchill has reached an all-time high, with 93 per cent of all voters questioned in the survey indicating themselves satisfied with him as Prime Minister. This compares with a low of 78 per cent in the dark days just after the fall of Tobruk last summer.

Moreover, an overwhelming number of British voters say they are satisfied with the government's present conduct of the war. The change in their attitude on that score has been marked since last summer.

In the period immediately following Tobruk, only 41 per cent of voters questioned by the British Institute were satisfied with the government's handling of the war. By November, when General Montgomery's Eighth Army had put General Rommel to flight, this had increased to 75 per cent, and today it remains at the same high figure.

The ovte on Churchill and on the conduct of the war follows:

"In general do you approve or disapprove of Mr. Churchill as Prime Minister?"

Anthony Eden continues to be singled out by British voters as the preferred successor as Prime Minister in case anything should happen to Churchill. Sir Stafford Cripps stands next in popular preference.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

No. 3

Form Of Return

Persons subject to the Federal income tax must report their income to the Government on forms, or blanks prescribed by regulations. These forms are obtainable from any collector of internal revenue, and generally from any bank. Special forms are designated for corporations, for partnerships, for trusts and fiduciaries, and for nonresident aliens. Farmers who keep no books of account on the accrual method must attach a special schedule to their return (Form 1040F). For individuals, two forms are used, depending upon the amounts and source of income to be reported.

Form 1040: This form is intended for general use of individuals who are citizens of the United States, or residents in this country, whether citizens or not. It contains spaces to show the amount of income from various sources, deduction allowable, exemptions and credits, and computation of tax liability. As most of the items require some explanation in order to be allowable, the form also contains appropriate schedules to show in more detail how the income or the deduction are determined.

Form 1040A: This is a simplified report, which may, at the option of the taxpayer who makes his return on the cash basis, be filed instead of Form 1040 by citizens of $3000 or less during 1942, providing all this income consists wholly of one or more of the following: salary, wages, dividends, interest, or annuities. In using this form it is necessary only to enter the amount of gross income as shown, deduct the credit allowable for dependents, and insert the appropriate amount of tax in accordance with one's personal exemption status, as shown on the table on the reverse of the form. This form has no entries for deductions allowable, since the taxes indicated in the table on the back of the form are computed after taking into account what have been considered average deductions for persons of this income class.

A taxpayer should, therefore, consider carefully which form would be appropriate for his purposes. Whichever form is employed, all the information called for in the spaces should be inserted so far as applicable to the taxpayer, in order to avoid the expense to the Government, and the possible inconvenience to the taxpayer, of subsequent check and inquiry.

Returns for the calendar year 1942 must be filed not later than March 15, 1943. They may be filed by mailing to the collector of internal revenue of the appropriate district in which is located the legal residence or principal place of business of the taxpayer. If the return is filed by mailing, it should be posted in ample time to reach the collector's office on or before March 15, 1943.

Envoy to Spain Tells U. S. Aims

By the Associated Press

Madrid, Jan. 15.—United States Ambassador Carlton J. H. Hayes, addressing a gathering of diplomats and high Spanish officials, declared today there could be no negotiated peace between the United States and her enemies.

At the same time Hayes, whose theme was "American War Aims," hit hard at Axis-inspired rumors that an Allied victory would mean the overturn of the present government of Spain.

"If the political and social institutions of this country undergo change or modification in future years," he declared emphatically, "it will be the work of Spaniards within Spain—not of the United States or of Spanish emigres."

But, he said, the United States neither wishes to impose on any other country nor is it fighting for capitalistic stakes.

Far from being materialistic, the Ambassador asserted, the people of the United States "are intensely idealistic—incorrigibly idealistic. For one thing, Americans love liberty—liberty for the individual and liberty for nations."

The chief war aim of the United States is to put a stop to "pushing" by the Axis powers, the Ambassador asserted.

He described the so-called new order of the Axis as "simply a gigantic pushing around and pushing down of practically all peoples of the world in the selfish interest of a pair of swashbuckling, would-be superior powers —Nazi Germany and Imperial Japan."

"Even the original third partner now is merely a silent partner—a kind of burned-out satellite helplessly held in its appointed course by the solar Berlin," Hayes continued.

Whales Or Dreams

New York, Jan 15.—Is your problem about whales, dates or dreams? If it is and even remotely concerned with the Federal Government, the OWI Bureau of Public Inquiries can help you.

Miss Doris Kavanagh, 27, brunette and attractive, is its chief and, with a staff of 13, answers 1100 queries daily—and they're not all as simple as those about tax and legislative matters.

"Anything can happen when you pick up the telephone or open a letter," she said. "And we certainly get some dillies here. Just the other day, for instance, a woman called up and announced she had a whale; just that, she had a whale."

It took a bit of pumping, but the staff member finally discovered the woman, a new employe of a museum, was trying to find out if a certain genus of whale (dead) could be brought into the country duty-free. It could.

Another inquiry was whether a penguin could be imported and kept as a pet. It could.

A few weeks ago a girl called to find out the name of a lieutenant she had met. All she knew, she said, was that he told her he was the head of the War Department.

"We had a very difficult time with that one," Miss Kavanagh said. "We told her about a Mr. Stimson and a General Marshall, but the girl told us that we were wrong, because the lieutenant told her that he had the job. She was still unconvinced and a little annoyed when she hung up. That soldier certainly was a good salesman."

Another girl asked the bureau to locate a sailor. His name was Jack and he was on a battleship. The bureau fell down on that one.

A woman telephoned recently and asked tensely if the Statue of Liberty had been bombed. Receiving a negative answer, she asked them to check again and explained she dreamed the night before the statue had been destroyed and wanted to verify it.

It's a hectic life, answering questions all day long.

"But we have our screaming room in the back," she said, "if things get too tough we can take time out and let off steam—vocally or with a cigarette."

Rep. Luce Fails To Win Foreign Affairs Post

Republicans filled three vacancies on the House Foreign Affairs Committee Thursday by selecting Representatives Wadsworth of New York, Schiffler of West Virginia and Gerlach of Pennsylvania.

Representative Clare Boothe Luce of Connecticut, who had desired a place on the committee, was not named. She had said, however, that she was ready to abide by House rules of seniority.

Other selections, made by the Republican Committee on Committees, were:

Interstate and Commerce: Leonard Hall of New York, Tibbott, Pennsylvania; O'Hara, Minnesota, and Winter, Kansas.

FDA Starts New Food Police Unit

By Vance Johnson

Washington Bureau of Chicago Sun

A new police force to crack down on black markets, such as the one which has developed on meat in Chicago, is being organized by the Food Distribution Administration.

While officials of FDA agree with the Office of Price Administration that under-the-counter selling of foods is not yet widespread enough to be called a black market, they say illegitimate transactions are bound to develop as food supplies dwindle, and want to be prepared.

The new force will be comprised at the outset of about 100 crack investigators now in the Department of Agriculture's food stamp division, and will be part of FDA's new compliance division.

Roy F. Hendrickson, FDA administrator, yesterday named J. M. Mehl, chief of the commodities exchange branch of the former Agricultural Marketing Administration, as head of the division.

As Mehl's investigators are organized, FDA will take over some of the policing duties now handled by OPA.

The group will concern itself primarily, it was said, with ferreting out violators of rationing regulations, illegal sellers of foods and dealers who try to chisel on supplies furnished the Government for lend-lease and military purposes. Enforcement of rationing rules now is handled by OPA.

While it was reported that the OPA Compliance Division already has lodged a protest against FDA's proposals, officials in the Agriculture Department said it is logical that these duties should be transferred since most orders regarding food supplies henceforth will be issued by Secretary Wickard in his capacity of Food Administrator.

Agriculture Department meat inspectors in packing plants and other employes of FDA's Compliance Branch probably will be given part time espionage duties in order to help make the new force more effective. The food stamp program investigators, it was said, provide an ideal nucleus for the new organization "because they know the food distribution business—and they know how to get at violators."

Reports have been circulated here that the FDA has ambitions to take over the whole rationing program but officials today denied that formation of the policing staff is a step in that direction. They said FDA will have "big enough a job to handle without trying to upset an organization which already is functioning."

Woman Captures Hawk Bare-Handed

Mountain View, Mo., Jan. 15 (AP). Mrs. Raymond Berkshire, without a weapon, clutched bare-handed at a hawk that was attempting to carry away one of her fat hens.

The fight lasted several minutes and Mrs. Berkshire's hands were cut in several places, but she won.

Poll Favors Lend-Lease

Continuance Likely

By the Associated Press

Approval by the House Foreign Affairs Committee of renewing the Administration's authority to extend lend-lease aid to the Allies appeared certain yesterday on the basis of an Associated Press poll of a majority of the committee's membership.

Moreover, it seemed likely that the bill would reach the floor—probably in late April—bearing an almost unanimous indorsement by the committee, which is composed of 15 Democrats and 10 Republicans. There was none among those reached who expressed opposition to the program; many who voiced approval.

Authority for the Administration to embark upon the far-reaching lend-lease program was given by Congress two years ago only after a long and acrimonious pre-war fight between interventionist and noninterventionist groups in the House and Senate.

Expires June 30

That grant of power will expire on June 30. Its continuance has been regarded as one of the top-ranking issues which will be laid before the Seventy-eighth Congress. The poll came as the first definite indication of how the measure will fare.

Only two members among those reached—Representatives Mundt (Republican), South Dakota, and Bolton (Republican) Ohio—declined to say at this time that lend-lease aid must be continued, and they said their judgment would depend on the evidence produced during forthcoming hearings before the committee.

"I have no preconceived conclusions on the question," said Mundt. "But I should like to find out how much of a two-way street lend-lease has turned out to be. At the time it was passed, the President was supposed to be a good Yankee horse trader. Now let's see how many horses he has acquired in the trading."

Among those who said that lend-lease aid could not be ended now was Representative Eberharter (Democrat) of Pennsylvania, who declared:

"I don't see how we can continue the vigorous prosecution of the war without continuing to furnish supplies to our Allies—supplies without which they might not be able to continue."

From one of the three new Republican members of the committee, Representative Wadsworth (Republican) of New York, came the assertion that "I voted for it last time, and I am heartily in favor of the program in general."

"I presume it will be necessary," said Representative Schiffler (Republican) of West Virginia, another new member.

Comments from some of the other members included:

Chiperfield (Republican) of Illinois: "I suppose that in some way, lend-lease will have to continue."

Jonkman (Republican) of Michigan: "We've got to continue it."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Jan. 15.—Col. Harvey L. Miller, the Marine officer who once held the bantamweight championship of the Pacific Fleet and was active in the National Boxing Association before the war, writes:

CONSIDINE

"Hand-to-hand fighting in the Solomons, with death as the loser's end, has again brought up the old question, 'Can a wrestler defeat a boxer?'

"Servicemen, taught a combination of boxing, wrestling savate, ju jitsu and judo may have the answer.

"In past matches between wrestler and boxer, as when Steele won from Levinsky, the wrestler always won. Sight, however, was lost of the fact that the boxer always met the wrestler under handicapped rules. For such a mixed match the rules should also be mixed although it is doubtful if such a match would be tolerated by any athletic commission.

"The wrestler applies his holds while standing up or while rolling on the deck. The boxer then should also be allowed to punch while he or his opponent are on the deck. Both boxer and wrestler should be allowed to take holds and both should be allowed to punch.

"Frank Gotch, one of the greatest wrestlers of all time, once took up boxing. A bum named Young Klondyke flattened him in one stanza. The wrestler was helpless under boxing rules. On the other hand Gypsy Daniels, the boxer who once kayoed Schmeling, still gets by as Chief Chewacki, wrestler.

"For a mixed rules match, boxer vs. wrestler, you pick any wrestler. For the boxer, and winner, I'll pick a gentle soul like Tony Galento. In the meantime we should continue teaching our boys in uniform a combination of every known method of fighting hand-to-hand."

P. S.—The gents who placed Sammy Baugh on the second All-League team all must know that if any coach in the game had his pick of one player, to use as a nucleus of a team, he'd pick Baugh . . . Trainers Win As Vikings Score, 32-19

Clive Thompson Tallies 20 Points For McKinley High; Walsh Central Ace

Tech and Central climbed a little higher, and Anacostia and Wilson settled more comfortably in the cellar last night as the inter-high basketball series was resumed with a pair of one-sided encounters at Tech gym.

Approximately 1000 fans saw the Trainers of Tech, with no difficulty whatever, trample Anacostia by a 52-25 count. Central followed that with a 32-19 rout of Wilson, last year's champion.

Roosevelt, Eastern Favored

Tonight the annual race will send Roosevelt against Coolidge at 7:30 and Western against Eastern in the finale. Roosevelt and Eastern will rule favorites, despite the fact the first was edged out in its first start while Coolidge was stifling Western.

It was a well-oiled Trainer machine that started last night's proceedings. It slammed home a basket in the first eight seconds of play and zoomed into an 18-6 lead for the first quarter. At intermission it was 35-10, and with the second team working in the third quarter, the winners still held a 40-16 margin as the final eight minutes got under way.

Olive Thompson, diminutive forward who scored the game's first points, kept it up throughout. He notched 20 points, 6 of them on the seven foul shots allowed him. Slender Bob Brewer tore under the basket for 12 points as the Indians' best scorers, Elliott Day and Pudge Nelson, got 6 apiece.

Had More Trouble

Central had a little more trouble with Wilson and its zone defense. Midway of the first quarter it trailed, 6-3, but not for long. As the successive periods rolled by the Vikings were ahead, 8-6, 19-8 and 27-12.

Hank Lawler and Johnny Walsh went out on personal fouls early in the final stanza, but managed to leave their Central mates well ahead. Walsh, shooting from the side, scored 13 points and Lawler was one of three Vikings to get five.

Wilson's high point-maker was Stew Brown, with nine points. Three of these came on the only foul throws out of nine he could sink.

Last Sunday Before Season Opens Finds Both Clubs Booked In Hilarious Mixup

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 15.—Storm signals were hoisted over Forty-second Street today for the most hilarious baseball feud in many years as the result of a mixup in exhibition dates between the New York Giants and Yankees.

On the two weekends just before the major league season opens in April the Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers arranged games with each other while the Giants took on the Boston Red Sox for one series and the Washington Senators for another. This immediately caused a commotion about who had priority on the valuable Saturday and Sunday dates.

Right Across Street

Although the offices of the Giants and Yankees are right across the street from each other, executives of both clubs indignantly refused to make the first move for conciliation and let the echoes of their shouts at newspapermen suffice for intercommunication.

Eddie Brannick, secretary of the Giants, was the most irate. His office, with various people talking at once on three telephones and back and forth with each other, was a madhouse.

"They can't do this to us," Brannick fumed. "We've had a gentleman's agreement for years with the Yankees that we alternate the home exhibition games on the last week-end before the season opens. This year it's our turn and we have scheduled Washington at the Polo Grounds April 17 and 18.

"Now the Yankees come along and book the Dodgers in Yankee Stadium on the same days. We've already wired Ford Frick (president of the National League whose office is seven blocks away) and we'll go to Landis. We told Branch Rickey those were our dates at home and no other National Laegue Club can invade our territory."

"Sure we scheduled the Red Sox in here April 10 and 11, but Ed Barrow (president of the Yanks) protested that. He was the first to squawk."

Not Been Canceled

Somewhere during this tirade, which went on at length, Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, came into the office and undertook to explain that when the Giants set their dates with the Red Sox they believed the Yankee-Dodger games on April 10 and 11 were to be at Ebbets Field. But he said the Red Sox had not been canceled after the conflict became known.

Across the street, Barrow declared there never had been any formal agreement and pointed out that the dates originally fixed by the Yanks and Dodgers were for Yankee Stadium on April 10 and 11 and at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn April 16, 17 and 18, thus leaving the final weekend open to the Giants.

Frick said the dispute was an interleague matter and he hoped it would be adjusted after tempers cooled down. Rickey classed himself as an innocent bystander and said all arrangements for his games had been left in Barrow's hands.

Brooklyn to Train At Bear Mountain

Dodgers Granted Permission to Use Army Field House in Bad Weather

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 15.—The old Army game, a game of skill, a game of chance, came out today in favor of the Brooklyn Dodgers, whose exploits are continuing to be as fantastic under the benign hand of Branch Rickey as they ever were for Larry MacPhail.

The Dodgers have been waiting for weeks for the Army to decide whether it would need the fieldhouse at Yale or whether the Brooklyn baseball club could train there.

But today the same Army which has been holding up the decision at Yale opened its arms and welcomed the Dodgers into the fieldhouse of the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Actually the training base of the Dodgers and their International League affiliate, the Montreal Royals, will be 5 miles from West Point at Bear Mountain, N. Y., a Hudson River resort.

But Rickey, in making the announcement, said the ball clubs had been granted permission to use the hugh West Point fieldhouse in inclement weather—which is all they wanted at Yale.

Bethesda C. C. Easily Downs Landon, 42-28

Quick spurts in the first and last periods gave Bethesda-Chevy Chase High basketers an easy 42-28 margin over Landon School at the latter's court.

In the opening stanza, the Barons rushed into a 10-1 lead. They coasted then, holding leads of 18-12 and 29-20 as the next two quarters unfolded. The final quarter saw the invaders outscore the hosts, 13 points to 8.

Harry Phillips, clever Baron ball-handler, took down scoring honors along with Landon's Claxton Walker, each notching 13 points. Johnny Slaughter came in next for Bethesda with 9.

Bay Meadows Asks Permission for Spring Meeting

By the Associated Press

San Mateo, Calif., Jan. 15.—William P. Kyne, general manager of the Bay Meadows race track, said he would ask the California Racing Commission early next week for permission to hold a 52-day spring meeting beginning late in February, subject to approval of military authorities.

No specific opening date was mentioned.

Charles Henry, Bay Meadows racing secretary, is being sent to Miami, Fla., and to New Orleans, to confer with race stable owners who have been applying for stalls here. Henry will leave by plane Sunday night.

Bay Meadows concluded a successful 57-day meeting last December 19.

Friends Defeats Boys Latin on Smith's Basket

Friends School's Bobby Smith pivoted and sent the ball through the basket yesterday just as the final whistle blew and Washington Friends beat the Boys Latin five' 19 to 18, on the losers' court.

The two old rivals were never more than three points from each other during the entire game. Boys Latin led, 11 to 10, at the half.

Jackie Wilson Upset Victim Of La Motta

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan 15—Using some of the most unorthodox fistic tactics seen in these parts in years, as well as a 16-pound weight edge in direct defiance of State boxing laws, Jake LaMotta came through with one of the season's top upsets tonight by outpointing the highly-touted California Jackie Wilson in 10 rounds in Madison Square Garden. LaMotta weighed 161; Wilson 145

Turning in a shocking surprise ovxer the 1 to 4 favorite, who was regarded as the only welterweight with a chance of whipping unbeaten Ray Robinson, LaMotta, a husky belter from the Bronx, held an edge over Wilson at the end, but only because he laid all over Jackie from start to finish with his big weight advantage, mauled the Californian around and generally employed what was close to a 50-50 split in boxing and wrestling stuff.

In a cofeatured 10-rounder, Chalky Wright of Los Angeles, another underdog at 11-5 odds, upset Joey Peralta, Tamaqua, Pa. Wright lost one round for low punching, but was a much sharper puncher and won a clean cut verdict.

The gross gate was $21,315 and the official attendance 9684.

Gonzaga Juniors Top Wilson, 32-17

In spite of five technical fouls being called against them in the last minute of play, junior varsity cagers of Gonzaga High easily downed Woodrow Wilson Jayvees yesterday, 32-17. Sam DeFrances led the winning assault with 10 points.

Chicago Mentor Thinks Schools Will Drop Sport and Fail to Resume It Later

By the Associated Press

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—Increasing financial burdens will cause many endowed colleges to drop intercollegiate football during the war, Jimmy Conzelman, coach of the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League, said today, and he predicted they will not resume the sport in peace-time.

Conzelman, former coach at Washington University of St. Louis and regarded as one of the Nation's keenest observers of football trends, said heavy curtailment of gifts and endowments would create so great a financial load that many schools would be unable to continue the gridiron sport.

He said he feared the abolition of football would be a severe blow to "a Nation which has already suffered because only 20 per cent of its youth engaged in body contact sports."

Conzelman, speaking at a high school football dinner, pointed out nearly all of the colleges which already have dropped football are endowed institutions.

"The problem of tuition, which is heavier in endowed colleges, crystallizes the problem," he said. "The regrettable but inevitable abolition of football by these schools will seriously retard the physical and mental adaptation to physical shock which our youth needs in time of war.

"It is no secret that nearly all endowed colleges would like to quit football because of the expense, but they haven't done so because of alumni pressure. But the alumni, they find, have only the emotional slant, and not the practical answer to the problem, which is cold cash."

Short, Hoya Ace, Accepts Invitation To Millrose Meet

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 15.—Hugh Short, who carried Georgetown's colors to a surprise victory in the I. C. A. A. A. 440-yard championship last spring, has accepted an invitation to run in the Mel Sheppard 600 at the Millrose A. A. games in Madison Square Garden, February 6.

Short, who ran second to Russ Owen, of Ohio State, in the Sugar Bowl 440, also will anchor the Georgetown quartet in the relays.

Red Blaik Returns To Active Army Duty

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 15 (AP).—Earl H. Blaik, head football coach at the United States Military Academy, today returned to active Army duty as a lieutenant colonel in the Cavalry.

Blaik, who graduated from the Military Academy in 1920 and the Cavalry School at Fort Riley, Kans., a year later, has been head gridiron mentor at the Point for the past two seasons, coming here from Dartmouth.

Favored Terps Beaten, 50-40, By Generals

By the Associated Press

Lexington, Va., Jan. 15.—"Lighthorse" Harry Harner picked the right time to stage a scoring spree and it paid a 50-40 dividend for Washington and Lee's cagers tonight over a highly favored Maryland quintet.

It was the Generals' first Southern Conference victory of the season and gave them a season's record of two wins and two losses in their other conference encounter they dropped a one-point decision to William and Mary.

Harner started his spree with 10 minutes gone in the second half. Between then and three minutes to go he pitched in four baskets that took all the starch out of the Old Liners.

Before that Harner had plunked two field goals and a free throw. His 13 points was the night's best, one more than Ernie Travis of the visitors could total.

Feature of the contest was the brilliant guarding of Clancy Ballenger who stopped Maryland's high scoring Tommy Mont. Mont was held to 5 points with Ballenger getting 11.

Pounds Tries Hand at Quiz Program Letter

Marietta Park, D. C.
January 15

Dear Boss,

Don't you think the Flynn boys are having a tough time? Did you know that Florida has a pipe line running across the State carrying oil to Tennessee and Florida is classed as one of the 17 no pleasure driving States and Tennessee isn't? What became of that prize fight that was in the making between Bob Masterson (Redskins) and Perry Schwartz (Dodgers)? What's the speed limit on the Fifth Street buses returning downtown empty during the rush hours? Didn't I catch up on my sleep while we were out of fuel oil? Aren't the Redskins ordering football equipment for next fall and doesn't that indicate the management believes pro football will continue? Is it true that horses at Hialeah are being fed palm leaves and that trainers are eating fried Flamingo? Did you know that Shirley Povich pitched rivets on a destroyer being built at a Bangor (Me.) Shipyard and I was assigned to the crew waiting for the same boat during World War I?

HAIGHT

Didn't I find out that one of the girl "copy boys" I was kidding in a recent letter is the author of a book? Could the head on the figure on the front of the Washington telephone books be anybody's but Charley Malone's of the Redskins? Wasn't the "number" today 505 and aren't some of the boys who hold them blaming me for "hits" because I have been harping on Mr. Five-By-Five? Is it true that the Philadelphia pro football fans still sing 'Deep In The Heart of Texas' but they don't clap any more since Sammy Baugh failed to show up? Isn't it a fact that Dick Todd, who is a fast runner but can't swim, joined the Navy? Is it possible to lose in a poker game when you hold a royal straight flush and there are no wild cards? Have you ever played poker with a pinnacle deck? And how about my sister-in-law who pushed a pot to a fellow with three nines because she 'only had two pairs of kings'? Is there any reason why Ossie Bluege, a quiet ball player, shouldn't make the Nats a fighting manager? If you don't agree then what'll you wager? Did you hear the one about the moron who cut his arms off so he could wear a sleeveless sweater? When attendance was light on the opening day of the Bowie races last fall didn't two men, one a Washingtonian, offer the management a guaranteed profit of $40,000 for the remaining days of the meeting?

Isn't it fitting that a horse named Bloodhound should trail a $90 shot to the wire in today's second at New Orleans? Do you feel sorry for those radio boys with the afternoon sports programs on Mondays when there is no racing in the country? Would you think that the Nats used seven sets of bases for their home games last season? Did you know that the slightest tear or rip in a bag eliminates it—for safety's sake? Did you know that Jockey Danny Scocca can play a violin well enough to play in an orchestra and that he worked for a year as a barber? Is there a rule that the Florida State League ball clubs must train north of Key West? Isn't it a fact that despite all the good Army songs for this war nothing has shown as yet that matches the popularity of World War I's "Hinky, Dinky, Parlez Vous?"

And ain't this getting corny? As ever. POUNDS HAIGHT.

P. S.—They are talking about eating race horse steak. How about some French fried handicapper on the side?

Special Dispatch to The Post

Quantico, Va., Jan. 15.—Wilson Teachers College cagers gave the highly-rated Quantico Marines a tough battle here tonight, bowing 53-43 in a fast game.

Behind, 33-17 at halftime, the Washingtonians, paced by sharp-shooting Ray Battaglini and Hal Ifshin came back in the second half to outscore the Leathernecks. Battaglini totaled 14 points with Ifshin netting an even dozen.

Zimmer, with 16 points and Dudoffson with 14, led the Marines.

Bob Feller to Wed Sweetheart Cheer By Dad Tonight

By International News Service

Waukegan, Ill., Jan. 15.—In accordance with his father's wishes, Bob Feller, former star of the Cleveland Indians' pitching staff and now a chief petty officer in the Navy, and Miss Virginia Winther will be married tomorrow evening.

The wedding will take place in Waukegan's First Methodist Church, with Miss Winther's sisters, Shirley and Betty, among the six bridemaids. Clarence Campbell, former big league ball player, will be Bob's best man.

Bob's father, Will, died last Sunday at his Van Meter (Iowa) home, and the pitching star arrived there from an East Coast port in time for the funeral.

Hoya-C. U. Game Set Tonight

Virginia Foe Of Colonials At Eastern

The first basketball meeting in the history of Georgetown and Catholic University and Virginia's clash with George Washington in the Eastern High gym are cofeatures of a four-game basketball program tonight with two District clubs playing on the road.

The schedule:

At Catholic U.—Georgetown vs. the Cardinals at 8:30 p. m. preceded by a 7 o'clock preliminary between Catholic U. Frosh and Gonzaga. Parochial school fives will play at halftime. C. U. gym available by bus and streetcar.

At Eastern High—George Washington vs. University of Virginia at 8:30 p. m., with a 7 o'clock preliminary between Bullis Prep and Maryland Park High. Eastern gym can be reached by bus and streetcar.

At Lexington, Va.—Maryland vs. Virginia Military Institute.

At Ashland, Va.—Gallaudet College vs. Randolph Macon.

Catholic U. will be the most decided underdog of the lot against the fancy Georgetown five which now boasts eight victories in nine starts. The Cards won two and lost two before the holidays, but Coach Shorty Hughes claims the Cards are a much improved outfit with nearly two weeks of additional practice, including scrimmages with Bolling Field.

Georgetown's colorful center, John Mahnken, expects to be in his best playing form after playing four games in six days while suffering from a bad cold and cough. The Hoyas beat the star-studded Quantico Marines club the last time out and have been taking it easy since the victory of Wednesday.

George Washington, the talk of the town after its feat of winning three road games in the Carolinas in as many days, fears a letdown in the Virginia clash. The G. W. squad unexpectedly spent Thursday night on the train, finally arriving home 12 hours late on Friday morning.

Joe Gallagher, the Colonials' playmaker and long-shot expert, did not play in G. W.'s victory over N. C. Preflight due to a pulled muscle in his chest. He could not raise his arm above his head and is a doubtful starter against Virginia.

The Cavaliers have beaten Hampden Sydney, Washington and Lee and North Carolina while losing to Richmond by two points, William and Mary by one and Maryland in overtime.

Georgetown Coach Elmer Ripley hopes to get a good look at his reserves in competition against the Cardinals as Georgetown has a game with Temple here Monday night.

Eagles Meet Lions In Final Ice Game

New Haven's Eagles are to conclude their American Hockey League activities at Uline Arena tonight when they oppose the Washington Lions at 8:30 o'clock.

Tonight's game represents the last home match of the local pros until two weeks from next Thursday night, February 4, when they entertain Pittsburgh here. Meanwhile, they will be confronted by five major matches on the road during the run of "Ice-Capades of 1943" at Uline's.

Eagles to Disband

Immediately after tonight's match the Eagles are to disband, and by Monday their players will either have been signed by seven other American League clubs or else have been released outright.

Tonight, however, will find the fading Eagles making an all-out effort to close down with their third consecutive victory over the local pros.

The Lions and Eagles played to two overtime ties in early season, but New Haven recently turned Washington back on consecutive nights by identical 3-to-2 scores with the capable Frank Ceryance in goal. Ceryance, who returns to Hershey when the Eagles disband, will be back in the nets for New Haven tonight.

Washingtonians turning out for tonight's match will preview four New Haven players who will be claimed by the Lions over the weekend, and will join them Monday.

Coach George Mantha, who welcomes this opportunity of adding new strength, will not disclose who the players are at present. Some of the outstanding Eagles who are to appear here tonight, however, include Wilf Hoch and Orville Waldriff, defensemen; George Patterson, Joe Shack and Neking Smith, centers, and Sammy McManus, Gus Mancuso and Carl Smith, wingmen.

Fishing with JACK BELL

Thousands and thousands of our anglers and hunters are now in far-off lands, angling and hunting for bigger game—Hitlerites and Japs — while others here at home are busily engaged building war machines for the use of their brother sportsmen who are in arms.

JACK BELL

None of these, however have lost any of their love for hunting or fishing. Those who've been engaged in various war plants now and then have managed to slip away to enjoy a day's recreation in the out-of-doors. Now, with the ban on all pleasure driving—and unfortunately trips for hunting and fishing also come under this—they must find other pursuits.

In these days of ever increasing difficulties, millions of fishermen and hunters believe the day has come when the sport must hibernate for the duration. It is quite evident, however, that many outdoorsmen have not lost their love for the sport. We have received several inquiries in the past two weeks asking us if we are to again resume our articles on fly-tying and tackle making.

We are sorry, but our time is much too short to again conduct so long and extensive a series. It is only a matter of weeks until we are on our way to South America. There, in the wild jungle valley of the Amazon River we will be busily engaged with many others in planning and building airfields, housing warehouses, hospitals and recreational facilities for the thousands of natives and Americans who will be gathering native wild rubber for the use of our war machines.

We do hope that some of this rubber shall be the means of relieving some of the difficulties that now beset the sportsmen of America. It is also our hope that we may from the Amazon, through these columns from time to time, be able to let you know what the fishing and hunting is like in a land that is fantastic and full of strange experiences.

To those who want to make their own fishing tackle during these long winter nights and days off, we can now recommend a new book that fills some of the need for information that these columns attempted to fill in the past. It is "Sure You Can Fish."

Many of us have junk piles in our basements. This book shows how to make simple items of fishing tackle from available odds and ends—such as an old toothbrush—that can be made to serve as a good bass bug. All fishermen, whether in uniform, overalls or playsuits will find loads of imformation on how to make your own replacements while our fishing tackle manufacturers are engaged in producing war materials.

Golf Groups Delay Plans For Tourneys

By Merrell W. Whittlesey
Post Staff Writer

The Middle Atlantic and Maryland State Golf Associations met in consecutive session for the first time yesterday at the Ambassador Hotel, a travel-saving move, and as one voted to place all 1943 tournament plans in the hands of executive committees until time and conditions warrant such activities.

The Maryland State Association voted to suspend the dues of its 21 member clubs, which amount to $35 a year, but the Middle Atlantic body went on record as retaining the dues of its 23 member clubs at $15 a year.

Harry G. Pitt of Manor Country Club was reelected president of the Middle Atlantic Association, and Fritz Souder of the Farmington C. C., Charlottesville, Va., was elevated to first vice president from second; John F. Brawner, Chevy Chase, was elected second vice president, and Dr. R. A. Keilty, Congressional, reelected secretary. Erford Barnes of Baltimore's Rolling Road Club, was slated to become president, but recently resigned from his club. Under normal conditions, the Middle Atlantic tournament would go to Rolling Road this year, Farmington in '44 and Chevy Chase in '45.

Dr. R. A. Keilty was installed as president of the Maryland State, succeeding Second Lieut. Edgar Lucas of Baltimore C. C. Other selections of the nominating committee installed were: Nathan R. Smith, Elkridge, first vice president; Harry Pitt, Manor, and John O. Bergelin, Kenwood, Washington, vice presidents; A. Herman Stump, Green Spring Valley, Baltimore, vice president; John D. Hospelhorn, C. C. of Maryland, vice president and treasurer; Albert E. Steinem, Woodmont, general counsel, and Emmet Gary, Hillendale, secretary. Due to the ineligibility of the Cumberland C. C., of which Charles Catherman had been nominated as vice president from Western Maryland, P. W. LeDuc of Argyle, was elected to the vacant position, in charge of Western Maryland activities.

Statements Excellent

Financial statements of both associations were excellent, the Maryland State reporting the purchase of a $500 War Bond with profits in 1942, while the Middle Atlantic moved from the red to the black side of the ledger. Dr. Keilty, speaking for all associations, reported this section has raised approximately $25,000 last year in Red Cross activities, War Bonds and Stamps, U. S. O., war relief, etc.

In major motions not accepted under the head of new business, the State group postponed for a year the amendments of Cecil Spedden, president of the C. C. of Maryland, to admit a public links section to the association. The Middle Atlantic voted against a proposal from the same Baltimore club to consolidate the associations. Both have been discussed and defeated in former years.

Dr. Perkins Will Preach At Universalist

In commemoration of the Seventy-fifth Anniversary of the founding of the local Universalist Church, Dr. Frederic W. Perkins of Arlington, Mass., will preach there tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "The Changeless Mission." Dr. Perkins was minister of this church from 1926 to 1939 and was its pastor when the present building was erected.

Dr. Seth R. Brooks, minister, and Dr. John van Schaick, jr., minister emeritus, will take part in the service and Holy Communion will be observed after the occasional sermon. The adult class will meet at 10 a. m. and the church school will hold its sessions at the same hour.

The seventy-fifth anniversary banquet will be held Monday at 7 p. m. in Perkins Hall. Mrs. William H. McGlauflin is chairman of the banquet and Mrs. Martin E. Jansson and a corps of women will prepare the dinner which will be served by members of the Camp Fire Girls. Col. Louis Annin Ames of New York City, president of the Universalist Church of America, will be one of the speakers and ministers of neighborhood churches will be among the guests.

St. John's Rector Returns to Pulpit

The Rev. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, who is on active duty in the Navy, will return tomorrow to preach at the 11 o'clock service. Lieutenant Glenn has been on leave of absence from St. John's for the past year as Chaplain of the Naval Reserve Midshipmen's School on the U. S. S. Prairie State, New York City.

LIEUT. GLENN

Other services for the day will be 8 a. m., Holy Communion; 9:30 a. m., Holy Communion, Chaplain Harry Lee Virden, preacher; 4 p. m. service in French, the Rev. Andre P. Liotard, preacher, and 8 p. m. Evening prayer, the Rev. Howard A. Johnson, preacher.

Visiting Minister to Preach At Cleveland Park Church

The Rev. Clement B. Yinger, minister of the Grace Methodist Church, Haverhill, Mass., will be the guest preacher at the Cleveland Park Congregational Church tomorrow at 11 a. m. "His topic will be "The Mighty Minority: A Spiritual Aristocracy."

Mr. Yinger is the oldest brother of the pastor of the Cleveland Park Church. He is a graduate of the Boston University School of Theology with the S. T. B. and S. T. M. degrees.

Mr. Yinger will preach at 8 p. m. at Foundry Methodist Church.

The annual banquet and meeting of the congregation will be held Thursday at 6:30 p. m. Officers and leaders of the church will make reports of the 1942 church year, and present plans for 1943. Dr. E. Dana Durand, president of the congregation and chairman of the cabinet, will preside.

Drive to Open Tomorrow

The Methodist Union, missionary and church extension society of the District of Columbia and part of Maryland, will launch its annual membership drive tomorrow, continuing through January 24. The Rev. George L. Conner, pastor of Congress Heights Methodist Church, is campaign chairman.

The drive calls for lay leaders of the 100 churches of the West and East Washington Methodist Districts to speak briefly at services January 17 and 24 regarding the project. The union's present membership is 3343 and the goal for 1943 is 4000.

During the past year ten churches have received a total of $1200 in grants to supplement the salaries of eight ministers and deaconesses. A total of $3606 was allocated to 15 rural churches, 5 city and suburban churches and to the Methodist Deaconess Home for building improvement programs. An office was maintained for District superintendents in the Methodist Building on Capitol Hill.

Mission to Open At St. Paul's

The Rev. Charles Macdonald Serson, assistant superior of the Canadian congregation of the Society of St. John the Evangelist, will open a week's mission beginning tomorrow at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Twenty-third Street near Washington Circle.

Little Hoyas Bow, 40-19, to Rockville Five

Georgetown Prep underwent its fifth straight basketball beating of the season yesterday on its home floor when Richard Montgomery High of Rockville hung up a 40-19 triumph after a slow start.

Playing their second game under the coaching of Duke Jacobs, former University of Maryland athlete, the Rockville forces managed for only a 14-10 edge in the first half. They rallied strongly, however, in the third session and won easily.

Cardozo Defeats Armstrong, 37-32

Cardozo High hung up a 37-32 victory yesterday at Banneker gym over Armstrong behind the brilliant basket-making of Winston and Wright, who combined to accumulate 25 points, with Winston clicking for 15.

Jenious and Day led the way for Armstrong with 11 and 8 points, respectively. Close throughout, Cardozo worked its way to a 19-16 halftime advantage and managed to outscore its rival by a two-point margin in the second half.

Sherwood Nips Blair, 34 to 31

Its sixth setback in eight games this season was suffered yesterday by Montgomery Blair High when it was nosed out by Sherwood, 34-31, on the winner's court. Only a few points separated the teams throughout.

Bob Thompson dropped five field goals and as many foul shots to pace the winning cause. Blair's effort was led by the 11 points of O'Connor.

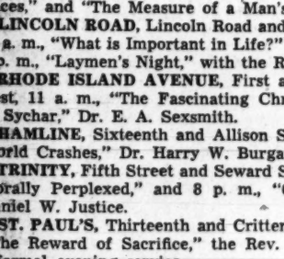
"O, JESUS, THOU ART STANDING"
BISHOP WILLIAM W. HOW



O Jesus, Thou art standing
Outside the fast-closed door,
In lowly patience waiting
To pass the threshold o'er:
Shame on us, Christian brothers,
His Name and sign who bear:
O shame, thrice shame upon us,
To keep Him standing there!

Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS

This popular hymn is said to have had its inspiration in the verses of a beautiful poem, and in Holman Hunt's famous picture, "The Light of the World" depicting the figure of Christ, crowned with thorns, carrying a lighted lantern, knocking at a closed door

First Church Will Hear Dr. Goebel

Dr. Louis W. Goebel, president of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, will preach the anniversary sermon at First Evangelical and Reformed Church, tomorrow at 11 a. m. Dr. Goebel comes from Chicago to speak at the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of First Church, and the twenty-fifth anniversary of the present church building at Thirteenth and Monroe Streets Northwest.

First Reformed Church was born on Christmas Day, 1867. There were only seven laymen who met with the Rev. John W. Ebbinghaus that day and organized the congregation. Within two years the group numbered 60 families.

The Rev. F. N. Schlegel, present pastor of the church, came here in 1940.

Dr. Goebel will also speak Sunday evening at a union meeting of the Evangelical and Reformed Churches of the District, at Grace Reformed Church.

Sayre to Speak At Cathedral Services

The third in the current series of united services will be held tomorrow at 4 p. m. in Washington Cathedral with Francis B. Sayre, former High Commissioner to the Philippines, as guest speaker. This series of services is being sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches and the Cathedral "on behalf of a united people in a time of national emergency," and each month presents a noted speaker, either clergyman or layman, as the guest preacher.

Mr. Sayre, who resigned recently as High Commissioner to the Philippines, is now acting in a special capacity as assistant to the Secretary of State and is also serving on the post-war rehabilitation program headed by Herbert H. Lehman. He will be introduced to the congregation tomorrow afternoon by the Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman.

Former Church Pastor to Return To D. C. Pulpit

Worshipers of Luther Place Memorial Church tomorrow at 11 a. m. will welcome as guest preacher their former pastor, Dr. Charles B. Foelsch, now president of Chicago Lutheran Theological Seminary, Haywood, Ill.

During the service he will install newly elected church councilmen—W. B. Coulter, George R. Eberly, A. Schollman, Carl C. Smuck and Charles A. Whitten.

Concordia To Mark 110th Anniversary

The 110th anniversary celebration of Concordia Lutheran Evangelical Church, Twentieth and G Streets Northwest, will continue tomorrow at 11 a. m., when the speaker will be Dr. Scott R. Wagner, pastor of the Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church, Hagerstown, Md., president of the Potomac Synod of the denomination, and member of its general council.

January 17 is the actual anniversary day, since it was on this day 110 years ago that Concordia Church was organized. Though Concordia Church was an independent congregation for many years it has taken a very active part in denominational matters since it affiliated with the Evangelical Synod of North America in 1926.

Albright Church Has New Schedule

Albright Memorial Evangelical Church will go on a new morning schedule beginning tomorrow, and continuing until Easter, with Sunday school at 10:15 a. m., and worship service at 11:30 a. m. A nursery will handle children during the church hour. Officers of the Women's Council and Men's Brotherhood will be installed tomorrow at 8 p. m.

At 4 p. m. all the church officers will meet for their annual organization and program development. Dr. Albert Rarmussen, director of survey of the Washington Federation of Churches, will speak.

10 Executive Changes Listed By Title Firms

The District, Lawyers and Washington Title Insurance companies yesterday announced nine promotions of officers and the election of a new director, following the annual meeting of stockholders and directors.

Thomas W. Sandoz was elected a new director of Lawyers Title Insurance Co.

John H. Stadtler was promoted to secretary of the companies, succeeding the late Harry M. Packard. E. Roy Hill was elected treasurer of the companies, succeeding Mr. Packard, who also held that post.

Frank Paroni and J. Vernon Thomas were elevated to assistant treasurers of the companies and E. Spencer Fitzgerald became assistant secretary.

Newly named title officers are Earl P. Ready, W. O. Donohue and Robert A. Ryland, while Robert S. Bains was named an assistant title officer.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Peoples Drug Sales Set Record

Net sales of Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., in 1942 set a new all-time high of $32,605,986, a gain of 17.7 per cent over the 1941 volume.

Treasurer W. H. Churchill said last night that December sales of $3,914,932 were 19 per cent heavier than in the same month of 1942. The report was made without adjustment for change in number of stores.

Ration Bank Fees Listed

The Office of Price Administration announced yesterday the compensation to be received by banks which participate in the Nationwide ration banking plan beginning January 27.

For the first account opened by any depositor in any one office of the bank 30 cents; for each additional account opened for the same depositor at the same bank, 0.5 cents; for each deposit carried on the books of the bank on the fifteenth of the month, 10 cents; for each deposit made .05 cents; for each item included in the deposit, .005; for each ration check debited to an account .04 cent.

Ration banking does not affect the public but will be used to simplify the handling of coupons and certificates by various business concerns.

The compensation paid to banks by OPA is intended to cover the cost of bank labor and printed forms necessary, as well as for depreciation of office machines and other equipment.

Three Report Assets Gain

Three Washington building associations yesterday reported gains in assets, following annual meetings at which all three reelected officers and directors.

Martin A. Cook, secretary, reported that assets of Enterprise Building Association during the past year increased about $100,000 to a new record of $2,520,523.

Secretary Joseph T. Fitzgerald of Mutual Building Association reported assets at a new peak of $790,000.

Resources of Home Building Association, according to Secretary James M. Woodward, increased to $994,483.

Reserve Bank Net Doubles

The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond in its 28th annual report yesterday showed net earnings of $599,197 for 1942, as compared with $278,399 in the previous year.

Interest on Government securities was $3,187,859, as compared with $2,281,195 in 1941.

Total assets rose to $1,516,672,736, against $1,042,943,453 in 1941. Total deposits as of December 31, 1942, were $600,445,063, as compared with $514,440,473 at the same time in 1941.

Two Agents to Get Plaques

Two members of the Washington office of the New York Life Insurance Co. will receive plaques for outstanding sales records last year, Manager Earl D. Krewson reported yesterday. They are David A. Samakow who led the local office in volume of paid business in 1942 and Jay C. Brown who led in number of lives insured.

Local Dividend Voted

Directors of the Federal Stroage Co., Washington, have declared a dividend of $1 a share on common stock, payable January 25 to stockholders of record January 15. At the annual meeting, all officers and directors were reelected.

Assets Show Gain

Assets of the Citizens Bank of Riverdale, Md., rose in 1942 to $1,844,000, it was reported yesterday. All officers and directors were reelected at the annual meeting this week.

The Federal Diary

Editor's note: Today and every Saturday the Federal Diary is turned over to Government workers for their views and comments. Send contributions to Jerry Kluttz, editor.

The Federal Diary has been carrying a series of articles on how the Government can be improved. One of the most telling contributions toward that end, it seems to me, is elimination of the red tape that paralyzes our offices. The finest statement I've seen on this subject was written by Maj. Gen. William N. Porter, chief of the Chemical Warfare Service. If every Federal office would adopt the general's attitude on red tape we could drive it from our offices and the Federal service would be greatly improved. This is his timely statement:

This war isn't going to be won by red tape. And our role in it can be hamstrung by over-emphasis of nonessential routine.

Times are too critical to tolerate the fetish of paperwork. Or the niceties of peacetime "system." Our administrative function has become so huge that it can easily bog down if we become enmeshed in too much red tape.

It is necessary to keep our records straight, but there is an unfortunate tendency toward unnecessary fastidiousness. Mounting pressure and duties combine to build up desk routine. It can pyramid to a point where it can strangle perspective and deaden initiative.

Military and civilian personnel both are urged to take stock of their paper procedure with a view to cutting corners. Don't be a stickler for routine ritual. We are engaged in a life-or-death struggle. This is no time to haggle over technicalities established under easy-going normal conditions. It behooves us to use our heads more and our forms less.

Let me cite a few passing examples of what I consider to be wasted time and effort:

Don't require a letter to be rewritten because the typewriter key happened to say, strike a "d" instead of a "b" in the original copy, or because a word should be hyphenated. Such things are trivial. Simply correct with a pen and turn to something important. The communication will be just as intelligible to the person receiving it. Besides, the officer originating the letter and the stenographer transcribing it will be saved double work. Minutes thus saved amount to hours in the aggregate.

Then, too, there is a general inclination to over-write. This applies alike to letters and reports. Some routine reports coming over my desk could well be boiled down to at least half their present size. Ordinary correspondence can likewise be dehydrated.

Generally speaking, the Service is too busy for ordinary thank-you letters and engaging in polite correspondence about nonessentials.

A simple memo is to be preferred to formal by-pass correspondence. Since speed is the essence, the famous "Tinker, to Evers, to Chance" play of the past can be made just as effective by a direct throw to home plate.

Interoffice correspondence in particular consumes much time and paper. Keep it at a minimum. Why wait a day or two for a written "yes" or "no" when direct contact will get such reply pronto? You have a 'phone on your desk. Use it! And, if necessary, use your legs! You may be able to work in some needed exercise.

File space is limited and paper is not. As in the case of attics at home, our files probably contain much material that is no longer "alive." It would be helpful if each division weeded out records that have become dead. Above all, don't duplicate material that is available down the hall.

Undoubtedly many other steps can be taken to economize on formality. These can be studied and adapted to the needs of particular units. My desire is to leave you with the thought that there is too much red tape. And it is growing. Cut it out before it hog-ties you. Don't let it clog the gears of your Victory mechanism.

MAJ. GEN. WM. N. PORTER.

I've been working in Government offices since 1917. At that time I had to pay $1 for a dozen eggs, 65 cent a pound for smelly steak, and milk wasn't available unless it was bought in cans. Rat-ridden apartments with roaches and other vermin rented for $65. You heated this expensive apartment with coal, if you could get the coal. We had to buy a load of wood and sawed it ourselves so it would fit the range in the kitchen.

The kitchen was our dressing room, bathing room, etc. Streetcars, as a rule, opened at the middle and were really crowded. Folks on them smiled when they bumped into each other—the men used to tip their hats—good old days! No one glared at you because you had to come into a car with a wet umbrella. I had a gnawing ache in my heart, for I could get no news from my husband at the front—he was missing in action.

There were no ration tickets. Butter tasted rancid and flour had tiny wrigglers in it. Sugar was scarce. You either carried your lunch, or bought it from a cart in front of your building. Folks gave each other courage by showing only their best side. Then late in 1919 came the "flu epidemic." Many of my neighbors and friends died over night. One friend had to prepare her brother's body for burial because undertakers were too busy to come to her aid. During all those hard times I never heard one complaint.

Circumstances are only what we allow them to be. Occasionally we see one person in ten who will have a bright happy face. You like to be near them, they radiate life. If we complain we are allowing the worst to take root in us. Our soldiers are bearing discomforts—who are we to complain?

Of course, people at large have had the idea that a Government clerk has been just about the most spoiled, the most pampered, the highest paid and the laziest kind of a worker. If your office hasn't enough work, you have no right to take the pay and stay there. There are plenty of overworked and undermanned offices which can use you.

Baltimore—Baltimore & Ohio Railroad officials said yesterday that many of the line's lounge, club, parlor and specially designed "luxury" cars were being converted into passenger coaches. Many of the diners are being remodeled also to accommodate more persons.

Cold Building; Hot Subject

Officials representing the striking United Mine Workers, meeting last night with John L. Lewis, head of the union, in their building at Fifteenth and I Streets Northwest, met in a heatless building. An electric heater was used in the room where reporters were waiting. Officials said the building engineer had not been notified of the meeting.

Catoe Sings Hymn Going To His Death

Rape Murderer Shows No Emotion as He Walks to Electric Chair in District Jail

With no more show of emotion than he displayed while confessing six brutal rape murders, Jarvis Theodore Roosevelt Catoe, Negro, 38, walked unaided to his death in the electric chair at the District Jail yesterday.

He was pronounced dead at 10:13 a. m., five minutes after the current was shot through his body.

Accompanied by his spiritual advisor, the Rev. James L. Pinn, pastor of the Goodwill Baptist Church, Catoe chanted the hymn "Precious Lord Take My Hand" as he approached the death chamber.

At the door he paused momentarily and then waved to Jail Superintendent E. A. Green. As he sat limply in the chair, his right hand gripping the arm, he resumed the hymn. . . . "Lord, lead me on. . . ."

Catoe was executed for the slaying of Rose Abramowitz, bride of a month, who was strangled in her apartment at 1900 Sixteenth Street Northwest, March 8, 1941.

A former District cab driver, Catoe was seized here in August, 1941, in connection with the murder in New York City of Evelyn D. Anderson, 26. He admitted five local slayings, the Anderson strangulation, 10 rapes and two attempted rapes, but later repudiated all his confessions.

Tubercular Cases Move To Be Monday

Twenty to 40 convalescent tubercular patients will be moved to the renovated old Tuberculosis Hospital at Fourteenth and Upshur Streets Northwest on Monday, Commissioner Guy Mason announced last night.

Though there had been some talk of using these premises for maternity or other cases if the present survey of hospital facilities had so indicated, Mason said that there has been no reason shown why the original plans to move these patients in should not be followed.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland hailed as a major step in the District's health program the acquisition of a convalescent home, which he believes will accommodate 150 patients.

WPB Conservation Unit Headed by N. Y. Man

Howard Coonley of New York City, has been appointed director of a new conservation division of the War Production Board, it was announced yesterday by Ernest Kanzler, director general for operations.

Coonley, formerly board chairman of the Walworth Co. and a past president of the National Association of Manufacturers, has been a deputy director of the Conservation Division, which has now been split into two divisions.

U. of M. Students Take Trolley to Prom

ALL OFF!—University of Maryland students last night boarded streetcars at College Park, Md., and rode to Fourteenth and G Streets Northwest to attend their school's senior prom at the Willard Hotel. This group had a trolley party instead of using autos, as they might have before the ban on pleasure driving.

WPB, Police Discuss Need Of Equipment

Shortages in police equipment and the necessity of making provision for the production and distribution of indispensable items was discussed yesterday at the Willard Hotel during an all-day meeting of a special advsiory committee representing the International Association of Chiefs of Police, and officials of the governmental section of the War Production Board.

To facilitate the discussion, police equipment was placed in two categories: indispensable, and that which might be modified or else dispensed with altogether. In the first classification were placed firearms, ammunition, radio, motor and laboratory equipment, etc. Whistles, Sam Browne belts and similar items were relegated to the other category.

It was announced that arrangements had been made whereby police departments will be able to obtain minimum, three-month ammunition supplies, on a per-man basis, without obtaining Government clearance. Should more than the stipulated minimum be desired, however, it still will be necessary to proceed through the various agencies involved.

Police officials attending the meeting included Washington's Maj. Edward J. Kelly, Supt. Edward J. Kelly of the Rhode Island State Police, Chief Joseph Owens of Rome, N. Y., president of the association; Hugh Clegg, assistant director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; Col. Beverly Ober, superintendent of Maryland State Police; Chief Inspector Stephen G. Nelson of Baltimore, Chief H. L. Woodyard of Arlington County, Va., and Commissioner Edward J. Hickey, Connecticut State Police.

Servicemen Fool Reporter Who Goes Hunting Secrets

The large room was crowded with sailors, soldiers and marines. Some were just sitting and talking. Others were dancing. There was a great air of abandon about the group.

This, thought your Post reporter, is the kind of scene the War Department was thinking of when it issued detailed orders about what the boys should and should not talk about. Here, of course, we would learn all sorts of military secrets, we assumed.

So in we went to sit with any lonely looking members of the armed forces.

Lonesome Sailors

Two sailors looked both lonesome and friendly. They rose politely when we sat down. No, they didn't come from Washington. Both were from the Middle West and in Washington for the first time.

They confessed they had just completed a course at the Great Lakes Training Station. This, of course, could hardly be called a secret. The boys are permitted to talk about troops in training, and the existence of this training station is a fairly well-established fact.

But, undaunted, we went on: "What did you learn during your training?"

"Well," replied the blond boy, with a mysterious smile, "we learned all sorts of things." He paused and then said in a confidential tone of voice, "We learned mostly how to sleep in hammocks."

His pal then did a bit of grousing. But nothing you could put your finger on.

Your Mata Hari moved along once more, growing more and more discouraged with her ability as a spy but constantly prouder of the boys in the armed forces who, if they do know anything they shouldn't disclose, certainly were tight lipped last night.

Two members of a bomb disposal crew seemed like promising subjects.

"These boys seem naive and trusting," we thought.

"What do fellows in the bomb disposal work do," they were asked.

"Well, the job is to take fuses out of bombs that don't go off. Yes I guess it's pretty dangerous work. Well, I don't know just what the boys in this country do. You see we're both cooks for the crews."

So we had uncovered a couple of hard-working cooks. They go everywhere with their outfit, but so far this has led them no further than Aberdeen.

The Marines are reputedly tough, so we decided to improve our luck by changing to another branch of the service. An 18-year-old Marine with a baby face and bulging muscles said with scorn:

"We're just here on show. I've only been here a couple of weeks and I seem to do nothing but parade. I sure would like to go back to Maryland where I was before getting sent here."

"What were you doing in Maryland?"

The young marine's face grew stern.

"That," he said, with great dignity, "is a secret."

With that as a parting shot, we decided to let well enough alone and go back home happy in the knowledge that our boys don't tell the secrets they know and don't make up secrets they don't know.

Veteran's Widow Gives 2 Sons, Time, Money to Aid War Effort

JOHN McCLOSKEY — MRS. DORIS McCLOSKEY — BERNARD McCLOSKEY

Mrs. Doris K. McCloskey, widow of an overseas veteran of the first World War and an employe of the Bureau of Internal Revenue for 10 years, is furnishing both fighting men and fighting dollars to the Nation's war effort.

She has two sons, previously supported on her modest salary, now in the Navy, both serving on aircraft carriers. They are John W. and Bernard K. McCloskey, both of whom enlisted under age with their mother's cheerfully given consent.

Despite her limited funds, Mrs. McCloskey bought stamps and bonds as soon as they were offered for sale by the Government; later began systematic purchases when the payroll savings plan was instituted, and, still later, became a "Minute Woman," a roll in which she successfully enrolled fellow employes in the payroll savings plan.

Carrying her patriotism still further, Mrs. McCloskey serves as medical adjutant at a local Civilian Defense control center. She trained for several weeks to qualify for the position, usually held by a physician.

Mrs. McCloskey's 30,067 fellow employes in the bureau have established one of the finest records in the Government in the purchase of war bonds; 95.1 per cent have invested 10.7 per cent of their gross pay in bonds.

Driving Ban Frees Jacola The Falcon

A PEREGRINE FALCON

Jacola the Falcon, creature of method and education, is said to be back in the nooks, niches and crannies of the old Postoffice tower keeping herself warm and the starlings' lives even more so, her erstwhile owner, William Turner, reported yesterday.

Jacola the Falcon's reputed watch in the tower came about when pleasure cars stopped being driven about. Being Jacola the Falcon meant much soaring and plummeting in the skies—only those directly above great open fields which are not to be found in the city. Owner Turner set Jacola free yesterday because it has been for pleasure that he has been driving out in the fields to let Jacola, his falcon, soar and plummet.

Jacola can still soar and plummet, but must do it now without an owner and without a nice field to return to for its owner. Most of Jacola's flying, it was reported, will be enjoyed in the skies directly above the old Postoffice tower, where starlings and others are known to abound.

Jacola the Falcon came by her name in November of last year when she was captured by Turner in the tower after three years' plotting. Jacola is a peregrine falcon, he says, and is not to be seen in any old tower any old time.

Jacola formerly maintained residence in 6230 Thirty-third Street Northwest.

5 Stars of Taurus Group Hidden By Moon Tonight

An occultation, featured by such bright performers as "275 B. Tauri" and "Theta 1 Tauri" will take place tonight, according to solemn assurances from the Navy Department.

Admission is free; locale, the heavens; time, between 5:16 p. m. and 11:46 p. m.

The occulation, it appears, will occur when five stars of the constellation of Tarus are occulted—hidden from view—by the moon's shadow. Chief performer, further advises the Navy Department, will be Aledbaran, "a reddish star of the first magnitude." Magnitude is something that comes in decimals. Theta 2 Tauri, for instance, has a magntude of 3.6.

"The phase of the moon will be about four days after the first quarter," says the Navy Department release on the subject.

Chi Deuteron Party

The Chi Deuteron Charge of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity will celebrate the opening of its new house, 1912 G Street Northwest, with a housewarming and a reception from 4 to 7 p. m. tomorrow.

D. C. Heads Would Pare Pay Rise Plan

Ask Increases For Teachers, Police, Firemen Be Limited to 10%

By Robert W. Harvey
Post Staff Writer

Lower and more restricted pay increases for District police, firemen and teachers, in place of more liberal ones provided in the pending McCarran bills, were asked of the Senate District Committee yesterday by the Commissioners.

At a day-long committee hearing on the pay raise legislation, local government heads offered substitute bills which would give the three employe groups exactly the same treatment given nonovertime workers in the Federal pay raise bill. This would provide:

(1) A 10 per cent increase on all salaries up to $2900 a year.

(2) A 10 per cent increase on the $2900 portion of all annual salaries above that figure, providing that the aggregate of raise and basic salary did not exceed $5000.

Duration Proposition

Moreover, they first asked that these rates run only until April 30, as do those set by the Federal bill, but agreed to legislate for the duration when Senator McCarran flatly rejected any short term legislation.

These proposed boosts are considerably less liberal then those contained in the McCarran bills, on which testimony was taken at the session.

McCarran's legislation would give policemen and firemen a 20 per cent increase on salaries up to $2400, and 20 per cent on the $2400 portion of all salaries above that. Under his measure, a private would start at $2280 and draw $2880 after his fifth year of service, whereas under the Commissioners' proposal the range would be from $2090 to $2640.

15% Teachers' Rise Urged

His legislation provided a 15 per cent raise for the teachers, as compared with the 10 per cent offered by the Commissioners, and gave 10 per cent on the $3500 portion of higher-bracket salaries earned by Board of Education workers. This latter would place the increase ceiling at $350 instead of $290.

Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech and Commissioner Young explained that their alternative proposal was based on a desire to make the special legislation conform exactly to the Federal bill under which other District of Columbia employes got their increases.

McCarran, however, did not seem enthusiastic about the substitution. He said he had doubts that a 10 per cent boost would give adequate relief in the lower brackets, where relief was most sorely needed. He pointed out that the alternate plan would give a $1400 school teacher only $140 more, describing this as hardly adequate to meet extra living costs.

Work More Than 48 Hours

Earlier, spokesmen for the police and firemen had pointed out that members of both services are working far in excess of 48 hours a week—some firemen even averaging 72 hours a week, with their "spare time" devoted to civilian defense instruction. They pointed out that under the Federal bill, employes working 48 hours would be getting a 21 per cent raise—the basis of their asking for a 20 per cent increase.

It was also declared that the uniformed services have had no increases since 1930, and later teacher representatives reminded the committee that they had received no raise in their scale since 1924.

Others, including Major Kelly and George J. Richardson, secretary of the International Association of Firefighters, testified that it is increasingly hard to fill vacancies on the forces at the low prevailing wage—particularly because most available men now are family men.

Labor Shortage Cited

Kelly said that because of personnel shortages added duties were inevitably being imposed on the men of the force. He asserted that the 200 extra police which were first requested in the 1944 budget would be "only a drop in the bucket" in comparison with needs. The city only has about 1700 policemen, he reported, compared with an estimated 2500 which would constitute a minimum adequate force.

Miss Selma Borchardt, vice president of the National Federation of Teachers, testified on the teacher bill that the 15 per cent raise provided was based on the War Labor Board's standard of living cost increases in the little steel decision. Actually, she added, costs here have risen higher than that.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, made a strong plea for permanent raises for the teachers, declaring that unless something is done to encourage young people to select teaching as a profession "five years from now we won't have any trained teachers." Low wages now keep many out of the profession, he added.

Sidelights in the Nation's Capital at War

Celebration of the President's Birthday will begin in the District this morning at 11:45 when Mrs. Roosevelt and Commissioner John Russell Young will drop the first two dimes on the Mile o' Dimes stand in front of the Capitol Theateer on F Street.

Both Mrs. Roosevelt and Mr. Young will speak in a 15-minute broadcast from the stand, to open the annual drive for local infantile paralysis funds. The broadcast will be carried by five of the local radio stations. Station WOL, which will participate in later phases of the drive, is prevented by previous commitments from joining the send-off. Last year the Mile o' Dimes garnered $30,000 from charitable passersby.

Negroes to Protest Rail Hearing Delay

A citizens' emergency conference has been called by the Committee on Jobs for Negroes in Public Utilities and the District of Columbia Council of Negro Labor Leaders for tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A. to protest the postponement of the fair employment practices railroad hearings.

Charles S. Hill, president of the joint committee, said the conference would be held "in face of the danger of the President's order No. 802 being nullified by Commissioner McNutt's indefinite suspension of the hearings."

Scott to Discuss Fuel Oil Situation

Lester Scott, director of the fuel oil dealers' section of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, will discuss the fuel oil situation at a special meeting which the Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens Association has arranged for Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the Brightwood School.

The sponsoring organization has invited interested members of all other civic groups to attend the meeting.

Children's Theater Play January 30

Remaining four plays in the current series sponsored by the Children's Theater will be shown at the National Theater, where the next attraction will be "Beauty and the Beast," on January 30, it was announced yesterday. Tickets are on sale at the museum.

Man Hurt as Truck Crushes Automobile

George R. Carter, Negro, 44, of Churchtown, Md., suffered fractured ribs and cuts yesterday when his automobile was struck by a heavy trailer truck at Third and K Streets Northwest. He was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Accident investigation officers reported the truck operated by Bynum B. Barnes, 28, of Broone, N. C., was westbound on K Street and made a left turn into Carter's machine. Barnes was charged with failing to yield right of way.

Naval Officers Give $1200 in Charities

One of Them Is Current at the Earle, Where 'Road to Morocco' Is the Hit; Rufe Davis' Stage Arrival Briefly Delayed

"ROAD TO MOROCCO." Paramount picturization of an original screen play by Frank Butler and Don Hartman, costarring Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour, with Anthony Quinn, Dona Drake, Mikhail Rasumny, Vladimir Sokoloff, George Givot, Andrew Tombes, Leon Belasco, Jamiel Hasson and Monte Blue. Directed by David Butler. At the Earle Theater.

NEVER MIND if "Road to Morocco," the new nonsense on the screen at the Earle Theater, ends precisely where it begins—on a life raft, bouncing helplessly around on a salty sea. That is Bob Hope's fault.

Mr. Hope, it seems—at least for the purposes of this charade—entertains the catastrophic conceit of lighting his cigarettes in the "powder room" aboard the luxury leviathans on which he is traveling. He always gets into the wrong one—gun, instead of talc! The first time, he and Mr. Crosby are Europe-bound; the last, back to New York. In between, there are enough minor explosions of madhouse mirth to blow the patrons right out of their pews on gales of laughter.

When Mr. Bing "Jeff Peters" Crosby and Mr. Bob "Turkey Jackson" Hope finally manage a landing in North Africa—undiscovered as yet by the Afrika Korps, British Eighth Army or the American A. E. F.—they are confronted by acute economic difficulties and dismal fears for the future. They reassure themselves, however, with the lyrics of the title song of the picture, sung athwart an undulating camel, bound they know not whither, which comfort them with the thought that they probably will run across Dorothy Lamour somewhere along the way and Paramount won't let anything happen to them, anyhow, because they've just been signed to a new five-year contract!

Once arrived at a center of civilization, of a sort, Mr. Peters relieves the financial stringency by selling Mr. Jackson to the plump gentleman with the beard for the tidy sum of $200. In desperation, Mr. Jackson summons the shade of his departed Aunt Lucy—who turns out to be Mr. Hope in curls, shroud and harp—whose helpful suggestions are only fragmentary because "Here comes Mr. Jordan." That will give you a sketchy idea of how things go all the way along.

Mr. Jackson, though, finds himself in a less precarious predicament than he had anticipated. Instead of being sold into a slavery of penury and hard labor, he has been bartered into a life of regal opulence as the prospective groom of the Princess Shalmar, vaguely betrothed to Mullay Kassim, the Casanova of the Sahara. Mr. Peters, needless to say, is pretty annoyed about the whole thing and immediately sets himself up as a nice catch for the princess on his own account. Ensuing events completely justify that camel in sticking his head in the tent and naively remarking that "This is the screwiest picture I've ever been in." It gets screwier as it goes along, reaching its convulsive culmination in the desert rendezvous where all concerned are assembled to arrive at an amicable burying of the hatchet—in each other's skulls!

Played With a Tongue in Every Cheek

This romp along the "Road to Morocco" is pie for the trio that tuned up for their latest marathon of merriment on those other roads that led to Singapore and Zanzibar. They sing intermittently, kid incessantly and "gag" outrageously to a mounting storm of hilarity. "Road to Morocco," "Moonlight Becomes You," "Constantly" and "Ain't Got a Dime to My Name" are nicely woven into the cockeyed pattern of the piece. Particularly goofy is the trio when Princess Shalmar Lamour appears as a desert mirage and joins in a few startling choruses. When she opens her mouth, it is Mr. Crosby's voice that comes out; when he sings, it is Hope's, and when Hope sings, it is Miss Lamour's! It will kill you.

The stellar trio is by no means alone in the gritty desert going. Anthony Quinn, looking amazingly like Valentino in "The Sheik" in some of the shots, is an amiable brigand, who contributes largely to the high blood pressure of that final scene at the "peace conference," and Dona Drake, as the princess' lady-in-waiting, makes the royal palace doubly attractive. Less conspicuously cast, Vladimir Sokoloff, Mikhail Rasumny, Jamiel Hasson and Monte Blue also are in there pitching panic.

Yesterday's first performance of the stage bill was subject to slight dislocation, owing to wartime transportation difficulties. Rube Davis, who was to have headlined, was unable to catch a plane out of Cleveland in time for the first show and was replaced by Johnny Burke, one of the occupants of this space yesterday, loaned in a warmly cooperative spirit by Loew's Capitol. Prior to that announcement the Cristianis, five men and an uncommonly sturdy and durable feminine partner, had demonstrated the perfection of acrobatic tumbling in a series of whirlwind feats, and the Roxyettes had transformed themselves into an ensemble of "sailorettes" that any man's Navy might envy. They also closed the bill effectively with Jeannie Lanier in "Toyland." By now, one supposes, the bucolic Mr. Davis is dominating the goings-on with his unique brand of humor and music.

The intensely moving "You, John Jones," costarring James Cagney, Ann Sothern and the prodigious little Margaret O'Brien, especially made to honor "United Nations Week;" the newsreel and Jo Lombardi's "United Nations" overture are the anchorweights that partially balance the most contagiously crazy feature of the season.

The Boys Will Try Anything Once!

BING CROSBY AND BOB HOPE

experiment with all manner of magic formulas to solve the more ominous predicaments into which they are projected during the course of Paramount's "Road to Morocco," now on view at the Earle Theater. Dorothy Lamour and Dona Drake are the Oriental charmers picked up along a funnier road than the ones to Singapore or Zanzibar

HEDDA HOPPER

Still Wooing Cyrano

Hollywood, Calif., Jan. 15.—Those huddles between Orson Welles and Alexander Korda mean that they're still talking about a joint production of "Cyrano de Bergerac." Orson tells me they won't get at it for at least two years. When he finishes "Jane Eyre" for Twentieth Century, he wants to do an important picture with a war background. Saturday night Orson showed up at Ciro's escorting Mme. Wellington Koo. They had a grand time. That lad certainly gets around. . . . I wouldn't have believed it possible—I don't yet—but I hear George Bernard Shaw has given permission for Monty Woolley (otherwise known as "The Beard") to play his life on the screen. I hope, if they do get around to it, they'll leave in the scene of Shaw when he visited the West Coast. He was surrounded by screen stars, asking him questions which he answered so bluntly that our stars, Ann Harding among them, fled from him in tears!

ORSON WELLES

One Booster, Anyway

In a telegram from Gabriel Pascal, he says, "I'm working on a story for pictures inspired and suggested by that wonderfully pure man, Henry Wallace, Vice President of this great country, which I expect to start in Hollywood come spring." . . . George Brent will be in the Coast Guard two weeks from now. The reason Vic Mature was sent to Iceland was that the Coast Guard doesn't like the kind of publicity he brought to it. . . . I don't think it will be many days before little Susan Hayward and John Carroll marry. They are certainly wild about each other—"wild" is the word. Yet when they were doing "Hit Parade" together, they hated each other with such a vengeance that once the little Susan slapped his face—which so often leads to love, or so I'm told. . . . That good-looking actress, Lee Patrick, plays a WAAC in "Cross Your Fingers." . . . Incidentally, in that, too, Leo Carrillo has the best part handed him in a long time.

The victory committee had better stop its monkey business, cut out politics, and run the actors' business in a dignified manner. The latest difference concerns Linda Darnell. She was cleared by the victory committee to go with Kay Kyser to Fort MacArthur Sunday but Saturday night, while dining at Mocambo with Bill Stern, Betty Grable and George Raft, along came Billy Seymour, a private in uniform, who said, "You must entertain our unit, which is going overseas." He gave all the details. Linda told him she was going with Kyser. Billy said, "O, I'll quickly fix that with the victory committee." He quickly did. At noon Sunday Kay was informed Linda wouldn't be along. Then things really got hot. I'm not blaming Linda. I'm blaming those hired to protect stars but who, instead, are shoving them around . . . Well, Linda went to Fort MacArthur. So did Gracie McDonald and Georgia Carroll. But the one who stopped the show was Charlotte Greenwood. One of the best performers, however, was a colored private in the audience, who must have been a drummer, because when Kay's drummer got down to business, the colored boy really took off. He didn't need an engine or wings—he was up in the clouds anticipating every beat . . . Kay, who's doing more than any star in Hollywood, doesn't deserve such treatment, and I don't understand it—nor does anybody else.

Now is the Time

With the new call for millions of pints of blood, Twentieth is hurrying up their picture on Dr. Norman Bethune, who founded the blood bank . . . "Heaven Can Wait," but didn't. Don Ameche shaved off his mustache for it . . . Paramount signed Blanca, the Jugo-Slav singer at New York's Casino Russe. She's a dead ringer for Lana Turner

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Invading the Psychopathic Ward!

Hollywood, Jan. 15 (INS).—If David Selznick were planning to produce the life and career of Satan, himself, it wouldn't have stirred up more commotion than his idea to make "Mein Kampf." Whom will David cast in the Hitler role? Charlie Chaplin has been suggested because Charlie's Hitler in "The Great Dictator" is the best so far. If David pictures Herr Hitler as all of us think of him, he will have a devil with extra horns. "Mein Kampf" is not only Hitler's career, but also his political philosophies so abhorrent to us.

DAVID O. SELZNICK

I understand that Selznick plans to treat the Nazi peacock's autobiography as a psychopathic study, and that he is still in the middle of discussions with Washington officials.

Wowie—but Marianne Quon is a beauty! The prettiest Chinese girl these eyes have ever beheld. She is on the M.-G.-M. lot playing Keye Luke's sweetheart in "Dr. Gillespie's Criminal Case." Marianna comes from San Francisco, where her father, Quon Kee, is a cafe owner and she herself has been studying marine drafting. When Paramount was in search of Chinese talent someone saw Marianna and she was brought to Hollywood. She was given a bit. But she photographs so well that M.-G.-M. promptly signed her.

Betty Rowland, who is to Hollywood what Ann Corio and Gypsy Rose Lee are to Broadway, has had two eminent visitors at the Burbank Theater the last week. These men are from the RKO studios. They are contemplating putting on "The Burlesque Queen" and have been studying Miss Rowland's possibilities. She was billed as "The Original Ball of Fire" and, from her pictures, she has an extremely pretty face. But it is "figger" the boys are after, if you'll pardon me.

Jack Oakie, like old man river, keeps rolling along—and he rolls next into the new Sonja Henie movie, "Winter Time. Sonja, now touring with her ice carnival, is expected back in about a month.

Robert Benchley caught a plane out of New York this week to report to RKO for "The Sky's the Limit," with Fred Astaire and Joan Leslie. Bob, believe it or not, plays his first romantic movie role—a magazine editor hopelessly in love with one of his staff (Joan).

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Henry Fonda had 24 hours leave from camp and spent most of the time in his garden; Steffi Duna and her baby are doing very well and Dennis O'Keefe is at last able to smile. He was so worried over Steffi when the child arrived prematurely.

Lionel Newman has written a song for the girl friend, Lois Andrews, to sing at camps and it's called "I Want to Be a Soldier's Sweetheart;" Luise Rainer at the "Silver Skates" preview with Altin Brody, head of a film lab here; Jerome Cowan is testing for Mr. Skeffington opposite Alexis Smith.

LEONARD LYONS

Broadway Bulletins

New York, Jan. 15.

Wendell Willkie has confessed that one of his pet dislikes was, until recently, the college president. For some inexplicable reason, he had an aversion to all college presidents . . . During his recent round-the-world trip, Willkie visited Chingtu, where all the universities in China now use the same building for their respective students. Willkie was called upon to address the combined student bodies. He discovered that the man on his right, whose job it would be to translate his speech, was a college president. "I got rid of my complex," Willkie revealed, "by uttering jibes at all college presidents—which the president had to translate."

ALFRED HITCHCOCK

Bill Chenery will become publisher of Collier's. He will be succeeded as editor of that magazine by the present managing editor, Charles Colebaugh . . . Alfred Rheinstein, formerly of the City Housing Authority, will be named by Gov. Dewey to the State Housing Commission . . . When two Hapsburg princes, brothers of Otto of Austria, arrived at Camp Lee, Va., through some strange accident they both had to drape their royal personages in second-hand uniforms . . . John Steinbeck is coming east to do additional writing for the Air Force . . . Richard Lovejoy, the young writer to whom Steinbeck gave his $1,000 Pulitzer Prize, is in the Army.

This week "Shadow of a Doubt" had its Broadway premiere, and it ranks with the best of Alfred Hitchcock's thrillers. Joseph Cotten, who plays the leading role, gives an admirable performance, fulfilling the promise he gave in Orson Welles' WPA and Mercury Theater productions. It's been a long pull for Joe Cotten. He was a professional football player, who turned to newspaper-writing in Florida. Then he came to New York, to radio and the theater. David Belasco saw him, and was excited by his prospects. "You will become the great leading man of the next generation," Belasco assured him, and as a complete expression of his faith, he signed Cotten to a lifetime contract . . . Then a week later, Belasco died.

Orson Welles has decided not to renew his radio contract with Lockheed, so that he can devote more time to his duties with the Rockefeller Committee . . . Peter Arno, the cartoonist, will embark upon another tour of the Army camps, to draw a new series of cartoons for the Army . . . Upton Sinclair has started his newest book, fifth in the current series. The new one will cover the period starting with the war in Spain, to the beginning of the present war . . . Assemblyman Owen McGiven, protege of Mike Kennedy, leader of Tammany Hall, is entering the Navy . . . Ambassador Joe Grew will be the recipient of a flock of honorary degrees.

Last week, when the new Heinz-Information Please contract was signed, the arrangements were completed at a supper in a West Fifty-second Street restaurant. Dan Golenpaul, producer of "Information Please," arrived there first, with Franklin P. Adams. Golenpaul had the waiters place upon the table all the available products of the new sponsor . . . The sponsor's representative arrived, presented the contracts, which were duly examined and then initialed. Adams then hoisted his drink, nodded toward the sponsor's representative, and toasted him: "Here's better luck next time."

Representative Ham Fish's daughter will work in Washington. Her father is seeking a job for her there . . . Robert Henriques, British author of the prizewinning "No Arms, No Armour," and of the forthcoming "Voice of the Trumpet," has been promoted to lieutenant colonel . . . Al Smith, who is resting at a hospital, isn't permitted to read any newspapers, receive any phone calls or listen to any radio programs

Metropolitan

Whatever extravagances of praise may have been heaped upon the Warner Brothers production of "Now, Voyager" upon the occasion of its first presentation on a Washington screen have been conclusively justified by the subsequent popularity of the picture in its uninterrupted downtown run. Having scored an initial capacity week at the Earle, this valiant subject now enters its third week at the Metropolitan, its fourth and final in the midcity area.

Based on a sound, thoroughly entertaining and uplifting story, with psychiatry at the bottom of a warming love idyll, "Now, Voyager" affords roles of more than ordinary worth for the splendid talents of Bette Davis, Paul Henreid, Claude Rains, Gladys Cooper, Ilka Chase, John Loder, Bonita Granville, Janis Wilson and a considerable list of others. In its content and performance it is the sort of film that sticks in memory. Those who have not seen it, should.

Clubs

By Genevieve Reynolds
The Post Club Editor

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

Women's clubs are in a spot. With the curtailment of travel for the duration, conventions will be few and far between. But the worst blow is the cut in speakers — a large part of the vitality and life of the organizations. All this is a serious threat to club life.

Sizing up the situation quickly, resourceful Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, composed of 2,500,000 members in 16,500 clubs, has an alternative ready. In order to help organizations which cannot obtain speakers, the alert federation leader has had forums compiled on all phases of war service. These forums consist of prepared programs with attached 15-minute speeches. The speeches have been written by outstanding authorities. So the clubwoman will read a speech at an open forum, followed by discussion. At present there are forums available on all types of war service in Latin America, Canada, fine arts, return to religion, and legislation.

Mme. Thor Thors, wife of the Minister from Iceland, will speak at the meeting of the Political Study Club scheduled for 2:30 p. m. today at the Washington Club.

A tea for volunteer workers in the National Catholic Community Service will be given tomorrow at the N Street USO, under the chairmanship of Miss Nina Kinsella.

Doings of the Day

Committee of awards to pass on ranks earned by Camp Fire Girls in the Potomac Area meets at 2 p. m. with Mrs. Reynold A. Lee, 4711 River Road. At a recent meeting of the Guardian's Association, a committee was appointed to arrange schedules and make assignments for groups of older Camp Fire Girls, who will supply cake, cookies and doughnuts for the Stage Door Canteen. Those appointed were Mrs. M. D. Miller, Mrs. C. W. Cheatham, Mrs. H. L. Lourie . . . Mrs. Robert Van Denbergh, State chairman of the museum committee, is guest speaker at a meeting of Col. John Washington Chapter, D. A. R., at Chapter House. Mrs. James Stansfield is chairman of hostesses . . . Vermont Association of the District of Columbia hears Ugo Carusi, executive assistant to the Attorney General, speak at a meeting at 8:30 p. m. preceding the dance at the Washington Club, Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest

Tomorrow's Activities

Tomorrow's calendar is chockfull of interesting places to go and things to do. Washington Chapter of New Rochelle College Alumnae Association holds a special meeting to wrap bandages for Georgetown Hospital, 3 p. m., at 4514 Connecticut Avenue . . . a group of distinguished women receive with Mme. Wei, wife of Chinese Ambassador, at a tea opening the exhibition of China's well-known painter, Chang Shu-Chi, 5 to 7 p. m., at the Arts Club, 2017 I Street Northwest. Receiving with Mme. Wei are Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, vice chairman of the Washington committee for United China Relief, which is sponsoring the exhibition; Mrs. Wilson Compton and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper.

A Fashion "Find"

By Jeanne Contini

Who said a woman has to pay fancy prices for a trim, young suit dress just because she happens to be on the credit side of size "36?"

Pictured above is the perfect costume to wear right now and all summer, for anyone who likes to look attractive on her job. It's made of navy spun rayon in a full-bodied weave that looks and feels like Irish linen, but is far less prone to crease. The complimentary cut is accomplished with a set-in belt that allows for an easy fulness above the waist and slick, clean fitting over the hips. The smooth, gored skirt will take hours of sitting and can be painlessly pressed when necessary.

The sylphs have no priority on quick changes. Remove the white over-collar, for instance. What looks like a binding underneath is a full sized collar in its own right and is bright red to match the piping on the sleeves. Put on red gloves, pin a bunch of cherries to your lapel, and you're ready for tea. Or wear it with white gloves, a white flowered hat, and a pretty frilled white dickie . . . or a peppermint-striped taffeta scarf, or etc., etc.

This suit has the simplicity and nice detailing which are as rare and tasteful as a sprig of fresh mint. We liked the navy and red combination it was undeniably spring-like, however, the other colors are equally pleasant; black with green, green with brown, and cinnamon with delft blue. Sizes 38 to 44 . . about $11.00.

For further information, please call NAtional 4200, Ext. 324, between 9 and 5.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

So you teen age girls want to reduce, but your mother puts her foot down when you even mention going on a diet. Of course, she won't let you go along on no breakfast, a soda for lunch and a salad for supper!

But your mother won't mind your not eating between meals and leaving off dessert. And that is probably all you need to do to slim down. Certainly, it would take the 500 or so calories out of your diet you would have to give up to reduce.

You need quite a few calories. Growing girls from 13 to 15 use 2800 calories a day—many more than your mother can use. And girls from 16 to 20 need 2400 calories a day. If you are considerably over-weight you can take one-third less calories for your reducing allowance. That sets the reducing calories at 1900 for the girls under 16 and at 1600 for the girls on up to 20.

It's easy to trim down calories. The first thing you don't need is candy. The chocolate bar you just ate was loaded with calories. It contained about 400. And an ice cream soda contains from 300 to 400 calories. So no more of those!

What you teen-agers must have daily are all the foods which furnish protein, minerals and vitamins. These are three glasses of milk, four slices of 100 per cent whole-grain bread, three small pats of butter, an egg, three vegetables, one a green leafy; three fruits, one of them oranges or grapefruit or their juices, and a serving of lean meat, fish or fowl. Without those vital foods you could not grow normally or keep your health and looks. You have such an abundance of vitality now that you can't imagine not having it. But you can lose it very quickly on a poor diet. That's why your mother worries.

That may sound like too much food for a diet but you can get it all within 1600 calories and that number is your minimum.

Watch out for the fats. They count double.

The Gentler Sex

Sequel to New Year's

I

"Are you still going to your gym class?"

"Yes—I mean, no—that is I was up to the last few days. You see I've been so rushed—"

"I know. I had to give up my swimming this week. I was so fagged out."

"I don't think it pays you to do those things when you're tired and rushed."

"No, what we really all of us need is more rest."

"Exactly! I thought I'd get good and rested and then take up my swimming lessons again."

"Well, I thought I might wait until summer and take up bicycling. Exercise in the open air does you so much more good."

"Well, of course, this war wears everybody out so."

"That's the truth. As a matter of fact I don't see how I'm going to do any real exercising until after the duration."

"Me either."

II

"Hello. Did you go to the Russian class last night?"

"No-er, well you see there was a place I simply had to do—or else insult somebody. Were there many there?"

"Oh-well, you see I didn't go. . . . There was a friend of mine in town."

"Well, I don't think missing one lesson is so bad. And I'm really going to get down to work from now on."

"So am I. I'm going to be perfectly ruthless, cut out all social life and accomplish something. As a matter of fact, I'd like to enroll in that Chinese course, too."

III

"Oh, hello. What do you know?"

"Nothing. Did you hear about Elsa Trill? She's marrying Paul Warble."

"No, don't tell me she's taken him—well, what I mean is, he's a very fine person."

"Yes, and of course, Elsa is sort of—well, she really is a fine person, too. Say, did you know Margie Tweek had a baby?"

"No. Well, I hope it doesn't look—that is, I mean, well that's very nice."

"And Suzanne Schooner's been made a major in the Parachute Patrol."

"She WOULD—no, what I'm trying to say is Suzanne's a born administrator. By the way, did you hear about Sabra Slinker?"

"Now, what has THAT woman—no, I mean I haven't heard."

"Well, I shouldn't be telling this, especially after I resolved not to gossip any more—"

"Go on. This isn't gossip."

"Well, they say she's having dates with Bob Musher—Elsie's husband. Of course, though, it may just be platonic."

"Platonic nothing. Of course, I shouldn't say this after I've resolved not to criticize——"

"This isn't criticism. It's just sort of, well, psychological discussion."

"Well, I'm really going to say nice things about people hereafter, but if you want to know what I think of Sabra Slinker—"

"Go on. Go on."

SHOP AND RUN

By Marianne

If you get your exercise via the laundry-baking-scrubbing method, here are a few ways to eliminate some of those household "frills." We'll wager there'll be no problem of what to do with the time you save!

It really happened—a rug that looked as if it had been playing hookey in the coal bin was turned into something lovely, flowery and clean. The rug and upholstery cleaner that performed the miracle is in liquid form and very simple to use. Please note also, it's very gentle with the hands. One-half gallon for $1.10; a gallon for $1.85.

Anything that cuts down on the laundry bill deserves a second look. These are paper guest towels that are really a fine substitute for they look as pretty as fabric ones and are very soft. Guests won't hesitate to use these, too. Many colors and designs and there are 36 in a box for 45 cents.

Here is an inexpensive item that has much usefulness—40 waxed sandwich bags for 10c! Use these sanitary containers for packing school, work, and picnic lunches, to store food in the refrigerator, to cover small plates, baby bottles, or when traveling to hold your cosmetics. This summer they'll solve the "what to do with my wet bathing cap" problem. A find!

"She can bake a cherry pie—" because she uses a pastry canvas and rolling pin cover. Advantages, many: This means that the dough will not stick and the cover will absorb excess flour instead of the pastry. Fine if you don't have a pastry board (and you also can store the cover by wrapping it on your rolling pin). Both pastry cloth and cover are waterproof and mildew resistant and a foolproof recipe for pastry is inclosed as final insurance that your pie crusts (or cookies, ravioli, noodles, etc.) will be a success every time. $1.00 for the set.

Invest one-half minute more of your time to call NAtional 4200, Extension 324, between 9:00 and 5:30—and we'll tell you where to find these.

Rationing Made Easy

How can we "soften the blow" of point rationing? We can prepare for it by keeping an accurate record for the next few weeks of the amount of canned, bottled, frozen or dehydrated fruit and vegetables we buy during an average period.

Dates to remember: January 21—Gasoline coupon No. 3 expires. January 25—Fuel Oil coupon for period 2 expires. January 31—Sugar stamp No. 10 expires. January 31—Last day for tire inspection. February 8—Coffee stamp No. 28 expires.

These Women!

By d'Alessio

"Does this mean I'm finally allowed to kiss you?"

That Wild Arnold Girl

By Irene Ernhart

The story thus far: Jenny Arnold understands herself well enough to know that most of her brassy, wise-cracking modernism is a defensive front against the petty scheming of her older sister, Madeline; the middle-aged and embarrassing foibles of her mother, Celia, who is currently enamored of the oily young dancing master, Tony Torrento, and the heartache she feels because of her father's consistent failure to understand her, or to return the genuine affection she feels for him. Even to Bud Nelson, who is in love with her, Jenny never reveals her true feelings. Only when she meets Bill Winslow, Madeline's new flame, does she realize that her cultivated hardness is only skin deep—that she can, whether she wants to or not, actually fall in love.

CHAPTER V

Bill Winslow shrugged and spread his big hands in an apologetic gesture. He laughed and ran a finger inside his collar. "That's the way it's always been. When I like a dog, he likes me. Dogs——"

"I suppose," Jenny broke in bitterly, "you're one of these strong silent men dogs and babies love."

She strode to Briar, took him by the collar and dragged him for a distance, then picked him up and without a backward glance went around the corner of the house, out past the garages, toward the woods.

"Briar, you darned fool!" she said. She felt absurdly like crying. Briar had always been so exclusively her dog. Mother hated him, and father didn't want him about. Crick swept him out with a broom every time she caught him in the house.

He'd adored only Jenny, and had been her boon companion for two years, without ever paying the slightest attention to anyone else's overtures or minding their antagonism.

Had he sensed her own strong attraction toward Bill Winslow, Jenny wondered? She tried to wipe away a feeling of humiliation. Bill Winslow had been laughing at her!

Jenny walked slowly. She tried to think of something other than Bill. There were plenty of things to think about, but all of them seemed unpleasant. Mother and that Torrento fellow, for instance. And father that continually harassed expression he'd worn lately. Could the Arnold finances be on the verge of sinking to a new low?

She remembered the day father had told them they'd have to give up the luxurious town apartment and go back to Juniper Hill. Mother had been incredulous and angry.

"But James, think of the girls! And the house is in terrible shape after being rented. And it's so far out it's always hard to keep help."

Madeline had sulked. "Who'll ever come out there? And what will everybody think? And it's so inconvenient!"

Jenny in her turn had been flippant. "Nonsense. Our friends will love to come out there as long as we can keep on serving free liquor."

"It isn't a question," father had said uneasily, "of whether we want to or not, I'm afraid." His hands had moved nervously, betraying the miserable sense of failure the move gave him. He cleared his throat. "We couldn't sell Juniper Hill to save our lives and get anything out of it. And things are so bad at the factory that I'm afraid we've about come to the end of our resources."

Mrs. Claude Pepper Back From Holiday Visit in Florida

Senator's Wife Sees Game at Miami; Visits Relatives in St. Petersburg

When Mrs. Claude Pepper once gets home to Florida for a visit it takes a great deal of persuasion to get her out. This time it was an urgent telegram from Senator Pepper to "come home" that forced her return.

Just back Thursday, Mildred Pepper is looking back on days filled with sunshine, of palm trees swaying in the breeze; of the exciting football game at the Orange Bowl in Miami when Alabama—the Senator's alma mater—defeated Boston College.

Leaving Washington shortly before Christmas, Senator and Mrs. Pepper went to Tallahassee, their home, for Christmas day. From there Mrs. Pepper went to St. Petersburg to visit her mother, Mrs. T. P. Webster, and then joined Senator Pepper in Miami for the football classic on New Year's day.

"That was a day," said Mildred Pepper. "There was a special race that morning at Hialeah. Then the game where Senator Pepper met his old college professor, Dr. George Denny, along with many old classmates." Afterward there were a round of cocktail parties ending with a gay dinner party to celebrate Alabama's victory.

On the day of the game Miami usually puts on a colorful procession of floats filled with pretty girls and flowers. This year with the State filled with Army and Navy training centers, soldiers and sailors provided the thrills giving a realistic war scene of actual combat with planes, guns, tanks.

Senator Pepper flew back to Washington after the game to be on hand for the opening of Congress. Mrs. Pepper went on to Deland where she has been visiting her sister, Mrs. T. L. Snyder.

Prominent Illinois Lawyer Here as WAAC Officer

Young Officer Also Aviatrix, Stenographer and Speaker

Citizens of Illinois, both in the District and at home, have due cause to be proud of one of that State's more recent contributions to the war effort in the person of Lieut. Mary C. Martin, WAAC.

Lieutenant Martin joined the WAAC's in August, 1942, as an officer candidate with the idea in mind of contributing her "all" to the war effort. She was graduated and commissioned on October 5 and came to Washington on December 10. She finds Washington a fascinating place, although she admits that the reality of the housing problem takes some of the glitter away from the wartime Capital.

Being a uniformed officer is quite an accomplishment these days, but being in the limelight is nothing new for Lieutenant Martin. Back in 1926 in her high school days at Hillsboro, Ill., she was acclaimed winner of many State and district typing and shorthand contests, and in Chicago was named World's Champion Stenographer by the International Commercial Contests. There she got her first taste of international competition by defeating stenographical contestants from our Nation and many others.

In 1936, she was graduated from the Lincoln College of Law at Springfield and was admitted to the bar in that year. Shortly after her admittance she was appointed Assistant State's Attorney in that county, the first woman ever to hold that position in the county. Not only did she capably hold this job, practice law, and do public speaking throughout the State, but she also found time to acquire a pilot's license where she won much acclaim as an aviatrix.

Feeling the urge to do war work even before Pearl Harbor, she entered the United States Employment Office and conducted interviews regarding placing personnel in war industries.

At present Lieutenant Martin is stationed at the Legal Branch of the Administrative Section of the WAAC's in the vast spaces of the Pentagon Building. Despite the housing problem, she's found residence with several other WAAC officers at 1838 Connecticut Avenue. But her secret ambition is for overseas duty—and if she fights for that as she has for her many other honors, you can bet she'll get it.

As to her qualifications for war work, Lieutenant Martin has only one answer to give, "I was the only girl—and with eight brothers, one learns to stand her ground."

Tea Honors Mrs. Roszel

Mrs. Charles Thomas Dabney entertained at tea yesterday for her daughter, Mrs. Stephen Roszel, jr., who was Miss Page Nelson Dabney before her marriage on Christmas Day.

Mrs. Dabney had assisting her Miss Sally Roszel, of Markham, Va., sister-in-law of Mrs Roszel; Miss Patricia Garrison and Miss Mary Helen Tildsley.

Mrs. Roszel will leave shortly to join Ensign Roszel in California and Mrs. Dabney will go to Gates Mills, Ohio, to join Mr. Dabney.

Mrs. Iriarte Pleads Case for Puerto Rico

Wife of Puerto Rican Senator Maintains People of United States Do Not Realize Seriousness of Situation

By Peggy Preston

That Uncle Sam is not taking proper and adequate care of his Puerto Rican wards is the opinion of fair-haired Mrs. Celestina Iriarte, wife of a member of the Puerto Rican Senate.

"It is the ambition of every Puerto Rican to see their island become the forty-ninth State in the Union," she said. "But economic conditions at the moment are making for great dissatisfaction with Washington's handling of our quite desperate situation."

In Washington briefly, Mrs. Iriarte is leaving this weekend for Tarrytown, N. Y., where she will enter her daughter, Priscilla, in Marymount Academy. She will be joined in New York by her husband, who is at present on a business trip, and together they will return to Washington shortly to continue their efforts to persuade our Government to alter Gov. Rexford Tugwell's economic program in Puerto Rico.

"The people of America, I am sure, are not aware of the chaotic state of affairs in my country," said this leader in women's organizations. "Else they would never tolerate the program. Unemployment has reached over 40 per cent and with a corresponding rise in the price of foodstuffs, the population is on the verge of famine."

Mrs. Iriarte repeated the arguments that have been set forth in the Senate committee hearings on Puerto Rico, listing inadequate shipping facilities as the major cause for present conditions there.

Cites Need for More Shipping

"The 30,000 tons of shipping a month allotted to us at the request of Governor Tugwell is so far below our needs that it is impossible for us to survive," she said.

Mrs. Iriarte pointed out that her countrymen are quite aware of the necessity to keep within wartime quota. "We are not asking for a great deal," she said. "Only enough to keep ourselves going."

As regards the patriotism of these two million citizens, there is no question, according to Mrs. Iriarte. "No draft was necessary, when war came," she said. "And in many ways I think we are more aware of the blessings of the United States Government than you are right here in the States."

Is Active In Civic Groups

Long a leader in her country's civic activities, Mrs. Iriarte, for the past year has been associated with all of Puerto Rico's defense organizations.

"We are naturally very much aware of the war," she said. "For Army and Navy bases there have brought about much wartime activity."

Just before leaving Puerto Rico, she completed training work with a so-called "Disaster Corps," made up of 200 girls and boys, who are trained in first aid, fire drills and air-raid precaution. She is chairman of the Puerto Rican Chapter for Infantile Paralysis and in other years has been chairman of the committee for the President's Birthday Ball.

Chinese Art Exhibition to Open Tomorrow

A group of distinguished women will receive with Mme. Wei, wife of the Ambassador of China, at the tea which will open the exhibition of China's well-known painter, Chang Shu-Chi, at the arts club, 2017 I Street, tomorrow from 5 to 7.

Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, vice chairman of the Washington committee for United China Relief, which is sponsoring the exhibition; Mrs. Wilson Compton, wife of the chairman, and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the honorary chairman, will be in the line with Mme. Wei during the afternoon.

A group of women, long active here for United China Relief, will pour, among them Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mrs. Anne Archbold, Mrs. Charles McNary, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot and Miss Grace Guest. Mme. Alfred Sze, one of China's most beloved women, who now makes her home here, will also assist.

Mrs. McCook Knox and Miss Bertha Noyes, Arts Club hostesses for the Sunday tea, will be assisted by Mrs. Langhorne Bond.

The exhibition, which will be open to the public and to art students, will continue through February 5.

Miss Baden To Be Bride Of Lieut. Leech

An out-of-town ceremony of interest to the Capital will be the wedding of Miss Adelaide Baden of Seat Pleasant, Md., daughter of Mrs. John Alfred Baden and the late Mr. Baden, to Lieut. Walter Murray Leech, U. S. A., son of Mrs. William Claude Leech of Washington and the late Mr. Leech. The marriage will take place this evening at 8 o'clock in St. Matthew's Episcopal Church in Seat Pleasant with the Rev. C. F. Langlands officiating.

The bride-elect, who will be given in marriage by her brother-in-law, William Eston Leary of Washington, will wear a gown of white faille taffeta made with a sweetheart neckline, a long train, and a veil falling from an orange blossom-trimmed lace cap. She will carry a white prayerbook covered with white roses and gardenias.

Mrs. Lionel Norrington, the maid of honor, will wear a gown of brocaded yellow taffeta made with a sweetheart neckline and bracelet-length sleeves. Her halo and old-fashioned bouquet will be of talisman roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Ann Baden, a sister of the bride, and Miss Jeannine Leech, a sister of the bridegroom, will be dressed like the honor attendant, in powder blue, and will carry pink roses.

Lieut. Richard J. Dooley, U. S. A., will serve as best man and the ushers will be Lieut. Robert E. Shrake and Gordon E. Nicklos, both of the Army.

Following the ceremony a reception will be held at the Baden home at which about 100 guests are expected. After a wedding trip to New York, the couple will return to Washington to make their home.

Gen., Mrs. Hurley Back in Capital; At Mayflower

Brig. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley has returned to this country after completing a mission to Russia. Mrs. Hurley has come up from Santa Fe, N. Mex., to join him here at the Mayflower for a few days.

The Hurley family, who before made their headquarters at Belmont, in Leesburg, Va., has moved almost en masse to the Southwest. One daughter, Mrs. Henry Beall Gwynn, and her young daughter, Patricia, is remaining in Santa Fe, while her husband, Captain Gwynne, is on duty with the Medical Corps in Australia. Daughter Ruth, who is now Mrs. David Huey Hughes, is living in Texas with her husband, who is an aviation cadet at Randolph Field.

Munillas Plan Party for Members Of Defense Board

The Cuban Military Attache, Lieut. Col. Felipe Munilla, and Senora de Munilla have cards out for a reception on January 24 at Hotel 2400.

The party, for which invitations to many members of the military and naval contingent have already gone out, is to be given in honor of the secretariat and delegates of the Inter-American Defense Board. Col. and Senora de Munilla are planning to give a series of other similar parties later on in the season.

United Nations Is Party Purpose

The spirit of the United Nations and the personalities that represent them were on hand yesterday afternoon for a 4:30 o'clock tea gathering in the Rhode Island Avenue home of Mrs. Gifford Pinchot.

Definitely a party with a purpose, the conversation centered around plans for the United Nations Discussion Series which will start in Constitution Hall on January 25, with Dr. H. J. van Mook taking over the speaking spotlight. Wives of the envoys from the United Nations added their suggestions to those made by the members of the series' committee, headed by Mrs. Raymond Clapper.

Among the guests were many of those who contributed in the past to plans for lecture series in former years. The work on the lectures is being done by representatives of women's and men's organizations here and by individuals interested in promoting a better understanding between the peoples of the countries fighting for the same causes.

Ben Rosenfeld Dies; Funeral Set Tomorrow

Ben Rosenfeld, 74, a Washington businessman for 52 years, died yesterday at Doctors Hospital. Funeral services will be held at the Danzansky funeral home, 3501 Fourteenth Street Northwest, at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow. Burial will be at the Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery.

A native of Germany, Mr. Rosenfeld came to this country in 1881 and to Washington in 1890. He became a citizen in 1889. He was one of the pioneers in the confectionery business here. During the last war, he served on the Food Conservation and Control Committee under Herbert Hoover, then food administrator. In recent years he was engaged in the insurance brokerage field. He was a member of the Myron M. Parker Masonic Lodge and the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Bella Rosenfeld, 2737 Devonshire Place Northwest; a son, Phillip Rosenfeld, 4555 Linnean Avenue Northwest; a daughter, Mrs. Ralph Dumbrower of Richmond, Va., and two sisters, Mrs. B. Ney of Front Royal, Va., and Mrs. S. Wurzburger of Harrisonburg, Va.

Mrs. Heard Dies At 80; Widow of Brigadier General

Mrs. Mildred Townsend Heard, 80, of Washington, widow of Brig. Gen. John Wilkinson Heard, died Thursday at Miami Beach, Fla., after a two weeks' illness. Mrs. Heard was visiting her granddaughter, the wife of Maj. Philip S. Green.

Mrs. Heard was born in New York City, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Townsend. She attended school in New York and Dresden, Germany.

In 1885 she married the then Lieutenant Heard, who had recently graduated from West Point. Burial will be at West Point Cemetery Monday at 11 a. m.

Surviving are three sons, Maj. Gen. Jack W. Heard of Camp Cook, Calif.; Col. Falkner Heard, assistant director of public relations of the War Department, and Col. Townsend Heard, on overseas duty; a sister, Miss Emily Townsend, of San Francisco, and a daughter, Mrs. Thomas H. Rees, jr., also of San Francisco.

Only survivor is his sister, Mrs. Frank W. Kihlborn, with whom he resided.

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

MARY! WHAT'S TH' BIG IDEA?... ALL THIS BAGGAGE?
I'M GOING TO ROCKINGHAM FOR A FEW DAYS, BILL, BUT DON'T ASK QUESTIONS. I'LL EXPLAIN WHILE I PACK!
A WOMAN AT THE HOSPITAL IS NEAR DEATH... FROM THAT WRECK! LONG AGO HER DAUGHTER WAS ADOPTED BY A FAMILY IN ROCKINGHAM. I'M GOING TO TRY TO BRING THE GIRL HERE BEFORE... BEFORE IT'S TOO LATE!
WHY DIDN'T YA JIST TELEPHONE?
WE DON'T KNOW THE FAMILY'S NAME! THE FOSTER FATHER IS A DRUGGIST AND THE GIRL HAS A BIRTHMARK ON HER RIGHT ARM!
THE LEAST I CAN DO FOR THE POOR SOUL IS TO TRY! LOOK AFTER THE CHILDREN! CALL DR. BALLARD IF ANYTHING GOES WRONG!... GOODBYE!
SOMEDAY I'M GONNA SET UP HOUSEKEEPIN' ON A MERRY-GO-ROUND AN' ENJOY A QUIET OLD AGE!

MICKEY FINN — Convinced! — By Lank Leonard

MICKEY IS RIGHT, PHIL! JUMPING AROUND THE COUNTRY IN WINTER IS TOUGH—AND YOU'RE NO KID! STAY HERE AND WIRE NOCKIE NOONAN TO HIRE SOME YOUNG, EXPERIENCED SALESMAN!
—YOU'VE GOT TO THINK OF THE TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM, TOO, PHIL! AND IT'S COLD!—YOU'D PROBABLY GET PNEUMONIA!
HE HAS GREAT RESPECT FOR YOU, MR. STURDY—SO IF YOU'D TALK TO HIM, HE—OKAY, MICKEY! I THINK I CAN CONVINCE HIM WITHOUT ANY TROUBLE!

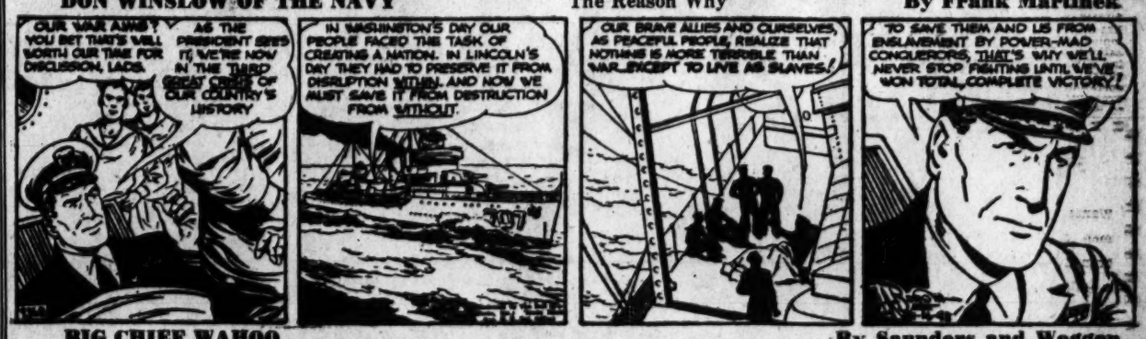
PA—DON'T YOU THINK THAT YOUNG MAN IS OVERDOING IT?
RUSHING DIXIE? —GOSH, I DUNNO —THAT'S HER DEPARTMENT—NOT MINE!
BUT DON'T WORRY—THAT DAUGHTER O'MINE KNOWS WHEN T'DROP 'EM—LET'S KEEP OUR NOSES OUT OF IT—
I GUESS YOU'RE RIGHT!
HEY—DUGAN! —WAIT!
WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL ME YOU WERE GONNA CLEAN OUT THE ASHES?

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — The Reason Why — By Frank Martinek



OUR WAR AIMS? YOU BET THAT'S WELL WORTH OUR TIME FOR DISCUSSION, LACEY.
AS THE PRESIDENT SEES IT, WE'RE NOW IN THE THIRD GREAT CRISIS OF OUR COUNTRY'S HISTORY
IN WASHINGTON'S DAY OUR PEOPLE FACED THE TASK OF CREATING A NATION. IN LINCOLN'S DAY THEY HAD TO PRESERVE IT FROM DISRUPTION WITHIN. AND NOW WE MUST SAVE IT FROM DESTRUCTION FROM WITHOUT.
OUR BRAVE ALLIES AND OURSELVES, AS PEACEFUL PEOPLE, REALIZE THAT NOTHING IS MORE TERRIBLE THAN WAR...EXCEPT TO LIVE AS SLAVES!
TO SAVE THEM AND US FROM ENSLAVEMENT BY POWER-MAD CONQUERORS, THAT'S WHY WE'LL NEVER STOP FIGHTING UNTIL WE'VE WON TOTAL, COMPLETE VICTORY!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — By Saunders and Woggon

(—HERE I AM, IMPRISONED IN AN ELEVATOR WITH LOIS WHEN THERE'S NEED FOR SUPERMAN TO GO INTO ACTION. IF I ESCAPE AS THE MAN OF TOMORROW, LOIS WOULD SOON NOTICE THE ABSENCE OF CLARK KENT FROM THE ELEVATOR CAR. THIS IS INDEED A PROBLEM FOR A SUPERMAN!)

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

Scooped Supreme Court

As early as November 5 the Washington Merry-Go-Round predicted the appointment of Judge Wiley Rutledge to the United States Supreme Court. In scoring this news beat, Drew Pearson told how Chief Justice Stone had asked the President to appoint a judge rather than a Senator and how the Chief Justice, having in mind the fact that Justice Byrnes had just resigned remarked a little plaintively: "I want some one who will stay."

On January 11 President Roosevelt appointed Judge Rutledge.

Tiff Disturbs Harmony Of G. O. P. Caucus

REPUBLICAN Leader Charles McNary's report to the press that the Senate G. O. P. caucus "dripped with harmony" caused some good-natured grins among McNary's colleagues who attended the caucus.

In his zeal to promote party interests, the charming Oregonian neglected to mention a bristling set-to between himself and Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire over G. O. P. representation on the important Foreign Relations Committee.

During the past session the Republicans had seven members on the Foreign Relations Committee, against 16 Democrats. However, the G. O. P. was holding out for a 14-to-9 alignment this session because of Republican increases in the Senate. So there was some disappointment when McNary informed the caucus that the committee make-up was to be 15 to 8 instead of 14 to 9.

Bridges and other nonisolationists hoped to place able, far-sighted Senator Warren Austin of Vermont on the committee. However, with one vacancy instead of two, this was difficult, because Senator James Davis of Pennsylvania, another candidate, had seniority over Austin.

Inside Isolationist Deal

Bridges made no effort to conceal his indignation. He hotly demanded of McNary:

"I would like the Minority Leader to explain why we are going to have only one extra seat, when by all rights we should have two."

"That was my agreement with Senator Barkley and it has the approval of the Republican Committee on Committees," replied McNary. "Senator Barkley has assured me that the next Democratic vacancy on the Foreign Relations Committee will go to us. That's the understanding."

"But the makeup was supposed to be 14 Democrats and 9 Republicans," persisted Bridges. "Instead of gaining two seats, as we should, we are actually losing one and the Democrats are gaining one. I would like to know why the Senator from Oregon made such an agreement."

"I don't like to be questioned in this way," snapped McNary. "My judgment on such matters has never been questioned in the past."

"I have a right to speak up over something that affects the interests of our party," shot back Bridges. "I guess there's nothing we can do about this now, but I, for one, am not satisfied."

Insiders see the fine hand of Senator Gerald Nye, North Dakota isolationist, in the by-passing of Austin. As chairman of the G. O. P. committee on committees, Nye has a powerful voice in G. O. P. committee appointments. With the appointment of Davis, the entire G. O. P. roster on the Foreign Relations Committee continues to be isolationist, with the possible exception of fence-straddling Senator Wallace White of Maine.

NOTE: From the viewpoint of isolationist Republicans it was better to have one new isolationist Republican on the committee, than two new Republicans, one of whom believes in world cooperation.

Ceiling for Stars

MEETING secretly with the Treasury Department, some of the biggest film executives in Hollywood have been trying to work out a compromise on the $25,000 salary ceiling. If consummated, it may set a standard for other industries.

The plan proposed is to pay a screen star $67,200, which after taxes would leave each star a net of $25,000. Then all over this amount would be deposited in escrow.

For instance, Claudette Colbert, who makes $350,000 annually, would be paid $67,200, then the balance of $282,800 would be deposited in escrow for a year. At the end of a year, deductible expenses would be subtracted, or any increased taxes, then the balance would go to the Government.

The Treasury has accepted this plan, but the film stars have not.

The stars see the $25,000 limit as an excellent opportunity to "jump" their contracts. They say that if they aren't going to work for money any more, but merely for love of art, then they want something to say about their art.

They want, for instance, to pass judgment on their own stories, their supporting casts, their directors. Hedy Lamarr, for instance, might want to say whether or not she was to play opposite Errol Flynn or Jack Benny. And Norma Shearer might want to decide whether she would or would not act in a Broadway plot of Walter Winchell's.

If the nut is ever cracked, it will serve as a precedent for other industries, but so far it's a tough nut.

Big Steel vs. Sponge Iron

Big Steel vs. Sponge Iron

AFTER weeks of hammering and with the help of Secretary Ickes, Wyoming's Senator O'Mahoney has finally brought about the installation of a sponge iron plant at the University of Wyoming.

Though a long way from Eastern steel centers, this plant may have revolutionary consequence. For Senator O'Mahoney and Ickes' Bureau of Mines experts contend that sponge iron will prove that iron ore can be refined and reduced at the mouth of any small iron mine in the United States. It will also solve the crucial shortage of steel.

In other words, instead of shipping ore hundreds of miles to expensive blast furnaces in Ohio and Pennsylvania, ore can be refined at the mine's mouth, then shipped. Or industry can flourish near the low-grade iron mines which are scattered throughout the Nation.

Meanwhile, the Wyoming experiment will use the Krupp sponge iron process, developed in Germany, and later a new process. Meanwhile, also, Senator O'Mahoney's working out a plan for private capital to finance sponge iron plants without going through the bottleneck of the RFC's Defense Plants, Inc. He figures that with steel desperately needed for ships, planes and rubber factories and with bank balances accumulated, now is the time to get a new diversified iron industry started throughout the country.

NOTE: Watch these commodities and their financial backers: (1) sugar, which Wall Street doesn't want to leave Cuba; (2) aluminum, which Alcoa doesn't want spread out to all the many aluminum clay deposits throughout the country; (3) grain alcohol, which the oil companies don't want to have get into rubber manufacture; and (4) iron, which the steel companies don't want to slip from their grasp in Pittsburgh and Youngstown.
